NEW YORK LITERARY AGENT TO BE CONFERENCE FEATURE

The Ninth Annual Pacific Northwest Writers Conference being held in Bellingham, Washington, July 30, 31, and August 1, on the campus of Western Washington State College has announced that Emmet Brightwell will be their featured Banquet speaker. Mr. Brightwell, a New York Literary Agent, in the market for new writers, has also promised to appear at several of the conference workshops before new or professional, young and old authors alike.

Author of several books in his own right, Mr. Brightwell has taken up the task of discovering "unknown" writers. It is with this in mind that he accepted the invitation of the Conference to appear.

Information regarding Conference registration may be obtained by writing Writers Conference, Box 465, Bellingham, Washington or to 10003 N.E. 29th Place, Bellevue, Washington.
