Men's Trousers, and to close

The primaries of the Yakima county republicans are to be held Monday next, with the county convention the following Saturday. Local politics are therefore at white heat, especially among those seeking places on the ticket.

The sensation of the week is a reported harmony meeting, said to have been held recently in the office of Hon. Ira P. Englehart, in which that gentleman and throws out the year's accumulation, so we went through our stock last week and threw out every odd size and broken lot of Men's Trousers, and to close of the Yakima county while George Schreiner, a brother of the westbound train for various Sound points. They were followed to the depot be a number of well-wishers, who made things merry by deluging the young people with rice until they finally bribed the train porter to lock the Pullman door and let down the windows.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Schreiner and is a beautiful and popular young lady, while the groom is a prosperous young business man of this city.

Jones and Englehart Said to Have Pooled Their Interests ... A Slate Prepared for Next Saturday's Circus.

statesmen named at the top of the political heap. This secret conference, if such it may be called, promises to have momentous results—at least on the fortunes of several of the local candidates.

The plan of proceedure, so far as the DEMOCRAT has been able to learn, outlined at this conference is as follows: Mr. Englehart is to receive the nomination to the state senate, with the further proviso that the two candidates for the House are to be satisfactory to him. Mr. Jones, in consideration of his using his best efforts to bring about the nomination of certain men on the legislative ticket. is to have a delegation to the state convention that is to be practically of his own choosing. In addition, it is said, the promise was made to him that in the event that a favorable opening appeared for him in the senatorial race and people who were formerly acquaint. next winter that he should have the support of the three legislative votes if they make a trip to the old Lewis from this county, providing, of course, that Mr. Englehart and his two associates on the ticket are elected-in brief, the three votes of Yakima are to be held, as it were, in "cold storage" against such a time as Mr. Jones may require

Further than that the slate to be put through at next Saturday's convention is, as yet, not ready to be announced. The claims of certain candidates for places on the county ticket are being places on the county ticket are being considered, so it is said, but except in one or two cases no decision has yet been reached. The exceptions, so we are informed, are that A. L. Dilley is slated for the shrievalty and Robt. Scott for the treasurership. However, much will depend on the ability of the several candidates on the county ticket to deliver votes to the legislative combine on liver votes to the legislative comline on convention day. The unfortunate aspir-ant who has no votes to deliver will pro-bably stand about as much show for a nomination as the traditional snowball has of maintaining its identity in sheel, that is, of course, on the assumption that the plans of the Jones-Englehart alliance do not miscarry.

While the Democrat does not profess to have absolute definite information as to have absolute definite information as to the plans of the combine as outlined above, there are plenty of straws to indicate which way the political wind is blowing. As an illustration it might be mentioned that ex-Senator Dan Lesh is now out of the running for his old seat in the state senate. Mr. Lesh, it should be remembered is a firm and fast friend. be remembered, is a firm and fast friend of Congressman Jones and is one of the men who is largely responsible for that gentleman's political elevation. Died in the Mountains.

Interest was revived last Saturday in the case of the mysterious disappearance in the mountains last fall of T. W. Rathbun, by the bringing to this city of a couple of human bones, a rifle, knife, watch and other effects known to have been the property of the lost man.

Arthur Beck, Frank Herke and J. P.

Oofield, sheepherders, found the articles on the banks of the Little Klickitat in the neighborhood of Mt. Adams, and the bones have been identified as a rib and part of the vertebra of a man. Last winter a brother of Rathbun, who resides at Lodi, Cal., came here and tried to find the missing man, but the snow was too deep to accomplish anything and the brother returned home. The articles found establish the fact that Rathbun perished in the snow, and the disappearance of the remainder of the body is attributed to wild animals.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA,

Hon. Wm. J. Bryan in an interview given to the press last week, stated in most emphatic terms his intention of not seeking a presidential nomination in

That Mr. Bryan is perfectly sincere in the stand that he has taken no person has rea on to doubt, considering the character of the man and his splendid reputation for honesty and sincerity in

While Bryan himself will not be a candidate for the democratic nomination, it is as clear as anything in politics can be two years in advance of the convention, that he will probably have a determining voice as to whom the nominee will be, for it can hardly be seriously doubted but that the wing of the party with which Mr. Bryan h s been actively identified will be the controlling factor in the national convention.

Nevertneless, Mr. Bryan's declara-tion clarifies the political atmosphere to a very great extent, for it means that a new standard bearer must be selected in the next campaign. Bryan's attitude, too, as will be observed, is sure to make just deserts, the daily papers of the state for party harmony, something which the and Jackson the greatest his party has ever known. Unfortunately, however, in his makeup he lacks that needful quality that enables a man to forgive his enemies. Bryan with his eloquent voice and masterful logic has pilloried so many of the public men of his party and so reof the public men of his party and so re-lentlessly that they can never forgive him, hence the necessity for a new him an instructed delegation.

However, the millions of democrats who have followed Bryan in the past while admitting the present necessity of selecting a new standard bearer will nevertheless strenuously insist upon having as his successor a man who is worthy as his successor a man who is worthy ing as his successor a man who is worthy is that he is always bucking a sure thing tle. The coming nominee, yet to appear, is not likely to be so able a man intellectually, but he must needs be, at least, typical; in fact, must fairly represent the party as now constituted. The new leader seemingly is not yet in evi

JIM HILL has magnanimously agreed to make a reduction of 10 per cent to the farmers of the Big Bend and Palouse on the transportation of their wheat to tidewater. "We are partners," said the great magnate to the farmers at Dayenport, "and any little differences that exist between us we can settle without the aid of the politicians." Well, since Mr. Hill is in partnership with the farmers of the state, wha's the matter with his showing a little favor now and then to his partuers here in the Yakima valley? Hill's partners here have got just as good a kick coming as his part-ners over in the Palouse or Big Bend.

The claim that is being put forward by interested parties that Walter J. Reed is not eligible for a nomination to the legislature from this county, looks to the Democrar a good deal like pleading the baby act. Mr. Reed has resided in Yakima for over four years. For Yakima for over four years. For three years he has served most acceptably as a member of the city council here. Besides, he is a heavy property owner and a large taxpayer in this county, and is presumed to be identified with the interests of this community,

The Democrat, it is needless to say, is not engaged in booming Mr. Reed or any other republican for office. Still we like to see fair play.

The most important happening in politics recently was the action of the Iowa republican convention held at Des Moines, July 31. That convention under the leadership of Governor Cummins and against the united protest of two cabinet officers from Iowa, the United States senators, and the members of the lowe: house broke away from the old republican dectrine and declared in effect for tariff revision The convention went a bit farther and asserted that the people's sovereignty over corporations and aggregations of wealth could not properly be disputed.—Commoner.

The Mythical "Average Man."

No person is more talked about than "the average man." But what is he like? Will anyone undertake to describe Physically, yes. We know that "the average man" lives about 33 years; the the chances are five out of six that he will die before he is seventy, 15 out of 16 that he will die before he is 80; that RINGLINO BROS'. circus will occupy the boards today. It is undoubtedly a great attraction, yet it is likely to be a rather tame affair in comparison with that of at 36 he usually grows fatter thereafter, and if for becomes learner, that some conditions that if for becomes learner, that some conditions are supplied to the sound of the sound o and if fat becomes leaner; that somewhere about 48 or 50 his general health receives a set-back more or less marked; that after about a year of such experience he starts with renewed vigor and keeps on until he is 61 or 62, when he passes through another and severer set-back, sometimes called "the grand climaxtery," and that if he passes this experience safely he is likely to round off his three-score years and ten or more, and go about boasting of his remarkable age and strength. Other interesting specifications of our "average man" are that his physical strength is one-fifth that of the average horse; that he wears a No. 7 hat, a No. 8 shoe; has a 36 inch chest and is about 5 feet 7 inches high. Carroll D. Wright has, moreover, computed that if he is mployed in any industry outside of farming he earns about $500 a year. But these interesting particulars still leave the description of "the average man" very incomplete, especially so on his mental and moral sides. And if we were able to fill out all the blanks and exactly describes him in every relation of life we should never meet any such man. The "average man" is a myth. The term is not equivalent to "the generarun of men," though quite commonly used in that sense. In truth, this wonderful being, whom everybody talks of and nobody knows, is a fiction created by adding together a thousand human items, each differing from the other 999, dividing them by dividing them by 1,000, and saying. "That is the average man." Manifestly not one item in the list corresponds to the footing.-Ex.

When Hazen S. Pingree was coming into prominence in Michigan politics, he was in Washington one night and strolled through the corridors of Willard's hotel, which he had not visited since war times, when it was the popular rendezvous of the city, political, military and otherwise. A friend introduced him to Colonel Mosby, the old guerrilla chieftain.

"Why, hello, colonel," said Pingree in his bluff, offhanded way, just as if he was in the habit of meeting Mosby every day. "I have not seen you for 25 years, but I remember very well the last occasion when we met."

"Ah," said the Virginian politely, 'what incident recalls it to your mind? I really fail to remember you, much to my regret."

"Oh, well," said Pingree, "you would not be so apt as I to remember the day I was captured by your men, and, hap pening to be wearing a very good, near y new uniform, you confiscated it on the spot and gave me your old ragged butternuts. But that's all right. All's fair in love and war, I know. Let's have a cigar."

Without a word of protest Mosby ac cepted, and a long friendly chat followed.

She Was the Ghost.

"A certain lady and her family," says Sir Mountstuart Grant-Duff in his 'Diary," "hired a place in Scotland which was haunted by the ghost of a woman who was to be seen constantly at night wandering through the rooms and passages. When the family arrived, the lady was much struck with the place and said, 'I must have been here before, for I know this place so well, only there ought to be two rooms here. and there is only one.'

"The agent replied that within a few weeks the owner had caused a partition to be taken down and made the two rooms into one. Still the lady was puzzled at her knowledge of the place, till she remembered that it was a house she used to go to in her dreams.

"Well, some time passed, and the igent was up at the house again, when the lady complained that one part of the contract had not been fulfilled. They had hired a house and a ghost for the summer, and no ghost had she seen. The agent replied: 'Of course not, because you are the ghost. We recognized you the moment we saw you.' "

Rather Venomous,

A tenderfoot who visited the Yosemite in the old days thus related his experience: The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.

"Venomous reptiles? You bet. I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes you can just bet your life is venomous. Why, one day I was comin down here drivin a wagon, when I catches sight of a snake in the brush all ready for a spring. My horses starts, an I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring. He makes one clear spring, the snake does, an he misses the horses."

"That was lucky. But you-you"-"Lucky? You bet your life it was lucky. He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."

"You don't say!" "I do say, and maybe you don't believe it, but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an

As there is more than one way of cooking a goose, so there is more than one method of teaching a dog to throw somersaults. But the most practical and thorough manner is to fasten a cord around the body of the animal close to the forelegs, and two people should hold the ends of the cord on either side of the unfortunate dog. A third party armed with a stout rope takes a position immediately in front of the canine acrobat and with a measured and masterly stroke flogs the door at close quarters to the dog's

At each stroke of the rope the dog springs backward, and that movement s the trainer's golden opportunity. As he dog spring backward the rope pass ng under its body is jerked upward, and, although the first few attempts may prove futile, the somersault is acquired in course of time. An intelligent dog soon sickens of this order of things and throws somersaults without the assistance of ropes.

Texas.

The area of Texas is equal to a belt of land 11 miles wide encircling the earth at the equator or to a strip of land more than one mile wide reaching from the earth to the moon or to a lane wide enough for the roadbed of a double track railway and long enough to reach from the earth to the sun.

How Roscoe Thomas Drowned. The report of the death of Roscoe Thomas by drowning in the Wenatche-river the evening of Aug. 7, was chronicled in these columns last week. The following concerning the sad event is taken from the Wenatchee Advance: Roscoe G. Thomas, a bookkeeper for the Wenatchee Canal Co. at Mission, was drowned in the Wenatchee river at that place on Thursday evening. The circumstances are about as follows:

Five of the canal company boys were in the river swimming and were floating down stream on a log. When near the bridge three of the boys left the log and went ashore. Another dropped off a little later and succeeded in making the shore. Young Thomas finally left the log and attempted to get to one of the bridge piers, but seeing that he could not reach it, tried to regain the log. In this he failed, and the supposition is that about that time he was seized with cramps and lost control of himself was carried on down stream and went

Coming of the Presidents.

The railroad presidents, like Caesar, came, saw and conquered, with an array of figures that nobody understood and a statement of railroad facts and figures that nobody could controvert. they found no profits in railroading in the west, with good advice and caustic humor they counseled a long haul over he mountains east, and the opening of new markets there, and attributed the small profits in farming to the excessive profits of the grain operators in Port land, and then granted a reduction of 10 per cent, or about 11/4 cents per bushel on grain rates.

It is too near the hour of press to recer to this meeting at length, but The Commoner stigmatizes it as about the nearest thing to a "bunco" game that has yet been offered by the railroads to the farmers of the country. After agitating the farmers through their employes to petition them in conference, ey come to the tarmers (?) meeting res, and as the final act of the comedy give us the reduction of 11/4 cents perbushel. After sober thought and reflection ion it is the query in many min ls if it is not all a joke?

Evidently there is something doing in Whitman county, first we have had the coming of Levi, and now the coming of the presidents. Somehow or other it strikes us it might next be in order to lave a coming of the farmers with a li-le of the real thing. Jokes might do before harvest but let us have something substantial thereafter. - Colfax Com moner.

Some Reasons Why the Farmers Should Organize.

First. Socially they would be benefit ted by the coming together occasionally for social and business purposes.

Second. Every other branch of business is organized. Merchants, grocery men, commission men, etc., are united for their mutual benefit. Only the farmer is outside, and all feed on the farmer.

Awnile ago I wanted to buy a basket of fruit in Seattle of a commission mer-chant. He asked me if I was in the busness of selling fruit. I told him, no; I was eating it. He replied that he could not sell fruit to any one but dealers.
nad to go across the street and get dealer to go and buy me that fruit, for 10 cents commission.

I shipped 260 sacks of sugar up the river from Eyerett. Merchants and dealers get their freight for $1.20 per ton. I had to pay $1 50, making a discrimination of $5.65 in their favor. This was on the Skagit Queen.

If I have anything to sell and take it in town, they make the price and pay me in goods, on which they make the price also. If I want to hire a man, he makes his own price. I can't pay him in goods—I have to pay cash.

I don't think I am a chronic growler; but being hit in one place so long, and so often it becomes sore. If the farmers would organize and sell and buy their own products, they could at least save a slice off from one end of the loaf, and have the satisfaction of knowing that we TERMS of Sale EASY: have been fools long enough.

What do you say to this, Hayseeds? Shall we continue to struggle - hire some men to buy for .s, and pay commission or will we organize and assert our rights -J. A. C. in Mt. Vernon Argus.

Farmers who make a specialty of raising potatoes, who have called at the DEMOCRAT office during the past week, state that they do not expect a very large yield of tubers in Yakima valley this season.

They say that the cold, backward weather during the spring and early summer kept the vines from growing. When the weather did change, they say it turned off so warm that it almost cooked the stalks, which, they assert, tends to make the potatoes scabby and will surely diminish the yield.

Potatoes for shipment are selling this week for $10 a ton, which the farmers think is entirely two low a price, considering the prospective yield.

Bill Nye on Life Insurance. The late Bill Nye's indorsement of life insurance is probably the most characteristic paragraph to be quoted from his writings:

"In these days of dynamite and swift changing presidential administrations and dark tunnels through which an engineer goes groping his way at 25 miles per hour, these days of tumbling signs of the times and tipsy telegraph poles, live wires and dead repairers; these days when the politician and the deadly bridge policeman with his pull lie down together under the influence of the same stimulant; these days when death lurks in the air we breathe, the earth we tread, the food we eat, the water-the water we bathe in-I say it behooves us to look well to our insurance and our future state, and I take pleasure in certifying and saying to whom these presents may come that since I became fully insured my health has improved so much that it is a subject for profound congratulation on my own part and the deepest disgust on the part of those who would naturally inherit my vast wealth."

Identifie. by a Blind Man.

A blind man picked out his dead wife in the New York morgue a few days age by his delicate sense of touch, says ar exchange. Two women, both of the Scheme For Selling a Farm and Its same name and both of whom died in Bellevue, were taken to the deadhouse at about the same rime. When the morgue keeper caught the blind man's right hand and guided it to an upturned face, he said, "No, no; that's not my Mary!" The drawer was closed, and the aext one was pulled out. The sightless man laid down his stick this time and used both hands. His face was transfig ured as the tips of his fingers rested or he whispered, "I have found you, dear! How thin your face has grown! How cold you are, Mary-how cold!" blind man had made no mistake. The dead woman had been his wife.

A Story of Patti.

Patti once went on an excursion with a party of Americans, among whom was a young chap who could play on a ban jo and sing "coon" and "rag time' songs like a professional. He did not intend that the great singer should judge of the quality of his art, but by accident she had a chance, and to the young man's joy she fell hilariously ir love with every "rag time" melody he sang. This was a secret between the two until one evening Patti consented to sing for the company. Several listeners went mildly insane when the great artist, after a little preparatory "pat ting," sang "Mamie, Come Kiss You Coney Boy."

Hen Fish in China.

According to the science column, of a German weekly paper, the hens of China lead busy lives. When not engaged in hatching out a brood of their own kind, they are put to the additional and novel task of hatching fish eggs. Chinese cheap labor collects the spawn of fish from the water's edge, puts it in an empty eggshell, which is then hermetically sealed with wax and placed under the unsuspecting and conscientious hen. In a few days the eggshell is removed, and the spawn which has been warmed into life is emptied into a shallow pool. Here the fish that soon develop are nursed until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream.

The Population of Babylon.

Various attempts have been made, by comparing its area with that of modern cities, to estimate the population of Babylon. But on the lowest calculahave borne any considerable resemblance to one of our cities, to have had a population of 5,000,000, a supposttion to which all but insuperable obcountry around Babylon available for lives. agricultural purposes must have been quite inadequate to supply the necessary demands for anything like such an immense population. Perhaps, on the whole, we may estimate the population at from 1,000,000 to 1,200,000. This supposition derives support from the fact that Seleucia. with a population of 600,000 souls, is stated by Strabo and Pliny to have been about half the size of Babylon in the days of her greatest glory.

When I grow up, I'll have to go and love some one. I suppose. Only she'll have to let me say what to do.

I've written all I know about it till I do grow up.-Eddy in New York Sun. The Celebrated "Leaf Ant."

One of the oddest little creatures in all animal nature is the "leaf ant" of Central America. Although different species of this oddity are known to inhabit the American continent from Brazil to Mexico, the real home of the true leaf ant is in Nicaragua. To all outward appearances this little insect is a common ant, but one of gigantic size, it must be admitted, when compared with the ants of our temperate regions, being on an average over an inch in length. The habit for which these ants are so celebrated, and one which we could hardly believe were it not for the testimony of reputable naturalists, is that of carrying a leaf for a sunshade, just as our women and men carry parasols and umbrellas for the same purpose.

When at work, the leaf carrying ants look like a little army in which each individual member is protected from the sun's rays by a little banner of green. Another remarkable fact in connection with the leaf carrier is that only those at work carry the little leafy protection. When a long file of burden bearers have deposited their budgets, they discard their parasols and return for a load without the leaf which made them such conspicuous objects when on the "up trip."

Millet and "The Angelus."

It was only after long years of struggle and dire poverty, through which Millet was consoled and supported by his wife, that the peasant painter was able to take the three roomed cottage at Barbizon and "try to do something really good." It was then that he began to paint that most beautiful "poem of poverty," the "Angelus," which is today one of the most valuable pictures in the world. Again and again he threw aside the picture in despair of ever finishing it to his satisfaction, and as often his wife replaced it on the easel and induced him to continue.

FOILED BY HIS OWN TRICK.

Dramatic Climax.

"Some years ago," said the narrator, an oil boom hit Litchfield, Ills., and everybody for miles around was seen sniffing for oil and every stranger suspected of being an expert looking for a good thing. An old farmer named Loonis had a big place three miles out of own, which would have been a fortune or him had be not been possessed of a mania for swapping, manifest in a perimial attempt to trade off his land or twice its value.

"When the boom was at the top notch, comis received a visitor who took so much interest in the farm, so liked its ppearance, location, etc., that the old irmer scented a petroleum man and w visions of incalculable wealth; lut, being a shrewd man, Loomis did lot care to take any unnecessary hances with Providence, and on the viet he sent the hired man out the ack way with orders to dump the kersene can 'nto the "ell. The visitor iked the entire place, inspected the parn, the chicken yard and then, as if

y chance, asked for a drink of water. "Loomis was waiting for that and eauled up a brimming bucket before he man's con eyes and poured him out gourdful of liquid with a fine, opaescent scum upon it. The visitor smelld the stuff, tasted it, made a wry face and asked if the water was always like hat. 'Oh, yes,' said Loomis, 'but you soon get accustomed to the taste, and our doctor says this is the finest water n earth for the stomach.' 'Well, I m ding danged if I'll ever get used to was the unexpected response. 'I am looking for a farm, not an oil well, and if I have got to haul my drinking vater three miles from Litchfield 1 mess I'd rather buy nearer town.

"It took Leomis six months to get the aste of oil out of his well, and by that ime the boom was over, and nothing cas left of the oil craze but rotting dericks and alundoned shafts."-New Oreans Times-Democrat.
