My dear Click Friend.

I took off for ABA meetings in New York Sunday morning last, with very happy recollections of a memorable evening the night before. The gathering there was a total and complete surprise. But a delightful one which I'll always remember.

My busy colleagues certainly fanned out their invitation, knowing, of course, that a great many of those asked couldn't possibly make it. But they have bound in some very beautiful books the letters which came from a lot of you which will always be most valued souvenirs. I appreciate your response and will treasure these volumes always.

I hope our paths cross soon and I'll have the real pleasure of another visit with you. Meantime, thanks very much indeed for your thoughtfulness in writing.

Sincerely,

Mr. Click Relander
