THE ONLY WAGON...

That has always stood the rough service of Uncle Sam's work is THE STUDEBAKER. The only wagon that has been the freighters' best friend in his long, hard hauls over the rough and rocky roads is THE STUDEBAKER. The wagon that is made of the best seasoned timber by the best workmen, who are paid by the day, not by the piece, and consequently do not slight their work--is the wagon that has been tested harder than any other wagon now made and has always given satisfaction. We are selling THE STUDEBAKER wagons, hacks, surreys and runabouts and if in need of anything in this line we can surely please you in both style and price.

Yakima Hardware Company,
Sole Agents.

Fruit Buyers

should be cautious. You'll be tempted to buy from the Chinese peddlers wagon, but if you expect first-quality fruit you'll be disappointed. Fruit that's been carted around in a wagon, usually without springs, over all kinds of roads, is dear at any price. Come to us; you're safe here. Our line of fruit is unexcelled.

CHERRIES,

and other seasonable fruits and berries. These are all hand picked especially for us. No soft, rotten, bruised or decayed specimens. They're priced to sell quickly--cheapest in town. Fresh daily. Send a trial order.

Fizz! Boom!! Bang!!!

The little cracker, the medium cracker, the giant cracker, the "shooting stick," and almost every other device known to create a noise on the "day we celebrate" were distinctly in evidence here Monday, and in the hands of the small boy, the big boy, the little man, the big man, the little girl, and the big girl, combined to make such a din as to drive the person with nerves to cover early in the day.

But we celebrated, and we did it properly. That was what North Yakima had promised all visitors and it certainly kept its promise. It was a celebration the like of which the city never saw before, and but few other cities of its size ever witnessed. The festivities were participated in by visitors as well as residents, and of the former there was an exceptionally large number. The streets had been gaily decorated with bunting and many of the store windows presented a beautiful appearance with an artistic arrangement of the national colors. Many residences also showed evidence of the patriotism of North Yakima's citizens, the whole making the city take on a truly gala day appearance and creating much favorable comment from visitors.

Promptly at 10:30 in the morning the parade started from the corner of A and Second streets and proceeded over the line of march laid out by the committee, headed by Nagler's military band. This portion of the proceedings was in charge of Dr. P. Frank as marshal assisted by Vestal Snyder.

The line of march ended at the corner of Yakima and Naches avenues where Congressman W. L. Jones gave a stirring patriotic address to an immense crowd.

The prizes awarded for parade participants were as follows: Best decorated float, Sunshine Camp, Royal Neighbors, $25; best appearing lodge, G. A. R., $25; best Uncle Sam, Frank Cook, $3; best carriage decoration, Joe Chamberlain, $5; best pony decoration, Ina Harrison, $5; Goddess of Liberty, Mrs. John Weaver, $3; best business representation, Beasley's scalp food.

The prize of $25 for the best decorated business house was awarded to the Star Clothing Co.

The sports commenced promptly on time in the afternoon and were held on Third, Second, First and Front streets as per arrangements. They created much amusement, particularly the pie eating contest, and were participated in freely.

Those who had the pyrotechnic display in charge for the evening certainly knew their business, for seldom has a prettier one been seen anywhere. Fully two thirds of those in the city journeyed to the foot of Fourth street to witness this crowning feature of the day's festivities and were well repaid.

After the pyrotechnics the program was brought to a close with a grand ball given in the armory jointly by Nagler's military band and Company E. This was well attended, $102 being realized.

While the program of sports were being carried out on the streets horsemen and those favoring the sport were enjoying some spirited races at the fair grounds. There was a mile harness race between Topsy T, owned by Fred Brook-er, H. H. Girl, owned by Rickey, and Kittylyne, owned by Hulce. Topsy T won, winning the second and third heats, H. H. Girl winning the first heat. The official time was given at 2:54, 2:52 and 2:50. The track was muddy and very fast time was impossible.

There was also a 3/4-mile race, which was won by the Collins horse in 36 seconds against an Oregon horse, and a matched half-mile race between Cordwood and an Indian horse which was won by the former in 52 seconds.

Add to these the ball game and it will be readily seen that there was fun for all during the entire day.

Now in the Hospital.

Since the postponement of the trial of Mrs. Jeannette Harris on the charge of infanticide repeated efforts have been made to have her confined during the intervening time in some place other than the county jail. These efforts have at last been successful and Mrs. Harris is now an inmate of St. Luke's hospital in Spokane, where an operation is to be performed upon her. Mr. Harris has agreed to pay the expense of all guards deemed necessary by the sheriff while she is an inmate of that institution.

Will Picnic.

Yakima Tribe No. 24, Imp. O. R. M., are making preparations for running an excursion from this city to Ellensburg on Sunday, July 24, where a big jubilation is to be held. The tribes of Cle-

Elum and Roslyn will also participate. The fare from this city and return will be $1.00 and Nagler's military band will accompany the excursionists. Three cars will be chartered and will leave here at early hour, returning about midnight. Ellensburg tribe has promised all visitors a free ride to the picnic grounds where dancing and other amusements will be in order, also free.

Made New Filing.

The Klickitat Development company on Thursday made two new filings on the waters of the Big Klickitat, relinquishing their former filings. The new filings call for 1400 feet of water from the west fork of the river and 1400 feet from the east fork.

ANOTHER DROWNING

The Yakima River Claims Its Second Victim Within a Period of Eight Days.

The Yakima river claimed its second victim from this city within a period of eight days on Wednesday of this week. This time it was Edw. C. Cain, a young man 19 years of age, who has been residing with his sister at the corner of B street and Ahtanum avenue for the past five months, coming here from Seattle.

Thursday was a warm day and in the evening Cain, together with a little nephew and a neighbor named Ray Linton, went to the river at a point known as the mill pond, near the Cascade Lumber company's mill, to enjoy a bath. Immediately upon arrival they stripped and went into the water. Linton swam to some logs out in the stream and, mounting one of the logs, looked back only to see Cain struggling in the water. He swam as fast as possible to the assistance of his comrade and his life nearly paid the penalty. When Linton reached the drowning young man he was seized in a death like grip from which he could not release himself and but for the timely arrival of the engineer of the saw mill plant there would have been two fatalities instead of one. The engineer pulled Linton out of the water and Cain sank. It was some five minutes later when his body was recovered and efforts to resuscitate him immediately commenced, but they proved of no avail as life was extinct. The remains were brought to Shaw & Flint's morgue from which place they were shipped to Seattle Thursday afternoon.

The unfortunate young man must have been unfamiliar with the water in which he was bathing, for he could not swim and walked out into the stream until he stepped into a hole. His struggles to regain a foothold only took him further out.

A peculiar coincidence of the drowning is that one year ago on the same day at 7:30 in the morning, a brother-in-law, Malcolm Galbraith, husband to the sister with whom he was staying, was drowned in Seattle. Mrs. Galbraith had made arrangements to take her family to Ballard, Wash., and was to have left on the Thursday morning train. The deceased, however, had secured a position here and was to have remained.

Mrs. Galbraith, together with a brother, Henry Cain, a Mennonite missionary in this district, accompanied the remains to Seattle where other relatives reside.

Strawberry and Cherry Shipments.

The season for strawberries and cherries is about over and it has proven to be a very productive one for Yakima farmers. The shipments this year in strawberries has been 5935 crates, 274 crates being shipped in May, 5161 crates in June and 500 in July. In cherries the shipments have been 5103 boxes, 100 going forward in May, 4988 boxes in June and 15 in July thus far.

These shipments as compared with those of last year are about double as much more, and this taken with the amount consumed at home denotes an immense crop. The market, however, appears to be equal to any amount produced.

The bulk of the shipments were to Montana and North Dakota points, although a large amount went to points within the state. Of the shippers the Yakima Horticultural Union was the largest, having 1200 crates of strawberries and 2500 boxes of cherries to its credit. J. M. Perry & Co. also figured on the shipping list to a considerable extent, while many farmers made individual shipments.

The berry season is now on and will be followed closely by apricots and early peaches.

County Committee Meeting.

The Democratic County Committee held a meeting Saturday afternoon as per call. At this meeting it was decided to hold two conventions in this county. The first convention will be held in this city July 28 when 19 delegates will be elected to attend the state convention to be held at Bellingham August 2. At this time the date of the second convention will be determined, at which the nominations for county officers will be made. The primaries will be held July 23, in the country precincts from 2 to 3 p. m., and in city wards from 8 to 9 p. m.

Gun Club Shoot.

The local gun club, together with representatives of similar organizations in Ellensburg, Roslyn and Cle Elum, enjoyed a shoot at the latter place July 4th. George Stacey of this city carried off the honors with a score of 119 out of a possible 130. The visitors report being well entertained.

WOODMEN LOG ROLLING

Will Be Held Here August 6th--$500 Offered for the Different Competitions.

Posters will be out the first of the coming week announcing the log rolling of the Modern Woodmen of Washington in this city on Saturday, August 6th. The local camp are putting forth strenuous efforts in order that the large number of visitors to the city will be provided for and to furnish them with ample amusement during their stay.

The proceedings of the day will open with a grand street parade at 9:30 in the morning which will end at the Fair grounds. Here there will be speaking by Hon. A. E. Mead of Bellingham, Wash., and other prominent Woodmen. This will be followed by competitive drills by Foresters and Royal Neighbors, tug of war, log rolling, wood-chopping, Woodmen horse races, men's, ladies' girls' and boys' foot races. There will be prizes for the largest camp representation, (North Yakima barred); largest representation of camp in parade, largest representation of Royal Neighbors, best floats, mounts, decorated bicycles, etc. In all $500 will be given in prizes.

The Northern Pacific has granted a rate of one and one-third fare from all points in Washington for the occasion.

Died.

Hugh Lloyd Hauser, aged 20 years and 17 days, died Sunday morning at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hauser, after an illness of several months from consumption. Deceased was a particularly bright young man, and was well and favorably known among a large circle of acquaintances. He was a High school graduate of the class of '01, and almost immediately upon graduating he accepted a position as bookkeeper for the United States Marble company of Spokane. It was while holding this position that he contracted the dread disease which caused his death. The bereaved parents did everything possible to relieve him. Early in the spring his mother accompanied him to Riverside, Cal., where it was thought the climate would be beneficial. But it was of no avail and he returned home a few weeks ago. The funeral was held Tuesday morning with services at the Christian church by Rev. A. C. Vail. Interment took place in Tahoma cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Loudon have the sympathy of the community in the loss of their 13-year-old daughter, Jessie, who died at the family home in the Moxee on Sunday of diphtheria. The remains were interred the evening of the same day. Another daughter 17 years old is at the present writing very ill from the same disease.

The infant child of N. N. Wilson died Sunday.

New Principal.

J. K. M. Berry will fill the position of principal in the high school next term in place of Mrs. Ella Stair. Mr. Berry is a graduate of the university of Michigan and until recently was principal of the high school at Bellingham. He comes highly recommended.

Miss Zelah Bisbee of Spokane is to be the new teacher of mathematics in the high school.

State Fair Board Meet.

The Washington State Fair board held a business meeting in the offices of the secretary Wednesday evening. The resignation of E. J. Wyman as treasurer was accepted and Miles Cannon was appointed to fill the vacancy. E. J. Wyman was elected to the office of president and Mr. Janek qualified as a member of the board.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Mrs. Elsie Dennis Dies in the Flames Early Wednesday Morning--Mr. Dennis Badly Burned.

By the explosion of a lamp in the hands of Newton E. Dennis at an early hour Wednesday morning he lies at the home of his stepfather, Hiram Carpenter, on north Fourth street, frightfully burned about the head, hands and arms, and Mrs. Dennis, his wife, was burned almost to a crisp.

The story of the frightful accident as told by Mr. Dennis is that about 1:30 o'clock in the morning he got up and went outside of the house. He returned in a few moments and lighted the lamp, also a cigarette. After taking a few puffs from the cigarette he picked up the lamp and started up stairs to bed. Just as he reached the foot of the stairs the lamp exploded, scattering burning oil about the walls and on his clothing. He rushed up the stairs calling loudly to his wife in an endeavor to awaken her so that she might escape. After reaching the top of the stairs he turned and began descending but tripped and fell into what was at that time a blazing hallway. The flames and smoke nearly suffocated him and at the same time burned him terribly, but he struggled to the front door, which he unlocked, and as quickly as possible threw himself into the irrigating ditch which runs in front of the property. The water extinguished the burning clothes, but his burns were by this time agonizing. Getting upon his feet, however, he began to loudly cry for help. His cries awoke some of the neighbors, among whom was Harry Mitchell, who as quickly as possible, turned in an alarm. The department responded promptly and soon had the blaze under control, but not until the house had been gutted completely.

Mr. Dennis continued on down Yakima avenue shrieking in agony and fright, until reaching the corner of First street when his burns were dressed at Sloan's drug store, after which he was taken to the home of his stepfather.

While the firemen were fighting the blaze nothing was said of there being anyone within the building and it was not until the fire was entirely out and the firemen went into the house with lanterns that the body of Mrs. Dennis was discovered. It was an almost unrecognizable mass, being terribly burned. As soon as possible the remains were removed to Shaw & Flint's morgue.

How the woman came to be in the building will probably always be a mystery, for there were windows at the front leading onto a porch, and also a window at the back. The body being found on the floor at the foot of the bed is evidence that she had awakened and attempted to escape. It is said by those acquainted with her that she was subject to fainting spells and the supposition is that while trying to get to one of the windows she had fainted through fright and was thus burned to death.

The accident is a particularly distressing one. Mrs. Dennis was about twenty years of age and had been married about two years. They had lived in the burned house but a short time, moving there from the east side.

The deceased was a daughter of Chas. Higginbottom of Kettle Falls, Stevens county, who was immediately notified of the shocking affair.

The scene of the fire was on north Ahtanum avenue and the house was owned by Jasper Mikkelsen, who places his loss at about $8500. There was no insurance.

Mr. Dennis is in a critical condition, it being not certain that he will recover. His head is very badly burned as are also his hands and other portions of his body are severely blistered. He is suffering intense pain continually.

May be Heard Next Week.

The case of the City of North Yakima against various property owners on North and South Second street will probably be heard before Judge Rudkin next week.

This is a case wherein the city has commenced suit to compel the payment of an assessment levied against the said property owners for macadamizing the street. The property owners refuse to pay the assessment on the ground that the contractor who did the work was allowed to depart from the plans and specifications on which the assessment was made. Judge Rudkin will be asked to decide whether these departures invalidated the assessment or not, the city claiming they did not.

Attorney Snively is looking after the interests of the property owners.

Canals Damaged.

The heavy rains during Sunday night and Monday did considerable damage to irrigating canals in the Naches valley. The crops, too, suffered somewhat.

SUPERIOR COURT NEWS

Convicted Prisoners Receive Sentences—Special Sitting of the Court Commenced Yesterday.

Wednesday afternoon Judge Rudkin imposed sentences on the prisoners convicted at the regular court sittings. James Gingles, the horse thief, was given 10 years, the judge scoring the prisoner when sentencing him.

John L. Anderson, the self convicted rapist of his niece, was sentenced to 19 years.

S. J. Graham was given 17 years for raping Ella Morton of the Cowiche. The judge refused the prisoner time to raise money for an appeal.

Matthew Nooner was given four years for passing counterfeit money.

H. H. Williams, convicted of raping 14-year-old Lottie Davis, was sentenced to seven years. Notice of appeal was given by defendant's attorney.

Fred Smith and Mueller, partners of Nooner, were given two years and one year respectively.

Leon Macey, one of the Gingles gang, received a sentence of five years.

The court convened in special session yesterday to hear evidence in a number of cases, some of which are of a criminal nature. A special jury of 18 was empaneled.

Sheriff Grant will leave either today or Monday morning for Walla Walla where the convicted men who have not appealed will serve out their sentences.

White Bluffs Townsite.

The owners of the townsite of White Bluffs have begun active work on the building of a town at that place. They have appointed "Doc" E. K. Current of this city their agent and in conversation with that gentleman this week he had this to say of the prospects of the place:

"I have been appointed agent for the townsite company and am personally interested in its future growth. I have been supplied with a plat of the proposed town and have secured office room with W. C. Gilbert on west Yakima avenue for the transaction of business. There have been a number of lots already disposed of and others are going rapidly. Besides the townsite lots, there are some 16,000 acres of farm land adjoining which are for sale, and these will be disposed of in 40 and 80 acre tracts.

"The question of irrigation has been practically solved. Engineers are now on the ground to determine the feasibility of running a ditch from Priest Rapids to White Bluffs, and if this is found not to be feasible then an electric plant will be established at the rapids which will run a number of pumps to be stationed along the river. Either of the plans will furnish ample water, but the ditch is preferred.

"Passenger traffic it to be looked after by the placing of a 25-passenger boat on the river to run between Pasco and White Bluffs, and a stage route will also be established. We expect the town to grow very rapidly."

The Fourth at Fairview.

Although there was no general celebration of the Fourth at Fairview this year, the residents of that little burg were not without amusements befitting the day.

J. M. Brown entertained a number of his neighbors and friends during the afternoon and evening, there being an abundance of good things to eat and drink provided by the genial host, and the little folks were in addition supplied with numerous noise-making implements peculiar to the day. A pleasant day was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Remy entertained a number of North Yakima and Seattle friends in a manner highly appreciated by those present. Pyrotechnics was no small feature of the day's enjoyment.

BASEBALL GAMES

Ellensburg Wins on Sunday and North Yakima on Monday—Scores 6-4 and 2-6.

Baseball enthusiasts were treated to two very good exhibitions of this popular sport in this city—one Sunday afternoon and the other on the afternoon of the Fourth—Ellensburg being the opposing team in each case.

The game Sunday went to the visitors by a score of 6 to 4. It was a hard fought battle in which were many brilliant plays and the game was not won until the last man was out in the ninth inning.

North Yakima was much more unfortunate than their opponents, this being particularly noticeable in throwing, there being three instances in which a thrown ball hit a runner and these were responsible for three runs. On several occasions it looked as though the score would be much higher but snappy fielding prevented it. The attendance was fair but not what it should have been considering the article of ball furnished. The score by innings follows:

Ellensburg 1-0-0-0-3-0-0-1-1-6
North Yakima 1-0-0-1-1-0-0-1-0-4

The second game was won by the home team by a score of 6 to 2. This victory was largely due to the battery work of Goins and Gains. The throwing to bases of Gains was perfect, base runners being compelled to hug the bag very close to prevent an out. But few stolen bases were credited to Ellensburg.

Goins was effective at all times but particularly so when men were on bases. He pulled himself out of several nasty holes very gracefully and much to the delight of the fans. On three occasions there were men on second and third with no one out, but in neither case was a score made. This certainly showed good generalship.

Ellensburg proved no mean opponents and were in the game at all stages, two fast double plays being placed to their credit on the score sheet. But they could not hit when hits were needed and that tells the tale.

Following is the score:

PARKER THE MAN

The latest available news of the Democratic convention, secured just previous to the Democrat going to press last evening, was that Parker would in all probability be the presidential nominee, his strength growing hourly. The Turner boom was subsiding and it looked very much as though some middle western man would be nominated. A platform has been formulated and was submitted to an adjourned session of the delegates last evening, but the substance of it could not be obtained in time for publication this week.

There are lots of people living where frogs are plenty who do not know enough to catch the batrachians and broil their hind legs, a delicate tidbit which costs a dollar at a tony city restaurant.

A lot of college athletes thought they would take a turn in the harvest fields of Kansas during their summer vacation and found that the Kansas girls could stand fourteen hours' work in the harvest field better than they could.

Every man who is engaged in manufacturing or mercantile business finds that there is some money which it is harder to collect than it is to earn. On this line the farmer is fortunately exempt, for he is rarely asked to extend credit to those who buy of him.

Our tomato vines are off the ground this year, tied up to good stout stakes four feet high; then they are thoroughly pruned and cut back, and from the present outlook it is a good way to handle them. No rotten fruit this way, and the tomatoes are larger and smoother.

A wet and late spring threw haying, harvesting and corn plowing all together where we live, and a man hardly knew which way to turn or what to do. The result was in many cases that the corn was left to shift for itself, a lot of the timothy was left for seed, and the grain was taken care of.

Side by side, same soil, same rainfall in the semiarid belt in North Dakota, macaroni wheat last year gave thirty bushels per acre, which sold at 75 cents a bushel, and ordinary wheat twelve bushels an acre, which sold for 70 cents a bushel. This fact should open the eyes of the wheat growers up there.

The seven year drought in Australia which has just been broken by copious rains was most destructive to the stock interests of that country. Two cases are cited, one where a man who had 7,000 head of cattle had but seventy-five head left, and another who had 9,000 head who saved only 875 head. The losses on sheep were still more disastrous, in many sections the fences being hung for miles with sheep pelts.

A flock of tame pigeons is in a way a pretty sight around a farm home stead, but we think they are more of a nuisance than anything else. Recently it has been pretty clearly demonstrated that they may not only be a nuisance in befouling the buildings, but a dangerous medium for the transmission of animal disease from one farm to another, a recent outbreak of hog cholera, being almost certainly traced to the passing of these birds from one farm yard to another.

The courts have decided that if you listen to a conversation between you and neighbors on a party telephone line and overhear one of them say that you are an old fool or a dishonest man you have no redress in law, because you have no right to place eavesdropper. In order to insure peace and good feeling in a community using a telephone line in common there are a good many things which may be true and which one may think which it is not best to send over the wire.

Every improvement made upon the railroads of the country, whether in the shape of straightening the line, lowering the grades, using heavier engines cars and rails, in the end reacts to the benefit of the producer whose commodities are shipped over the roads. That road which can most cheaply haul a ton of freight invariably fixes in the long run the rate at which such product shall be hauled, perhaps not all at once, but the ability to do the work for the least money as surely determines this question of freights as the ability to sell a given commodity for the least money fixes its value in the markets.

Time was, when the country was new that when a man found a bee tree he was allowed to claim it, cut the tree down and take the honey. It is not so now. Recently two men who entered into a neighbor's timber lot and cut down a bee tree, carrying off 127 pounds of honey, were arrested for trespass and also sued for the value of the tree and the honey. On the trial of the case they set up the defense that the honey was theirs by right of discovery. The court did not see it that way, and they had to pay $1 for committing the trespass, $5 for cutting down the tree, $20 for the honey and the costs in the case.

MARRIAGE LAWS ABROAD.

How Breach of Promise Cases Are Averted in Hungary.

"There are many curious and interesting facts regarding the marriage and divorce laws of foreign countries," said R. J. Brown, who recently returned from a trip abroad, where he made a study of the question.

"Breaches of promise are averted in Hungary by an express declaration of the civil marriage act that the relations created by a betrothal do not give the right to command the conclusion of a marriage, but if either party withdraws from an engagement without just reasons he or she is bound to grant compensation to the extent of the outlay incurred. Divorce in the English sense does not exist, but the courts can decree the personal separation of a married couple without dissolving the bonds of matrimony.

"A curious law prevailing in France provides that before being married children of a family, although over age, shall seek in respectful and formal terms the advice of their father and mother. It makes no difference, however, whether the consent of parents is given, for the couple can be married a month after under any circumstances. This is also the case in the Netherlands. A divorce further entitles the innocent party to recover all the presents he or she may have made.

"According to the constitution of the Netherlands, the civil marriage must always precede the religious ceremony. The latter, indeed, is left entirely to the conscience of the parties concerned. There is also a law providing that no man or woman under thirty can marry without the consent of parents. If the consent be refused, the couple have to appear before a judge, who advises them as he thinks best.

"Many countries have now abolished all marriage fees. This is the case in Norway, while in the Netherlands certain days in the week are set apart when persons may be married without payment."—Indianapolis News.

BENTON AND BARNUM.

How the Showman Got a Free Ad. From the Statesman.

James G. Blaine said that after Fremont became famous as a pathfinder Benton, who had opposed his marriage with his daughter Jessie, became reconciled with his son-in-law and took great pride in his achievements as a western explorer.

The square on the southern side of Pennsylvania avenue, now occupied by Center market, was then used as a show ground for circuses and other peripatetic exhibitions. About this time P. T. Barnum was beginning his career as a showman, and as Colonel Benton was walking down Pennsylvania avenue opposite this show ground he was attracted by the words "John C. Fremont" uttered in a loud voice by a showman standing at the door of a small tent, in front of which was a garish caricature of a nondescript animal supposed to represent the "woolly horse" discovered by Fremont in the recesses of the Rocky mountains.

Benton stalked across the avenue and listened with great disgust to the statement by Barnum, who was his own doorkeeper and solicitor, that inside the tent could be found the greatest natural curiosity in the world, "the woolly horse captured by General Fremont and now on exhibition!"

Benton denounced Barnum as an impostor and denied that his son-in-law had discovered any such animal. Barnum, who did not know Benton, told him flippantly to pay his quarter and go into the show or make less noise, whereupon the indignant statesman called upon the police to arrest Barnum, and a large crowd assembled to witness the extraordinary scene. The police refused to interfere, and Barnum received a free advertisement, much to his gratification and profit.—George G. Vest in Philadelphia Post.

A Problem For the Holland Traveler.

In passing through the narrow, crooked little streets of Leuwarden I chanced upon a sign that held my attention and compelled thought. It read, "L. v. d. Zwaan, Morgen Wekker." This is faultless Dutch for Morning Waker, and it signifies that L. v. d. Zwaan will, for a paltry sum, leave his bed in the frosty hours of early morning and, putting sweet sleep behind him, arouse his slumberous clients. Truly, a worthy calling! Yet, tell me, you who are versed in occult things, who or what in this somnolent land wakes the morgen wekker?—Edward Penfield in Scribner's.

His Advice.

"You're neglecting your business," the old man declared. "I admit it," the young man replied frankly. "The fact is, I'm engaged, and naturally the girl gets my time and thoughts."

"For heaven's sake, marry her," advised the old man. "Then you'll have no trouble keeping away from her."—Chicago Post.

Statistics.

"What do statistics show?" inquired the man who was warming up to his subject.

"As a rule," answered the man who is always doubtful, "they don't show much except patience and industry on the part of the man who collected them."—Washington Star.

Even Worse.

"I cannot sing the old songs," warbled the young woman at the piano. But this was small relief, for the new ones she sang were even worse.—Chicago Tribune.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

How the Political Situation Appeared on Saturday Last to our Correspondent in the Capital City.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., July 1.

The republican program for the summer having been securely settled, the leaders of that party are now quietly observing the hostile preparations at St. Louis. Whom will they have to confront? Parker and Hearst have each about one-third of the entire membership of the convention, but the man who wins the nomination must have two-thirds.

It is undeniable that Grover Cleveland's name is mentioned oftener than it was a week ago, both by democrats and republicans. Ex-mayor Van Wyck of New York has bet $400 to $4,000 that Mr. Cleveland will be nominated and $2,000 even that he will be elected if nominated. On the other hand, some of the foremost leaders of Tammany have put forward McClelland as their champion against the field, in spite of the fact that he was born in Germany. On Tuesday there was a conference of prominent democrats in this city in which Senator Gorman, ex-Senator Smith of New Jersey, Col. Guffey and Wm. Brennan of Pennsylvania and John R. McLean of Ohio participated. Parker's campaign managers, Hill, Belmont and Sheehan, were conspicuous by their absence. They will leave for St. Louis tomorrow and will probably find there Col. Bryan and also John Sharp Williams, whom they have slated for temporary chairman. He is pushed to the front to answer Root's specious address at Chicago. The candidates whose names must be presented on the first ballot at St. Louis because the delegates are under instruction are Parker, Hearst, Olney, Gray, Wall and Cockrell. Gorman and McClelland will also be in it—perhaps also the little giant, Folk of Missouri, who made such a sensation by his arrest of corruptionists on Tuesday.

The fact that Cleveland and Folk vociferously protest, declaring that they will not accept the nomination under any circumstances is very likely to increase their chances of being called upon to make the race, perhaps in company. There are occasions when declinations do not count, and the American people incline to admire a man who is large enough to decline a presidential nomination.

The great feat of Folk this week in cornering a lot more of bribers and blackmailers in St. Louis is the sensation of the day in official Washington. There are exciting conferences at the White House over the astonishing confession of Charles A. Gutke, member of the Missouri legislature that when first elected he became a member of an organization of nineteen delegates for the purpose of selling legislation. He gives the names of the bribers and says: "The combine got $20,000 for passing the suburban loop bill; on the Union avenue bill we got $18,000; on the Central Traction bill we got $75,000; on the Third street bill we got $15,000; on the lighting bill we got $47,000; on the suburban bill we were to get $75,000, which is now in the safe deposit box in Lincoln Trust company, being placed there with the agreement that it should be turned over to us when the bill passed." Every large corporation in St. Louis was held up by these plunderers and made to pay. Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk now gets the benefit of the revelations and there is no knowing when the hurrah for him will end.

Your correspondent yesterday met ex-Senator James K. Jones, just back from the west and asked him about the chances at St. Louis. "Very slim," he said, "it isn't likely that the convention will know enough to take advantage of the obvious opportunities." In reply to the question whether he would take off his coat and go into the campaign, he said, "Guess not, I've done as much for my party as ought to be expected of any man." I could not help saying, "Yes, Senator, you have served it in one office and another thirty-three years—a third of a century." It seemed to me a more polite way of putting it than to say, "Your party has kept you in office for a third of a century," which would not have been nice. It was said to find in such a hostile mood the old gentleman who has for so many years held up the standards of his party. He spoke bitterly of Parker and Cleveland, and didn't care which.

Very little has been heard about Richard Olney for the past month or two, but he is not by any means an impossible candidate. At the banquet at Cambridge on Tuesday he followed Taft with great effectiveness. The Secretary had characterized our mission in the Philippines as a philanthropic enterprise for the benefit of the Filipinos. Olney promptly asked him where the constitution authorized the government to turn itself into a missionary to benighted tribes. He then asked, "If a strong nation has a right to appropriate the sovereignty or territory of a weak nation, is not a rule which is good for nations good for individuals, and why may not the lives and property of weaker and 'inferior citizens' in any community be rightfully appropriated for their benefit or the benefit of the stronger and superior?" Secretary Taft did not answer. Perhaps he could not answer without justifying human slavery.

Matthew Stanley Quay was never an economical person. He was rather a high liver and "crumbed his bread with a large, wasteful hand" like Mr. Manisty. But he died worth $800,000, and had never earned $10 in his life outside of politics. On an average salary of $5,000 he saved $25,000 a year. He was never tried but once for misappropriating public funds, and then was acquitted. He gave considerable money to the church. His pace.

The directors and officers of the Sloum have been arrested but the officials are still walking about the streets unmolested. Leiter's will costs over $18,000,000. Pretty good for a man whose income began with a weekly wage of $3 a week. After years of neglect, Pierre l'Enfant, who laid out this city, and "Boss" Shepherd, who reconstructed it, are to have monuments in the parks they made.

A Few Sad Facts.

The saddest thing which has occurred in Washington politics for years is told in the statement that Levi Ankeny has been made national committeeman from the state of Washington.

Not alone is this said on account of the state. Of course it is admitted that Ankeny would have about as much influence on that body as a rabbit. He might tell the price of votes in the state of Washington, and after he has done that his fund of campaign knowledge would have been completely exhausted. Levi wouldn't know a campaign speech from Hamlet's soliloquy if he should run across the two, and his whole knowledge of campaign methods could be summed up in the words "Show me the votes and tell me the price."

But if Ankeny can't do anything, he can surely keep some things from being done, and if he never does anything else it is an assured fact that he will keep R. F. Grossep from being federal judge.

We all have our ambitions. We have all marked out some lines which we desire to follow in life. Henry Prince and Lou Cohen want to be the greatest retail cigar dealers in the world. Bill Russell would like to be an actor, and he will keep on trying until he is a hundred. Tom Moore would like to be a barber, and he may make it yet. And so things go.

Now, it isn't at all remarkable that B. F. Grossep would like to be federal judge. He is built along the proper lines—physically. But either the idea came to him late in life, or he has peculiar ideas as to what kind of a man a federal judge should be. It may be that the big political jobber for a transcontinental line is the stuff that federal judges are made of. It may be that Teddy would allow the appointment to go to a corporation tool. It may be that Grossep would have stood some chance of winning out. But if he would, it would have been a disgrace to the federal government.

Grossep is a good enough chap, as good chaps go. He has a faculty for making friends. He is a man of brains. But while many men like him, few admire him. Like the member of the legislature whose vote is for sale, Grossep is a necessary evil. But there should be a sort of a deadline established for the chief of a political bureau, and the federal judgeship should be on the other side of the deadline from B. F. Grossep. And, thanks to Ankeny, it is there, and it is likely to remain there for a number of years, at any rate.—Seattle Argus, (Rep.)

ENGLISH AS SPOKEN.

It Is In Scotland, Says a Critic, That It Is Heard at Its Best.

The query "Where is the prettiest English spoken?" is answered by a writer in the London News, and, strange to say, it is not in England, if the writer be accepted as an authoritative critic.

It was the opinion of Sir Morell Mackenzie that those who should speak English most musically were the inhabitants of Badenoch, Inverness-shire, Scotland. They had the reputation for centuries of being perfect speakers of English; but, the writer says, he must now go to the glens branching northward from the Caledonian canal to find the language spoken in its purity.

"In the beautiful glen of Moriston in particular one has noted the most exquisite speech it seems possible to imagine. There is an almost total absence of dialect and vocal disfigurements, though a quaint, delicately marked rise and fall of the voice are very faintly noticeable. The language used is extraordinarily pure and free from alien words, which is attributable to the fact that the people acquire their English direct from books and that so far dialect contaminations have not penetrated the glen."

The writer has a good word to say of Celtic pronunciation of English generally: "The charm of Irish English is undeniable. It has a softness that appeals irresistibly to the ear, but unfortunately it is linked with a certain element of dialect which just places it below perfection."

Pocket Furnaces.

Curious hand furnaces are used in China during the winter months, chiefly in the north, when the fire, in place of being in the house, as we have it, is carried about the person beneath the thickly padded cotton garments or in the hand. At times it is placed beneath the chair on which one is seated. This contrivance, resembling the charcoal pans formerly used before the days of the pit coal by the Hertfordshire straw plaiters, was first introduced to our notice when resting at a village in the Fukien province, which, before we had investigated the cause, we noted as a place remarkable for the deformity of its inhabitants, old men and women with strange swellings projecting in the most unaccountable places. Our speculations were, however, speedily set at rest and the matter satisfactorily explained by an old gentleman, who removed his greatcoat and disclosed a small copper furnace secured round his waist with a band and neatly covered with basket work. This artificial mode of heating the body is only resorted to in time of extreme cold, as on ordinary occasions the people deem their thick clothing a sufficient protection during winter.—Golden Penny.

A Quaint People.

The heart of Brittany never changes, but its face is rapidly losing many of its prominent characteristics with the leveling influence of the French republic. It is only far out of the beaten track, now, or on special occasions, like fetes, that you see universally the costumes and customs of the old Armorican peninsula. Only an hour's journey from Quimper, the modernized chief town of Finistere, and you are among the Bigoudines, a people whose dress suggests the Eskimos and Chinese, whose faces are strongly Mongolian in type and who in language, customs and beliefs seem to have no relation with the rest of France. More and more the picturesque problem they present is coming to attract attention. Artists, students and tourists alike are fascinated by it.—Andre Saglio in Century.

A Stickler For Rank.

It is not in this country alone that the notion of equality prevails. The London Figaro reports the following instance:

As a magnificent steamer, the property of the Peninsular and Oriental company, was steaming into Southampton harbor a grimy coal lighter floated immediately in front of it. An officer on board the steamer, seeing this, shouted:

"Clear out of the way with that barge!"

The lighter man, a native of the Emerald Isle, shouted in reply, "Are ye the captain of that vessel?"

"No," answered the officer.

"Then spake to yer equals," said the lighter man. "I'm the captain of this."

A Philosopher.

The old man was sitting on the roof gazing placidly across the rushing waters.

"Washed all your fowls away?" asked the man in the boat.

"Yes, but the ducks swam," smiled the old man.

"Tore up your plum trees?"

"Don't mind it much. They said the crop would be a failure."

"But the food! It is up to your windows!"

"Well, them windows needed washing anyway, my friend."

Tough Cases Cost More.

"Salvation seems to be mighty costly to some, while it's free to others," growled the man who was asked to contribute to the church.

"Of course," replied the deacon. "It's a bigger job to save some people than it is to save others."—Chicago Post.

Signs.

Irate Watchman—Look a-her! Don't you see that sign? It's big enough and black enough! It says, "No Smoking!" Agreeable Trespasser—I know it does, my friend, but, really, you must not believe in signs. Don't you see that I am smoking nevertheless?—Cincinnati Times-Star.

A WONDERFUL QUERN

HOW THE NORWEGIANS EXPLAIN WHY THE SEA IS SALT.

Magic Mill That Grind Out Riches For the Poor Brother While It Frightened the Rich One—The Salt-or Who Made It Grind Salt.

There is an old fashioned Norwegian folk tale that accounts in a very curious way for the salt in the sea. According to the story, the waters of the ocean were not always salt. But long ago there were two brothers living away up in the northland. One was very rich, and the other was very poor. One brother had herds of cattle and flocks of fat mountain sheep, while the poor one had just about nothing at all except a wife and ever so many children.

One Christmas eve there was nothing in the house for them to eat, and the poor man's wife said to her husband: "If I had a rich brother, as you have, I would go and ask him for something for these poor children to eat. Tomorrow will be Christmas day, and there is not a crust of bread in the house."

So he went to his brother and told him how much they needed his help. The rich man gave him a nice fitch of bacon and told him to go to an old magician who lived somewhere in the mountains. I do not know why he sent the poor man to the magician, for the latter did not bear a very good name in the neighborhood. However, when he came to the magician's stronghold everybody about the place wanted to buy his fitch of bacon. He could not understand why it was, but he thought if there was so much demand for the bacon he would at least make the best bargain he could for it.

"Well," he said, "I ought by rights to take this bacon home to my good dame for our dinner tomorrow, but since you all seem to have set your hearts on it I suppose you must have it. If I sell it, however, I want a good price for it."

They offered him a good round sum, but that would not do.

"I will let you have it," he said, "if you will give me that quern yonder behind the door."

A quern is one of the things that it would be very hard to find nowadays, because they have gone out of fashion. A quern is a mill for grinding corn by hand, and it consists of two large stones, an upper and a lower one, the upper one having a handle by which it may be turned around on the lower stone, grinding the corn or grain between them.

The old magician at first laughed outright at the idea of any one thinking that he would part with his quern, but the owner of the bacon insisted that he would be satisfied with nothing less than that, so he finally got it.

When he reached his own door the clock was striking 12 and his wife was waiting for him, ready to scold him for staying so long.

"What in the world kept you so long?" she asked. "And what are we going to do with that old quern when we have no corn to grind?"

Then he told her of his trading the bacon for the quern. She was dreadfully put out about it and especially at the loss of the bacon.

"Just wait a minute," said her husband, "before you begin to complain, and see if I did not do right this time."

And, putting the quern on the table, he told it to grind enough good things to make a first rate dinner for twelve hungry mouths. His wife could hardly believe her eyes as she stood there and watched the quern grinding out dainties enough to last a week.

The rich brother chanced to hear how well his poor brother's family was living, and when he came and saw what a grand table they kept he was envious and wanted to know where they got the money to buy the things. For a long time they kept the secret of the old quern, but somehow it got out at last. They were so proud of it that they could not help telling all about it, and the rich brother insisted on buying the quern. Finally they let him have it for $300.

It kept on grinding for its new owner, but he was afraid of it, never feeling sure of what it would do next, so he made his brother take it back at the same price. The poor man was glad to get it back again, and it ground out untold riches for himself and his family. They had everything they desired, among other things a golden house to live in, and the people came from every land to see the magnificence of the family that owned the wonderful quern.

One day a stranger, an old seaman who had been all around the then known world, came to see the quern and wanted it to grind salt.

It is supposed that the owner of the quern was rich enough by this time, for he let it go for a moderate sum, and, fearing that he might repent of having sold it, the old sailor put to sea at once with his prize, anxious to know how it would work. When he had sailed so far out that no one could reach him, he said to the quern:

"Grind salt and grind both fast and good."

No sooner had he given the order than the quern began to grind heaps and heaps of salt all over the deck until the ship was ready to sink to the bottom of the sea. Scared half to death, the old sailor begged the quern to stop grinding salt. He got down on his knees to it.

But there was no use talking to it. It went on grinding, grinding, and soon the vessel went down with its weight of salt. And the quern still keeps on grinding in the depths of the ocean, and that is why the sea is salt.—Virginia McSherry.

It is a good plan occasionally to take your troubles to some one who will point out that you are to blame for having them.—Atchison Globe.

A City in Itself.

Have you ever stopped to consider that a modern express train, like the St. Louis special, is practically a city in itself—a place where you can sleep, chat, smoke, read, dine and go a-visiting, just about as you would at your own home?

It makes little difference what you want, you have only to summon a porter and he will—swiftly and smilingly—get it for you.

A Trip Through Yellowstone Park

is what everyone hopes to have—some day. It is the most wonderful trip in the world. There are more than 3000 square miles of weird, marvelous, unimaginable things that can be seen nowhere else, therefore if one ever sees them one must go to the Park, in the heart of the magnificent Rockies with snow tipped peaks all around. If Old Faithful geyser, a Paint Pot, Mud Volcano, or Emerald Pool were to be found in Lincoln park, Chicago; Central park, New York; or Fairmount park, Philadelphia; the people would flock to see it or them by tens of thousands. For a very small sum, comparatively, all these and hundreds more of nature's unduplicated marvels can be seen between June 1 and September 30 of each year, and one will enjoy, to boot, the best coaching trip in the country.

The Northern Pacific folder on Yellowstone Park, just issued, is a new, right up to date, finely illustrated dissertation on this Yellowstone Park trip. It is not descriptive, but deals with the detailed, technical matters everyone needs to know about such a trip. It tells all about the hotels, the stage coaches, the roads, the cost of the tour; where the geysers, the waterfalls, the bears, the canyons are, and where the trout fishing is found. We have printed thousands of this beautiful leaflet and want everybody interested to have a copy, and it can be obtained by sending A. M. Cleland, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn., two cents with proper address.

"Wonderland 1904" which is a very fine pamphlet of 116 pages, descriptive of the Northwest, including the Park, will be sent for six cents.

North Yakima, Wash., July 9 1904.

Charles Sweeney, the millionaire miner and heretofore political supporter and protégé of John L. Wilson, has pulled off his coat and has entered the fight for Senator Foster's seat in the national house of lords.

As a result the g. o. p. politicians of the state, especially those "out for the stuff," are all agog with excitement for they scent another boodle campaign. Sweeney, they know, will tap his barrel and as he has the reputation of being free-handed great things are expected. The announcement of the Sweeney candidacy, it is needless to say, has brought confusion and consternation into the camp of every other senatorial candidate in the state, for the reason that they all recognize that the seat must be bought and that Sweeney with his great wealth is likely to be the highest bidder.

Sweeney, until recently, trained with John L. Wilson. In fact he has been the bottle holder and chief financial backer of the puglist statesman in a number of the latter's hard fights. Wilson, of course, used Sweeney merely to attain his own ends. That fact seems to have gradually dawned on the Spokane man and with the acquisition of great wealth he determined to quit playing the role of "good angel" to Wilson and take the leading part himself. The success of Ankeny as a "money candidate" doubtless influenced him to enter the race. In the light of past experience Sweeney unquestionably has a right to assume that the senatorships of this state are for sale.

Sweeney is reputed to be several times a millionaire and in close affinity with the Rockefeller mining interests. The fact that he was an enthusiastic supporter of Bryan in 1896 is not likely to prove a serious stumbling block to his present ambition. The known fact that he has the "dough" and the backing of the Rockefeller interests will be enough. No doubt the new aspirant fully realizes that it will be necessary for him to wade in corruption up to his neck before he can seize the coveted toga now worn with so little credit by the saw-mill senator. If he don't know it he will be sure to find it out.

The people of the lower Yakima valley are now engaged in an effort to build a new line of railway from a point at or near Toppenish, via Sunnyside to Prosser. In order to make a success of the undertaking and construct the proposed line the people of that section of Yakima county will be expected to assist the enterprise by liberal purchases of the company's stock.

That such a road, if built, would be a great convenience as well as a source of profit to the people of Sunnyside, can hardly be doubted. On account of their distance from the main line of the Northern Pacific, necessitating a long and expensive haul for their products, the farmers of that section have been laboring under a marked disadvantage. This condition the building of the "belt" line would remove. As to whether such a road would prove a paying investment or not the Democrat has no means of knowing. However, the presumption is very strong that it should, for it would traverse one of the richest agricultural sections of the world, nearly every acre of which is highly productive.

The promoters of this enterprise should not assume that the people of North Yakima are unfriendly to the construction of the new line of road, for the majority are not. They know that the Sunnyside district is very much in need of the road and they also know that what will help any part of the Yakima valley in the way of development will eventually help every part of it, and especially the chief commercial center. This, we believe, is the just and proper view to take of the matter from the standpoint of North Yakima. If we can't help we should, at least, not "knock." This last sentence, we might add, is for the especial benefit of one of our local contemporaries.

The conditions are ripe now in Yakima for a general movement in favor of good roads.

The matter of roads is the only thing in which the Yakima country is not up to date. For the most part our country roads, especially at certain seasons of the year, are in a most deplorable condition, so bad in fact that travel for loaded teams is difficult if not quite impossible.

If this condition of things is allowed to continue it will interfere seriously with our future prosperity. Such conditions must not be permitted to continue. We can't afford it. Good roads are expensive to build, but bad roads are more expensive still in the long run.

The Commercial club of this city, after a long period of inactivity has begun a campaign for good roads and in this movement it should have the moral as well as the financial support of every citizen. The people of North Yakima, especially the property holding class and the business people, should take a lively interest in this subject for selfish reasons if nothing else. To such people good roads means money. It means safe and sure returns on money invested and a greater sale of goods. North Yakima is yet simply a country town that lives on the surrounding country—hence the necessity of good roads.

There are a number of roads leading to the city that need attention, but the one between here and Union gap needs it the worst. This is a road on which traffic is heavy and its present condition for the most part is disgraceful. Even at this time of the year its condition in places is enough to make a pious man who travels it, swear, and in bad weather it is simply intolerable. The truth of the matter is that if North Yakima wishes or expects to hold the trade of the rich country below the gap this road must be put in proper shape, and the time to do it is now. Let us all try to do something to make better roads. It is not fair that all the expense should fall on a few. If you are interested in the welfare of the town and the country and are called on by the committee for help, give up something, for it will pay you to do it. Just remember dear people that for the most of you this country has done a great deal. Don't swell up and think you have done it all yourselves, for you haven't, for if it were not for the good fortune we all enjoy of living in a land that flows with milk and honey the most of us would still be as poor as grasshoppers.

Dave Larrimer, "the politician" of the Spokesman Review, takes a fall out of Col. Robertson in the following very vigorous language:

"That Governor McBride will identify himself openly with the democratic party is the fervent hope expressed by the Yakima Republic, edited by Colonel W. W. Robertson, ex-democrat, and now a valiant shouter for the railroad lobby faction of the republican party. Colonel Robertson says he wishes the democratic party harm; therefore he hopes that Governor McBride will join it.

"Colonel Robertson is entitled to credit for his courage. His hatred of Governor McBride is no greater than that of a dozen other lobby chatters who edit newspapers in various sections of the state. But he valorously gives voice to his inward feelings, while his colleagues, with more discretion, are trying to hold in line the votes of those who followed Governor McBride to defeat at the Tacoma convention. They realize, if Colonel Robertson does not, that Albert E. Mead and his associates on the Farrell ticket can not be elected without the votes of the McBride supporters.

"The bitterness of the renegade animates Colonel Robertson. There was no more ardent democrat than he in the state until 1896, when he found it profitable to turn republican. Since then no denunciation of democracy has been too savage for him to give utterance to. Until a year ago he was an ardent McBride man. Then again he found it to his interest to change front, and since then he has exhausted the vocabulary of abuse and vituperation in denunciation of McBride."

The democratic county central committee at a called meeting held in this city Saturday, July 2, decided that the party primaries should be held in the different precincts on Saturday, July 23, between the hours of 2 and 3 p. m. in the country precincts and all towns in the county other than North Yakima. In this city the time for holding the primaries was set for from 8 to 9 p. m. as the most convenient hour. It will be the duty of the ward or precinct committeemen in each instance to announce where the primary will be held, also to fully advertise in his precinct the time and place.

According to the call issued the county convention will assemble July 28. The duty of that convention will be to select 19 delegates to the state convention that meets at Bellingham August 2. It will not nominate a county and legislative ticket. That duty will be left to a subsequent convention to be called later.

This paper is still of the opinion that it would be better to have but one set of primaries, leaving the nomination of a county ticket to an adjourned session of the convention. However, the edict has gone forth from the regularly constituted authority and that settles it.

The Fourth of July has come and gone and the citizens of North Yakima have reason to feel proud of the patriotism displayed here on that occasion. The program of sports was carried out in its entirety without a hitch and not an accident marred the pleasure of the day. The city was crowded with visitors from all parts of the county and all have naught but words of praise for the manner in which they were entertained. The success attending the celebration of the Fourth just passed will no doubt prove an incentive for future doings on that day.

The merchant who always says advertising does not pay is always ready to pound the mail order houses that get all their business through advertising. A business man whose business "won't stand advertising" makes a very sorry figure in any community. A business that won't stand advertising is a mighty good business to avoid and it is generally by the people who buy. But it is true that some advertising does not pay. The ad that sounds as if it was written just to help the editor, the ad that does not tell the truth, the ad that gives no description of goods, no reasons, no price, no inducements, does not pay. The up-to-date merchant, who does not advertise to help the editor, but to help himself; who spends time and takes care in preparing his ads, has no trouble to make advertising pay. He wastes no breath "cussing" the mail order houses, but fights them with their own weapons and wins.—Adrian Democrat.

The editor of this family journal hid himself away to St. Louis, leaving here Sunday. He goes to witness the battle of the giants that met this week in the Missouri city. There is enough of the Irishman about our editor to enjoy a good fight when he sees one and that is what takes him to St. Louis. After the fun is over he will take a spin through the big fair. Later he will visit relatives at Kansas City, returning home about July 20.

The transformation is painless, except that his chest has of late become quite rigid and a long breath is impossible. The muscles have turned into cartilage and bone.

In making up the state ticket democrats should remember that the candidates for lieutenant governor ought to have a record on the railroad question which will justify the confidence of the people. A candidate for this office, who does not possess such a record, will drive hundreds of votes from the head of the ticket.—Coffax Commoner.

He Must Be Desperate.

Chairman Palmer of the Farrell railroad organization is passing through the Big Bend country, circulating the silly assertion that ex-Senator Turner is a railroad man. The fact that Chairman Palmer, fresh from the railroad councils, is out trumping up that story against Turner is conclusive proof that it is not true. If Turner were under railroad influence of any sort the Farrell forces would say never a word against him. They would be hard at work aiding his candidacy before the democratic convention, precisely as they worked to bring about the nomination of Mead in the republican convention.

Chairman Palmer must be hard up for resources to go over eastern Washington peddling such a silly story. Senator Turner's railroad record is a part of the history of this state. It began with his courageous and brilliant fight in the constitutional convention for state control of the transportation companies, and stands unbroken and consistent through all the years since Washington came into the Union. If he should be nominated by the democratic convention he will stand on a railroad commission platform whose meaning the people can not mistake, and his views will be made as plain to newcomers as they have been made plain in past years to pioneers and older residents.

Chairman Palmer will discover that he can not fool the voters of this state. He can not, on one hand, conceal the shameful facts of J. D. Farrell's control of the Tacoma convention and the state ticket nominated by that assembly. He can not, on the other hand, fool the intelligent voters with absurd stories told to discredit Senator Turner. His recent efforts along that line are as false and foolish, in fact, as were the attempts made by the same forces, before the Tacoma convention, to make it appear that Governor McBride had gone over to the railroads.—Spokesman Review.

An Ominous Quietude.

The question is asked, why was it that the Chicago convention was so devoid of enthusiasm? It seems to us that the question is easily answered. It is simply because Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate of the brain more than the heart. He is no such man as Blaine, or even Hanna, with the magnetic force that sways human nature by psychological effect. He is a cold, audacious, calculating and at times mendacious personality. His positiveness in opinion, his violation of social forms, his abuse of Gen. Miles and his insult to Senator Tiltman, his violation of law and sacredly-held traditional forms, indicate all this. Enthusiasm is an impulse of the soul which accelerates the heart-beats and makes the individual exhibit an excess of joy, that is different from the worked up manifestation, as the echo is of the cannon's peal, or a refractionary gleam from the sun's bright ray. The Chicago work was of the machine kind. Every detail was arranged and rehearsed at the White House and performed in the Auditorium. The press was authorized to supply all deficiencies and use such embellishments as experience and imagination suggested. They have done their work well, but it no more equals a reflex of true enthusiasm than the counterfeit note resembles the genuine. It merely discloses a revolution of wheels and pinions, the clank of chains and the click of springs, responsive to the cranks which impart motion to the train of cogs and belts. That the machine worked smoothly was owing to its careful adjustment and liberal supply of oil.

It did not, however, grind out that symphony of harmony and love and devotion that have characterized some former conventions, and the result will be discord, inharmonious, dissension and defeat. Mark the prediction.—Washington Standard.

Preparing For Hard Times.

The locomotive firemen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad recently invited the officers of the road to dinner. Percy R. Todd, one of the Vice Presidents of the road, is reported to have said during the course of his remarks:

"I want to say that there are many indications now that for the next few years hard times are ahead. Business is falling off everywhere. It would be well for your committee to remember that and to reckon with it in asking consideration of claims from the company."

If, as Mr. Todd says, the indications point to hard times, what is going to become of the prosperity argument which the Republican party has been employing so diligently? If business is falling off everywhere, how are they going to whoop it up for the full dinner pail? It will be noticed that he does not say that the hard times will last a few months [during the campaign], but he predicts hard times for the next few years.

The press dispatches report a large number of men discharged during the last few months, and we are told that clerks are being discharged in New York because business is dull. What can all this mean? Did not the people buy prosperity at an enormous price? Did they not elect a Republican administration for the express purpose of getting prosperity? Did they not turn down free silver, reject tariff reform, swallow imperialism and risk private monopolies just for prosperity? When a man sells his birthright for a mess of pottage he ought to be careful that the pottage does not get away. It looks as if the Republican leaders were unable to deliver the goods sold. How can men out of employment be expected to wear yellow hats and march in sound money parades? How can they be expected to hurrah for the Republican party with the trusts raising prices and discharging men? Verily, the Republican party will have a rocky road if "for the next few years hard times are ahead"—Olympia Standard.

Their Many Children.

Two young women sat together in a Euclid car. "How many children have you?" asked one.
"Twenty-two," was the reply. "How many have you?"
"Thirty-one," replied the other.
This attracted the attention of a motherly appearing woman seated near the stove. "Did I understand you to say that one of you had twenty-two children and you thirty-one?" she said. "Why, you don't look to be more than twenty-five years old apiece."
"We're school teachers," said one of the young women.—Cleveland Leader.

Proposed Horse Heaven Canal.

C. G. Wands and Ex-County Commissioner E. E. Kelso of Yakima county, registered at the Central hotel Thursday. Mr. Wands, who is an eminent civil engineer, is here to make the preliminary survey on the big Klickitat river near the Parrott place at the foot of Mt. Adams and will spend considerable of his time there this summer. About $6000 has been raised for the expense of the work. "This scheme is feasible," said Mr. Wands. "The parties employing me are moneyed men. If the survey that I am about to make corresponds with the investigations heretofore made there will be hardly a question about the canal being built. There is enough water in the Big Klickitat river to water a half million acres of land, but we will use only a part of it. The route of the canal will be such that all the valuable land tributary to the east side of the Klickitat river and on each side of the divide can be watered. It is estimated that at least 200,000 acres can be watered. The canal will touch the Glade and a part of the Horse Heaven countries. I will have a corps of men with me on the work during the greater part of the summer." Articles of incorporation of the Klickitat Development company were filed with the county auditor of Yakima county on June 23. The capital stock, as stated previously, for this preliminary work, is $15,000 divided into 150 shares of $100 each. The trustees named are Geo. W. Nelson of Seattle, E. E. Kelso and C. G. Wands of Yakima county. This company is organized to promote the scheme of building the Klickitat canal.—Golden-dale Agriculturalist.

Jefferson's Ten Rules.

declaration of independence and was the third president of the United States, also thought out these 10 rules, which every girl and boy would do well to remember and practice:

Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today.

Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.

Never spend money before you have earned it.

Never buy what you don't want because it is cheap.

Pride costs more than hunger, thirst and cold.

We seldom repent having eaten too little.

Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.

How much pain the evils have cost us that have never happened!

At the Garden Gate.

(By Roy B. Richardson.)

I spied him at my garden gate
All on a summer's morn;
And when he'd gone, such was my fate,
My heart with love was torn.

Another time that I was there—
It was a blithesome day—
He passed me by and spoke me fair,
And went his own sweet way.

And yet again it happened o'er
As I did pluck a rose;
And oh, I kissed the flower before
I held it to his nose.

He took the rose with winning smile
That quite ensnared my soul,
And thrust the bloom in gallant style
Within his buttonhole.

But ah! his words I cannot tell
Without a silent tear.
"I'll take it to my wife, if—well—
"If you don't mind, my dear!"

BETTER THAN ORATORY.

The Secret of One Clever Lawyer's Unvarying Success.

One of the most common defects of a recently admitted lawyer is a striving for oratorical display. A successful older practitioner endeavors, on the other hand, to give the jury a heart to heart talk. The ways of an eagle in the air, of a serpent upon a rock, of a ship in the midst of the sea and of a man with a maid are as A B C compared with the methods usually pursued by the twelve good men and true. It seems a trifle odd at first that a dozen individuals who separately are shrewd, sharp business men should collectively be guilty of the most absurd performances, but the fact must be reckoned on nevertheless.

A story is told of two farmers who were returning home, one of them from jury duty in a neighboring town. "Lawyer Smith is a great orator," said one—"a perfect Daniel Webster. My, how I hated to decide against him in the three cases he tried!"

"How about Lawyer Jones, who was on the other side?"

"Oh, shucks! Why of course he wins all his cases. I heard every one of 'em, and they were the simplest things. He just explained things to the jury. He didn't have to do any hard talking at all. You couldn't help but agree with him."—Success.

Galileo's Caustic Humor.

In a biography of Galileo some stories are told of the caustic humor of that bold investigator. Lotario Sarsi, a writer on science, having said that the Babylonians used to cook eggs by whirling them in a sling, Galileo replied: "The cause of such an effect is very remote from that to which it is attributed, and to find the true cause I shall reason thus: If an effect does not follow with us which followed with others at another time it is because in our experiments something is wanting which was the cause of the former success, and if only one thing is wanting to us that one thing is the true cause. Now we have eggs and slings and strong men to whirl them, and yet they will not become cooked; nay, if they were hot at first they more quickly become cold, and since nothing is wanting to us but to be Babylonians it follows that being Babylonians is the true cause why the eggs became cooked and not to the friction of the air, which is what I wish to prove."

Shorthand 2,000 Years Ago.

It is no doubt a surprise to most to learn that shorthand was known and practiced 2,000 years ago. Manilius, a contemporary of Caesar and Cicero, Virgil and Horace, asserts that some system of reporting very similar to our shorthand was in vogue in his days. Writing these words under the influence of Virgo and Mercury, he says they are—

In shorthand skilled, where little marks comprise Whole words, a sentence in a single letter lies,
And while the willing hand its aid affords,
Prevents the tongue to fix the failing words.

It is certainly a novel conception that Cicero's grand orations were committed to paper with as much skill as our modern stenographers boast.

A Story of Rossini.

In "Gossip From Paris During the Second Empire" A. B. N. Peat, the author, tells a story of Rossini, who was much dogged by the lion hunters: "Once a Russian lady outstripped the limits even of Rossini's patience and, having watched his daily promenade during several days, sent a message to his house expressive of her desire to be received by him. The reply to this strange communication was: 'I do nothing for nothing. If the lady brings me a fine bunch of asparagus she will be welcome, and she can take a view of me at her leisure.' Then pointing to his waist, which had attained a somewhat aldermanic rotundity, he added, 'The lady may even walk round me if she pleases, but I must have my asparagus.'"

Insect Traps.

Brazilian birds, fly catchers, display a brilliantly colored crest easily mistaken for a flower cup. Insects, attracted by what appears to be a freshly opened blossom, furnish the birds with food. An Asiatic lizard is entirely colored like the surface of the desert plains where it lives except that at each angle of the mouth blooms a brilliant red folding of the flesh exactly resembling a little flower that grows in the sand. Insects lured by the seeming flower are incontinently disillusioned when they settle upon it.

Appearances Against Him.

"Do you mean to intimate that the prisoner was intoxicated?"
"Well, appearances seemed against him."

"What appearances?"
"Well, for one thing he was holding a glass upside down trying to fill it from a tightly corked bottle."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sunday Closing Ordinance.

Rev. F. L. Hayden of the Presbyterian church is to preach on the above subject next Sunday evening and has forwarded the following invitation to the mayor and common council to be present:

To the Honorable Mayor and Members of the City Council. Gentlemen:—I am of the opinion that the most important question before us as citizens of this municipality is that of the proper observance of the Sabbath. To secure this end ought we to have a "Sunday Closing Ordinance?" I will discuss this question next Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church and I take great pleasure in extending to you a cordial invitation to attend this service and hear the reasons that may be adduced for such a councilmanic act. Yours for good government.
