PYTHIAN KNIGHTHOOD.

Address by Judge C. B. Graves, P. C., at Seattle, Feb. 17, 1893.

When asked, "What is Pythian knight-hood?" the question can be but half answered unless we go back three and twenty hundred years and recite the story of that grand incident that has been the pregnant theme of song, poetry and tradition for so many years; a story, perhaps, based both on facts and on some grand conception; the story of the unsullied friendship of Damon and Pythias.

This story is certainly founded upon some historic event, but whatever may have been set down by the historian the mind of man has been so busy with it for centuries that it speaks to us with added beauty, dignity and strength from the living canvas, the eloquent marble, the noble drama, and from the songs and imaginings of poetry. But when, less than three decades ago, a fraternity was founded to exemplify and perpetuate the teachings of that friendship, more was done to render that story famous than all that the art of man had devised before. Within so short a time has this organization been commenced, that is now so well known and whose jurisdiction extends over all of the North American continent and the adjacent islands of the seas, counts within its lines nearly a half million souls. It is to day surpassed in numbers of membership by one order—the Masonic—and is only equalled by another—the Odd Fellows—but in the ratio of progress it is not surpassed by any.

The aims and purposes of our order are broad and catholic and no creed of religion or politics erects a barrier at the door of this society to any applicant, and once within its portals no member surrenders his religious beliefs or changes his political faith.

In our fraternity this kind of thing is discouraged. We annihilate arbitrary social distinctions. We eliminate caste. Men are admitted upon the broad principle of good morals and right living.

We are taught the lesson that the son of toil is the peer of the son of fortune, and that manhood alone is supreme. No one is so powerful and no one so high in position; no one so weak and no one so lowly but that he may learn wisdom from the plot laid centuries ago in the cruelty of tyrants and the friendship of freemen in the fair Sicilian isle.

We have our ideals. We are mortals. Mortals in practice frequently fall far short of accomplishing their ideals; but the principles—the ideals—which we are taught are beautifully epitomized as follows: "Protect the weak and defend the right; watch with the sick and bury the dead; care for the widow and educate

SALUTATORY.

THE DAILY REPUBLIC was created solely for the use of the visiting and local Knights of Pythias. Its mission will have been accomplished four days hence, and it will relapse into innocuous desuetude immediately. We will make no apologies for its short life and much shorter columns of reading matter. It is simply our contribution to the Grand Lodge—and we hope it will merit more than a laugh at our expense. Good morning, ye goat riders.

THE PUBLISHERS.

Grand Keeper of Records and Seal A Beamer, of Sprague, arrived yesterday afternoon.

H. G. Mathies, the genial editor of the Pythian Herald, of Seattle arrived in the city this morning.

Col. E. P. Edsen and wife, of Seattle, will arrive this morning, and will be the guests of Auditor Ellis.

W. H. Chapman has, perhaps, the most novel decorations in the city. The shield over the prescription case is particularly unique.

A shooting affray on Friday evening last startled the inhabitants west of the track. Nobody was hurt and no arrests were made.

Those of the local Knights who ordered cards at this office are informed that the same have been completed and are ready for delivery.

A change has been made in Wednesday's program, whereby the session of the grand lodge will be held in the morning and the competitive drill in the afternoon.

THE REPUBLIC acknowledges a call from Mr. T. D. S. Hart, city editor of the daily Union, of Walla Walla, who is attending the grand lodge and encampment in the interest of his journal.

The performance of "Larry the Lord," occurring at Mason's opera house tonight, is a benefit for the local lodge. If this fact be remembered it may, perhaps, swell the funds materially. Seats on sale at Janecks' pharmacy.

The cavalry company are requested to meet at Switzer's hall on Monday evening next. The captain may or may not be present; but in the latter event he will send his uniform to the armory accompanied by his photograph.

Representatives V. D. Lambert and R. G. Parks, of Columbia No. 8, Walla Walla, arrived Sunday, and occupy quarters at the Hotel Yakima. Mr. Parks, who is a candidate for supreme representative, is accompanied by his daughter.

Grand Chancellor Agatz and wife arrived last night. This gentleman and lady will participate in the rendition of "A Tramp's Daughter," "Over the Hills to the Poor House," and "Divorcee," to be given at Mason's on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, respectively.

THE DAILY REPUBLIC will be on file and free distribution at the entertainment headquarters in Odd Fellows' hall, over H. H. Allen's drug store, and also in THE REPUBLIC tent at the camp grounds; at which latter place our representative, Mr. W. H. James, will be pleased to meet all visiting and local K's. of P.

The grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias and first encampment of the Uniform Rank will convene at North Yakima to-morrow. The Spokane delegation, including the delegates and Western Star division, Uniform Rank, will leave this evening. The division will enter the prize drill contest on Wednesday and hope to be able to carry off at least one of the three prizes.—Yesterday's Review.

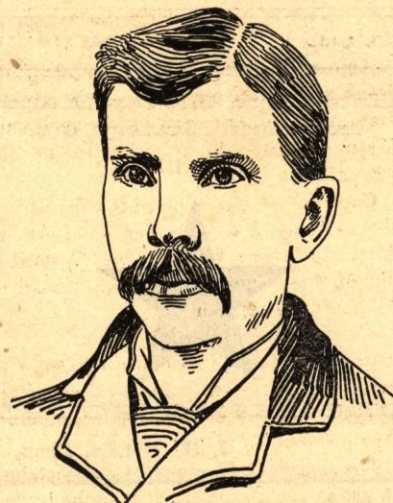

Among the Knights who arrived yesterday are: W N Ward, Jno Carr, Lars Nilson, H N Pringle and M M Godman, Dayton; C E Coonwaldt, L W Laming, J L Bailey and J A Carlisle, Oakesdale; J J Dickson, Pasco; G A Fellows, Cheney; O H Green, Ritzville; E R Pickrell, Palouse; J B Cadwell, Waitsburg; J W Lockly, Aberdeen; F Bories, Seattle; W J Mallette and J G McMullen, Carbonado; P Frank, Puyallup.

JOHN D. CORNETT.

[Chairman Reception Committee.]

John D. Cornett, whose portrait we here append, is a gentleman well known in Yakima and the country tributary thereto, as the energetic and popular cashier of the Yakima National bank. He is a young man in years, but he is comparatively well off in this world's goods, and he is also an ardent lover of Pythianism. He joined the local lodge on March 11, 1891, and was appointed M. of Ex. within thirty days thereafter, to fill vacancy. He was elected to the same position in July following, and has held that chair ever since.

As a member of the reception committee, he will be a valuable factor in seeing that every visiting delegate is properly made to feel at home, and those coming within reach of him will discover him to be an affable yet sturdy, business like gentleman. Yakima Lodge No. 53 is very fortunate in numbering him among its members.

Line of March.

The line of March for the great parade occurring at 3:30 p. m. to day is here appended. Every residence and business block along the line should be profusely decorated. Do not postpone this work an instant, but see that everything "looks lovely" before the hour mentioned:

LINE OF MARCH.

From the camp west, up the north side of Yakima avenue;

Countermarch on the south side of Yakima avenue to Second street;

Thence south on Second street to Chestnut street;

Thence west on Chestnut street to First street;

Thence north on First street to A street;

Thence east on A street to Second street;

Thence south on Second street to Yakima avenue;

Thence east on Yakima avenue, and pass in review at Hotel Yakima before Brigadier General H. A. Bigelow and staff;

Thence east on the avenue to the camp, where the dress parade will be had.

The parade will be under command of Brigadier General Bigelow.

Camp Notes.

A telephone has been placed at camp headquarters for the use of the visitors.

Col. John Carr, of the Second regiment, arrived yesterday afternoon from Dayton. He was pleased with the aspect of the camp.

Among the officials of the Uniform Rank now in the city are: C. F. Miller, Dayton, Adjutant and Aide-de-Camp; Major L. H. Stodgill, Pasco, both of the 2d regiment.

Capt. W. E. Wilder, of the United States Army, arrived yesterday afternoon from Fort Walla Walla. The captain is one of the judges of the competitive drill to-morrow afternoon.

The handsome Pythian banner, kindly loaned for the occasion by Queen City lodge, of Seattle, was floated yesterday. The banner is 20x30 feet and surmounts a pole 75 feet in height.

The electric light company has installed an arc at the grounds. It was the intention to have two, but the company did not have sufficient wire, owing to the fact that their nearest pole is on the corner of Natches and Yakima avenues, a distance of nearly half a mile.

The camp is now in readiness, 127 tents having been erected. We present elsewhere a diagram showing the arrangement of the tents. In addition to those shown, THE REPUBLIC and the Pythian Herald have been accorded the use of tents fronting south on the avenue. Seventy tents are held in reserve and will be pitched should necessity arise.

A telegram from Sheriff Banks of Kittitas county, received by the local officers on Saturday, led to the arrest of several individuals who had broken into a jewelry store in the windy city last week. Upon being searched however, not a sign of jewelry of any kind was discovered although the police watched them while in the act of disposing of the goods to a local dealer. It is presumed that the rings were swallowed; because a man following behind for that purpose, states that no packages were dropped.

Miss Kate Crofton arrived in the city yesterday from Goldendale, on a two weeks' visit with the family of Dudley Eshelman.

Miller Bros., of Tacoma, two prominent realty owners of the sound district, are in the city looking for investments in Yakima lands.

Mrs. Ira M. Krutz left this morning for Indianapolis, Ind., called there by the sudden death of her mother.

WM. I. LINCE.

[Treasurer Executive Committee.]

W. I. Lince was born in Landan, Canada, on May 12th, 1845, and was raised on a farm until the age of 16 years. Then he worked at the carpenter trade for four years with his father. In the year 1865 he went to Petrolia, in the oil regions, and learned the trade of sinking oil wells and running an engine. At this place he stayed as foreman for Peter Taylor for eight years. In the year 1873 he turned his attention to deep artesian well boring, and in 1874 connected himself with McDougall, Joyce & Co. to sink artesian wells through Illinois. On January 6th, 1875, he was married to Florence M. Hubbard, eldest daughter of J. H. Hubbard, now county commissioner of Yakima county, and in the following spring emigrated to California and commenced sinking oil wells for the Los Angeles Oil Co., under the firm name of McDougall, Joyce & Lince, at which place they were very successful. From that place they were employed by Governor Stanford, then president of the Southern Pacific railroad, to sink artesian wells for the company. He carries many letters of recommendation signed by the highest officers of the company. In 1881 he became tired of the business and settled in this county.

When the Knights of Pythias organized here three years ago he became a charter member, and has filled several offices, besides being one of its directors. He is an earnest worker in the order and, as he terms it, "Is a K. of P. from the sole of his feet to the crown of his head. Its principles and workings are high and noble; and may it ever prosper and grow, until every young man in the land will become one of its members, for it is, indeed, a young man's organization."

Program for To-Day.

Following is the official program for to-day, and for the reception to-night at Switzer's opera house:

The Encampment.

We present below a diagram of the camp ground of the Uniform Rank, on the corner of Yakima avenue and Seventh street:

the orphan; practice the ennobling virtues of friendship, charity and benevolence toward all."

To me one of the great benefits of our fraternal societies arises from the fact that they are great educators and training schools for citizens of a free country. Man is continually being trained and his mind directed. From the cradle to the grave our opinions and actions are moulded and controlled by a thousand subtle agencies; they are influenced by the words and acts of our companions in childhood, by the mountains that encircle our homes, by the rivers upon whose shaded banks we held our childish sports, and by the storms of summer and the snows of winter. Tradition, training and education form the habits, customs and beliefs of every people. They make the Briton venerate his government and the Irishman hate it; they direct the Mohammedan in his pilgrimage toward Mecca; bring the Jew to worship in the synagogue of his fathers; move the Buddhist to chant his sacred songs in the gilded temples of the East, and control the Christian in his worship of God. Industrious and intelligent education in the societary and communal relations that are innate in the character and constitution of mankind has lifted humanity from the cave and the war club up to the wealth and enlightenment of to-day.

In the lofty teachings of our order the highest traits of citizenship are held up for our admiration and emulation. Loyalty to every good cause and denunciation of every bad one is the rule. A recognition of the rights of others as well as our own is ever enjoined. The system of self-government is always practiced.

I do not believe that there is any one who has ever belonged to our order but feels a new sense of responsibility concerning and pride in our government as he turns his face toward her grand future. For, while the people of other countries drink in their inspiration from the past, we drink from the future. The passion of patriotism still stirs the Swiss as they remember the legend of William Tell and his chapel by the blue waters of Lucerne. The warlike genius of France, fighting with the Maid of Orleans and under the eagles of Napoleon, is her pride to-day.

But our faces are turned toward the dawn of a glorious day, whose sun will not set upon you, or me, or our children. We shall sow; and we, and they, shall reap a full fruition from our hopes and efforts.

I believe this republic will keep on in the steady path that has made it the world's wonder. The white-winged ships of commerce will continue to find their way across the pathless seas to our shores. Young men and maidens will plight their faith and go forth to build up the homes of this land that already has more bright and happy homes than any other nation. Children will laugh, and fathers and mothers will be laid away with tearful care and tender hands to their final rest. The serene stars will shine down upon the grass and flowers of soldier graves where peace has laid her gentle, loving hands upon the scars of war; over those graves the hearts of friend and foe will warm into a fraternal sympathy that is a pledge that the united nation shall endure.
