OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

IT is not a matter of surprise to any well informed person that the republican press of the country, with a few notable exceptions, is heartily in sympathy with the giant steel trust in its hereculean effort to break up unionism among its employees. There was once a time, and that not so very long ago, when the brazen and unjust policy pursued by the great corporation would have brought out an almost universal cry of protest from republican newspapers, which once were wont to regard themselves as the especial champions of American labor. So persistently, in fact, did republican editors and stump orators harp on the fidelity of their party to labor in their efforts to justify the existence of a robber tariff system, that the idea took root firmly in the minds of the laboring element with the result that republican ascendancy in the national government has been maintained almost uninterruptedly for a period of forty years. But mark the change that since has taken place. Instead of expressing sympathy and good will toward the steel workers who are fighting courageously for the recognition of a natural right, the republican moulders of public opinion, or at any rate the majority of them, are racking their brains in their efforts to invent reasons why the workers should be defeated. As a rule they lose sight of or fail to mention the central fact involved in the controversy—the right to organize for self-protection on the part of labor—and harp continually on side issues. They ignore the fact that under the present system the workers receive but a trifle over 20 per cent. of all the wealth that they produce and that the balance goes to pay dividends largely on watered stock held mainly by millionaire gamblers, who spend a large portion of their ill-gotten gains in hobnobbing annually with the decaying aristocracy of Europe. They never call attention to the fact that without a solid and compact organization the laborer must be completely at the mercy of the trust octopus, which claims for itself the right to arbitrarily fix the price of its own product, but denies the same right to labor. This change in policy on the part of the republican press can be accounted for in only one way, and that is that public sentiment within that party has been revolutionized. In other words, that the once great party of Lincoln, Grant and Garfield has become completely Hannaized, or perhaps, more properly speaking, Morganized.

TACOMA people have well maintained their reputation for hospitality in the entertainment of the members of the State Press Association and visitors generally to the Elks' Carnival. The editors present at the recent annual meeting will not soon forget the many courtesies received at the hands of not only the Tacoma Press Club, but of citizens of the city generally. Every possible provision seems to have been made for the comfort and entertainment of the knights of the pencil, all of which, no doubt, was fully appreciated. In the matter, too, of entertaining the thousands of strangers who have crowded within her gates to witness the Elks' Carnival, Tacoma is entitled to much praise; for with the exception of a few heartless lodging house keepers who took advantage of the opportunity, the large crowds were kindly and fairly treated. The people of that city have certainly shown that they are equal to any demands made upon their hospitality. Tacoma is gradually but surely evolving into a great city. Like many other communities in the state, she has had her night of darkness, when all but hope seemed dead; but her solid citizens never faltered in their firm belief in the future of their beloved city, and their faith and zeal are now beginning to be rewarded with a full fruitage. Great is the "City of Destiny" and long may it flourish.

THE city council is showing the right spirit in the matter of street improvement. The new crushed rock pavement being laid on Yakima avenue having already been proved a success, the city fathers at their last meeting, rightfully concluded to extend the good work by passing resolutions of intention for paving three blocks on Front, two on First and two on Second street. When this contemplated improvement is finished the entire business district of North Yakima will be on an equal footing so far as the streets are concerned. The decision of the council to prosecute the good work at this time is most commendable, and means that our people will not be compelled to again endure the discomfort, annoyance and inconvenience of frightfully muddy business streets throughout the most of the winter season. Property owners who feel an inclination to object on the ground of the expense involved should bear in mind that the conditions demand the improvements, and that they are also required by the public. Yakima has ceased to be a struggling country village, and has become a modern, busy little city, and as a result must necessarily wear better clothes, which in this case means better streets to accommodate its growing volume of business.

YAKIMA county, under the impetus of the wonderful growth which the development of her resources is rapidly bringing about, will in a short time have a larger population than any other inland county in the state. The increase in population between the census of 1890 and 1900 showed an increase of about 9000; and when it is considered that in the census of 1890 showed only about 4000 inhabitants (in round numbers), it requires no great stretch of imagination to conclude that the percentage of increase will go on for the next ten years. The continuation of the Sunnyside ditch to Prosser, reclaiming another 20,000 acres of land to give homes to thousands, and the building of the Burlingame ditch north and west of this city, by which enterprise nearly 10,000 acres will be made habitable and productive, are factors which will impel not only a big growth in population, but probably double the visible and taxable wealth of the county. These projects, along with others naturally the outgrowth of advancing conditions, will, when the 1910 census is completed show a population of 40,000 within the present environs of Yakima county, and North Yakima will have 15,000 people within her corporate limits.

THE Ellensburg Localizer is absolutely unfair in its report of the ball game here two weeks ago between the "sports" of Ellensburg and North Yakima. Indeed, had the Localizer placed the charges against its home team which it lays at the door of the Yakima boys, it would have been more nearly correct. And as for our "professional" pitcher, he enjoys the distinction of thus being placed in a class to which he never had either the wish or ambition to aspire.

THE sinking of the Canadian Steamer Islander off the Alaskan coast with a loss of forty-two lives, is the latest horror of a wholesale character to be chronicled. The wreck was caused by contact with an iceberg, the vessel sinking in fifteen minutes. The fact that the disaster occurred at two o'clock in the morning doubtless accounts in a large measure, for the long casualty list.

THE war between the South American republics, of which so many sensational stories have been printed lately, seems to have ended as vaingloriously as did the energetic action of the king of Spain, with ten thousand men, who marched up the hill and then marched down again.

THE editorial and business management of the Goldendale Journal has received a new impetus in the person of Barton C. Y. Brown, and shows considerable improvement in the last issue. Mr. Brown is new in the field, but shows ability to adapt himself to the conditions.

NORTH YAKIMA and surrounding country sent at least 900 people to Tacoma to witness the Elks' Carnival. It remains to be seen if Tacoma will do as well when it comes to getting up an excursion to visit the State Fair.

TELEPHONIC connection across the continent will soon enable the people of New York to converse with their neighbors in San Francisco.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

The contract for a new $6,000 schoolhouse at Prosser will be let today.

A petition has been circulated this week and largely signed, asking for the retention of Mrs. Hough in the post-office.

Died, at North Yakima, Saturday, August, 17, Anna, the three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mat. Grobschmidt.

C. H. Noyes, a recent comer to North Yakima, died at the hospital last Monday from asthma and other complications.

Bert Murchie suffered the loss of a $35 watch and an expensive K. of P. charm at the Uncle Tom's show Wednesday evening.

The third block of macadamizing on Yakima avenue has been completed, and the street is taking on a metropolitan appearance.

Prosser will not be in darkness much longer. We will get our light from under the "bushel" about the 1st of September.—Record.

The stone foundation of the large Clogg brick on Yakima avenue was started Wednesday, the excavations having been completed.

The German Evangelical Lutherans will hold service in the Presbyterian church next Sunday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. J. Gihring officiating.

J. M. Murchie has purchased the stock and vehicles of the Fashion stables from Fred and J. C. Brooker, having secured a lease upon the barn for a term of years.

County Assessor Robert Scott has been granted a patent on a page indicator by the department at Washington. The new device is considered a great labor-saver.

W. H. Vessey received a telegram from Idaho Thursday announcing a rise in the price of hay to $5 in the stack. He says this makes him wish he had all his sheep in Yakima.

O. Hawks, a native of Massachusetts, aged fifty years, was buried from St. Elizabeth's hospital last Saturday. Nothing is known of his antecedents, he being a stranger here.

John Natterlund and C. H. Herrin were in the city Monday for the purpose of securing the service of Jim Baker in the removal to a new location of the schoolhouse at Outlook.

The date for the ball game between Roslyn and North Yakima has been advanced to September 7; when the Roslyn band excursion will bring a large crowd from the coal-mine city.

David Mahue, a minning man for sometime employed in developing claims of John Sawbridge and others in the Gold Hill district, died at his home on the west side Wednesday, from cancer.

T. J. Lynch this week received a letter from a relative on the Sound, in which it was stated that the hop crop of the west side would not aggregate more than 65 per cent of that picked last season.

J. A. Owens left Tuesday for his home in Brookings, South Dakota. He stated that he expected to sell his farm there and return soon to make his home here.

Mr. Owens is the father of Chas. L. Owens, bookkeeper for Lombard & Horsley.

The elegant band stand on the corner of Yakima avenue and Third street has been completed, under the direction of J. H. Clogg, and the first concert was rendered by the Yakima band Friday evening to a large and appreciative audience.

The hop grower's association here has made its usual requisition on the Sound for 1000 pickers this fall. The hop crop is expected to be ready for picking about September 10, and the yield is estimated at about the same as last year—13,000 bales.

A campmeeting is now in full blast on North Natchez avenue, conducted by a sect styling itself the "Church of God," but disclaiming any connection with the Mormon church of the same name. Their meetings will continue until August 31st.

A. J. Splawn on Tuesday sold eleven head of full-blood Hereford cattle to Dr. Charles Moore, of Springfield, Ore. This is another indication of the rapid advancement of Yakima, for it was only a few years ago that Oregon furnished all the fine stock brought into this section.

Thos. Lund lost about $350 worth of cigars by the flooding of his cellar Monday from water flowing from the pipe tank of the N. P. The stop-cock of the pipe refused to work after filling the tender of an engine, and for some time a large section of Front street was flooded.

William Graham, a section hand employed by the Northern Pacific here, was run down by a hand-car at Yakima City Tuesday morning and severely bruised about the head and body. He was brought to town and conveyed to his home on the west side, where he is now improving.

Cornelius Kehoe, of Prosser, was up this week with his witnesses to prove his loss by the old Dakota Indian depredations before an agent of the claims department. The agent did not arrive as expected, but full proof of losses has been presented, and Mr. Kehoe hopes ere long to realize full satisfaction.

A Toppenish farmer, who is the fortunate possessor of a 40 acre potato patch on the reservation, was this week offered $10 per ton for his crop as it stands on the ground. This offer would net him about $7 per ton, but he concluded to try his luck with the market.

A riot call came near being turned in from the Richelieu restaurant kitchen Wednesday afternoon. Five or six Chinamen became embroiled in a fight, in which, bottles, knives and an axe were brought into requisition. Two or three of the celestials received cuts about the hands and arms, and one had his feet badly cut on a broken bottle. The fight was over before the police arrived.

State Fair Items.

The state fair commission has contracted for some new seats in front of the grand stand and will add a new fence in the place of the tall board one now hiding the track. Efforts are being made for a uniform rate of ten cents fare to the grounds from the city and a similar amount for returning. The commission will try to add to the comforts of visitors as far as possible and make everything pleasant for all who come. To this end of course they ask the hearty co-operation of every citizen in the city and county.

Several outside counties have signified an intention of taking away the $600 purse offered for the best county exhibits. The county commissioners of Columbia have taken hold of the matter and are making a collection of everything grown in that county. They expect to secure every prize possible. The Commercial club of Vancouver has charge of the exhibit from Clarke county and will make a fine showing. Pierce county will have a larger and better exhibit than in any of the past years. This will be made by Henry Benthien who says he expects to beat Yakima in every display.

Michael Sullivan, the merry-go-round man, has engaged his old stand this year. Prot. John E. Baldwin, the ballonist, has forwarded 10,000 circulars describing his wonderful aerial leaps from a parachute 8,000 feet above the fair grounds. He comes here from St. Joe, Missouri, where he makes ascensions every day for a week. His ballon will be an attraction here during the last three days of the fair. The bombs discharged in mid-air can be heard for 30 miles and will startle the natives when he first begins bombarding the skies.

The commission will make an effort to get some excursions from different points of the state and will ask the people to assist in giving proper accommodations to the visitors. To this end there should be a general united effort made to get suitable lodgings for everybody attending the fair. As only four weeks more remain until the opening of the fair it is time the people were getting things in shape for the reception of strangers and visitors.

Ma Gave It Up.

A mother recently was reading to her young son the story of a little fellow whose father was taken ill and died, after which he set himself diligently to work to assist in supporting himself and his mother, says London Answers. When she had finished the story, she said:

"Now, Tommie, if pa were to die, wouldn't you work to keep mamma?"

"Why, no," said the little chap, not relishing the idea of work. "What for? Ain't we got a house to live in?"

"Oh, yes, my dear," said the mother, "but we can't eat the house, you know."

"Well, ain't we got plenty of things in the pantry?" continued the boy.

"Certainly, dear," replied the mother, "but they would not last long, and what then?"

"Well, ma," said the boy, after thinking a moment, "ain't there enough to last till you get another husband?"

Ma gave it up.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

A Chinese lottery game is running full-blast in Chinatown.

A. B. Flint and family are spending the week on their Sunnyside ranch.

Fifteen hunter's licenses have been issued by the county auditor up to date.

Mrs. G. B. Palmer, of this city, is now recovering from a severe attack of pleurisy.

The N. P. has had the main track between the passenger and freight depots laid solidly with planks.

A Japanese section hand who died at Mabton Thursday was buried here by his fellow countrymen Friday.

The horse and buggy of Dr. Wells took a spin up North Second street Thursday, the buggy being badly demolished.

Stiverson Bros. this week received from the east a large engine and boiler for their new sawmill on the upper Wenas.

A sparring exhibition between local celebrities and a couple of imported talent is to be given at the armory this evening.

Mrs. Harry Moran came up from California and joined her husband at the Elks' Carnival, returning home with him Sunday.

The 10-year-old son of a family who recently located at Zillah was accidentally drowned in the Yakima near that point last Monday.

W. W. Doty, the bowling alley man, is entertaining his brother recently of Rossland, who contemplates going into business in this city.

Several young men about town, accompanied by their best girls, made up a bowling party Thursday evening and the merry crowd kept the new alleys in the rear of the armory red hot for a couple of hours.

Samuel Chappell this week sold his Front street residence property to W. I. Lince. Mr. Chappell will join his family who are now visiting Klamath county, Oregon, and will probably make his future home there.

John Linder and Abe Morrison yesterday ran a match race for half a mile between their brag race-horses at the fair grounds. The result of the contest, which was for $150 a side, had not been declared as we go to press.

Wallis Williams returned last Monday from Oregon City, where he had been summoned to what proved the deathbed of his father, C. C. Williams, who died on the 14th inst. from blood-poisoning, in his seventy-first year.

R. J. Mackinson, familiarly known among his many friends as "Jimmie", returned to Yakima Thursday afternoon, after an absence of six years, four of which he has spent in the Klondyke. He states that the Yakima boys who have remained there are now all doing well.

A number of farmers in the neighborhood of this city claim to have been victimized out of a lot of fruit and produce by a Seattle firm of commission men, styling itself Hendricks, Briggs & Co. It is asserted that the total losses occasioned by the failure of the firm to liquidate will run close to $3000. A number of the losing parties are "bunching" their claims and will attempt to recover through the courts.

E. F. Benson was here Tuesday and an informal meeting of the State Fair was held in the evening. Mr. Benson is enthusiastically working to aid in the work of making this fall's fair the banner one yet held. He thinks the railroad can be induced to offer such rates as to bring a crowd of 1500 or 2000 people here. Mr. Benson left Wednesday for a few days' absence in eastern Washington.

Tom Fisher and W. A. Bell protest at the report of the result of their bear hunt near Hanging Rock last week. Fisher says they killed two half-grown cubs and shot the old bear in a part of the anatomy so that she retreated very precipitately. He also says, the reason they didn't bring the animals or their hides home is that they are not fond of bear meat and the fur is not good at this season of the year.

In addition to the proposed improvement of Front, First and Second streets on each side of the avenue by grading and macadamizing, a petition, signed by nearly all the property owners of North Second street, along the proposed improvement district, will be presented to the next meeting of the city council, asking that the street be macadamized from A to E street, a distance of four blocks north of that already proposed.

Dr. A. Frank was called to Zillah last Tuesday, in his capacity as county physician, to investigate an alleged case of scarlet fever. He found that scarletina existed in the family of Melwin Belknap, recently from Bickleton, and the usual precautionary measures were taken to prevent its spread. [Returning through Parker, the doctor was just in time to reduce the fracture in the leg of a 10-year-old child of a Mr. Dean, of North Yakima. The little one had fallen from a wagon on the public road and sustained the injury.

Hopgrowers are well satisfied with the progress that the crop is making towards maturity, the present weather being considered almost ideal. The continued warm weather is enabling the vines to make up for the time lost in the spring and early summer, so that many growers believe that picking will begin fully as early as last year; that is from September 1st to 10th, according to location. Picking in the Moxee Co. and Hiscok yards will probably begin on the 2nd. A large number of pickers are expected from Seattle and will be secured as heretofore through the free employment agency of that city.

W. L. Gilbert, commonly called "Peg," who runs a boot-black stand on the corner of Yakima avenue and First street, went over to Tacoma to attend the Elks' Carnival, and was arrested by the police there and kept in jail 24 hours. It seems the "wise guy" who heads the police department there had issued a "blanket" order for the arrest of all cripples in town, and "Peg" was among the unfortunates. While he, along with a number of other maimed companions, were allowed to go without paying a fine, each of them having return tickets and money in their pockets, it is said that several suits for false imprisonment will result.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

A Session Devoted to Public Improvements.

A quorum was secured Monday evening at the city council, notwithstanding the fact that it was a mid monthly meeting. Councilmen Donald, Hall, Reed, Shaw and Weed, in addition to the mayor, answered roll-call.

A petition was read from property owners for the grading of Second street, between Chestnut and A streets. Mr. Weed moved to include Front street from Chestnut to B street. He stated that he was satisfied the railroad company would stand for the proposition. The city attorney was instructed to prepare necessary resolutions for said improvement districts.

An ordinance amending license ordinance relating to peddlers was introduced. This ordinance providing for the payment of $100 per month, or for a less time at $25 per day was passed.

A petition from E. C. Burlingame asking for a twenty days extension on the contract for macadamizing Yakima avenue was granted.

The committee on streets and ditches reported recommending the construction of eleven street crossings, mostly on newly graded streets.

Councilman Hall, for the same committee, stated that parties had requested the opening of Ranier avenue to Yakima avenue, one block, and recommended that the action be taken. On motion of Weed the report was adopted.

The same councilman reported that John Lemon, the city street cleaner and repairer, was striking for an increase in wages for himself and team. Mr. Lemon said he worked eight hours, and thought his labor worth more than $2 per day. On motion of Hall the stipend was increased to $2.25 per day.

Several bills for current expenses were allowed, and a large number of claims against the city were referred to the purchasing committee, who in turn referred them for explanation to the parties who O. K'ed them, and these will be taken up at the next meeting.

An ordinance amendatory of the ordinance relating to licenses for conducting bowling alleys, fixing the rate at $5 per month, was read and finally passed.

A resolution declaring the intention of the city to improve First street, from A to Chestnut street, by grading and macadamizing, was read and adopted.

The city attorney gave a verbal opinion that the railroad company would be liable for its proportion of the assessment of improvement on Front street, whereupon a resolution was passed for the grading and macadamizing of that street from Chestnut to B street.

A resolution for a similar improvement of Second street, from Chestnut to C, was also adopted.

The mayor called attention to the necessity for a number of new policemen for the busy season, and by general consent of the matter was left to the discretion of the mayor.

In response to an inquiry Hall stated that the parties authorized to number houses had met with such opposition from householders that the work was still incomplete and the city attorney was instructed to draft an ordinance compelling householders to number their residences.

A Mr. Holden appeared to protest against the employment of a street commissioner who resides outside the city limits. The city attorney was given until next meeting to give an opinion on the legal phase of the question.

On motion of Weed, after a forcible expression by the mayor relating to street sprinkling, his honor was authorized to see that the sprinklers be employed for the purpose of laying the dust on side streets.

AMERICAN FRATERNAL CLUB.

Organization Effected and Officers Elected—Ready For Business.

The American Fraternal Club has received its certificate of incorporation from the secretary of state and is prepared for business. Suitable offices will be located in this city and the work of organization will proceed at once, under the management of the superior executive committee. It is expected that at least 300 members will be initiated in the first club organized here.

The club is offering a cash prize of $15.00 for a design for an emblem. This will be used on the seals, buttons, badges and printed matter of the club. Any person can compete for the prizes which will be divided into two, one of $10 and the other $5. All that is necessary is for the person to make a rough pen or pencil sketch of the design, or describe it in writing on an envelope.

Write the name on a slip of paper and enclose in the envelope. Then place this in a larger envelope and address The American Fraternal Club, North Yakima, or hand to one of the officers. The envelopes will be opened on Monday, September, 2, at 2 o'clock, p. m. and the awards made by a committee of citizens.

The American Fraternal Club is a new social, fraternal and beneficial society, with headquarters in this city. Its field of operations includes the United States and Canada. Clubs are to be organized in every city and town in the jurisdiction. The names of members will be selected from among the safest and best, risks and dangerous occupations will be barred from membership. A new feature of this society is the building of a fraternal home in this city, where aged and disabled members, widows and orphans may be cared for and the headquarters located.

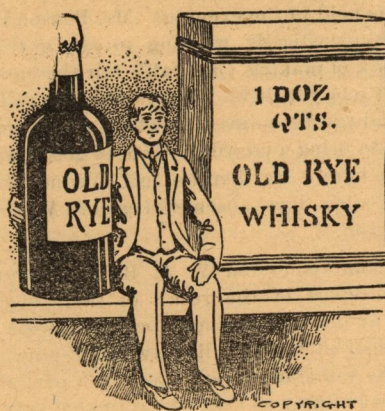

The organization proposes paying sick, accident, old age, disability, funeral and death benefits to members. Men and women are accepted on an equal footing and the same benefits are paid to all. Organizers are at work securing applications and the first subordinate club will be instituted in a few days by the superior club. An army of competent organizers will be given employment and sent out to every district in the state within a month.

THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT

NORTH YAKIMA.....AUGUST 24, 1901

YAKIMA'S NEW RAILROAD.

Active Construction on the West End of the Line.

The Vancouver Register Democrat has this to say about the progress of work on the new cut-off railway to Portland:

President and Manager I. N. Gray, of the Portland, Vancouver & Yakima Railroad Co., says good progress is being made on the extension building here. A force of at least 200 men and 100 head of horses are on the construction works, and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. Most of the time so far has been devoted to clearing the way, although some grading has been done, and the line of work extends from the terminal point to the Lewis river, a distance of about 11 miles. Superintendent Rankin, of the Western Construction Company of Portland, has charge of the work, and is employing every man available. Good wages are being paid, common labor on the construction works receiving $2.25 per day. This is due largely to the stringency in the labor supply caused by the approaching harvest. The Western Construction Company has opened an office in the Hotel Columbia building.

The line now under construction from Vancouver to North Yakima, will give the Northern Pacific a much needed cut-off between Portland and the east. The distance from Portland to North Yakima by this new route is practically the same as the distance from Portland to Tacoma, 145 miles. The distance from Tacoma to North Yakima is several miles greater than that from Portland to North Yakima. The line from Vancouver to North Yakima will be built, and it will no doubt eventually be absorbed by the great system, which includes under one management the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Burlington and other minor lines of railway.

An English Country Bank.

Rural customers attach great importance to the bank's outward appearance. A thrifty tradesman having opened a deposit account with a bank distant some thirty miles from his home the cashier had the curiosity to ask why he traveled so far, when there was a branch of the same bank almost at his door. The depositor smiled knowingly, and replied: "I lodged opposite here all the time while this bank was being built, so I know it's safe." Balance sheets to the rustic are a meaningless and arbitrary arrangement of figures; iron bars he understands.

In a northern city there is a bank widely known for the artistic merit of its doors. Designed by an eminent sculptor, they are executed in relief in copper or bronze, and appear to represent tableaux from Aesop's Fables and Greek history. About a week after they were unveiled an old man, who had been a depositor for many years, withdrew his balance and took it to a rival bank almost opposite. Questioned as to his reasons for changing, he replied: "I don't hold wi' them doors of theirs. Punched tin ain't business-like, and it ain't safe."—[Longman's Magazine.

STATE PRESS OPINION

If McLaurin does not get a reserved seat with the republicans soon, he is likely to find himself restricted to standing room only.—Mt. Vernon Argus.

The steel trust is vindictively tearing down its plants and removing them to points far away from the striking working men. The courts would have a perfect right to prohibit this—just as much so as to punish a man for wantonly destroying his own property.—Walla Walla Argus.

The Oregonian's line-up with the strikers has filled the Seattle P.-I., Tacoma Ledger and other republican papers with deep disgust, and they charge the Portland paper with being "populistic." Wouldn't that jar you? Think of Harvey Scott being a populist! Will some good brother please pass the smelling salts to Mark Hanna?—Vancouver Register.

There seems to be another storm brewing in the republicans' camp. It seems that Tacoma has succeeded in interesting Levi Ankeny in something in Tacoma—and that something is to be a newspaper in opposition to Perkins and John L. Wilson, which will mean the swapping of more "wampum" before peace is declared.—Prosser Record.

We trust that readers of the Sun will overlook its faults during the haying season. We can assure you it is no easy matter to put up hay, run down news items and dodge creditors at one and the same time. We expect after haying is over to devote more attention to the paper, then we will print more news and possibly find collections easier.—Sunnyside Sun.

Fear, Pain and Death.

When Guy de Maupassant made one of his characters commit suicide in terror rather than fight a duel his critics, admitting the power of the story, doubted its plausibility.

Yet the newspapers have often to record freaks of frailty quite as strange. A New York man in the full vigor of youth, for instance, had a toothache. This is the most certainly curable of human ailments, yet in fear of the brief pain of an operation he suffered five days of discomfort and finally ended it and his life by swallowing carbolic acid.

Of all possible deaths that of the carbolic-acid suicide is perhaps most agonizing. By comparison with it, burning at the stake is almost merciful. Surely the man of fact who traveled this road of torture to death to cure a toothache was more than a parallel to De Maupassant's imaginary enigma of fear.—N. Y. World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, August 16, 1901.

The adage about birds that can sing and won't sing should be equally applicable to public officials. At least, that is the unanimous verdict of a joint committee from the American Anti-Trust league and the Knights of Labor, and most unprejudiced men are likely to vote aye. These gentlemen know that the attorney general of the U. S. can do his duty, by proceeding against the big steel trust for having violated the Sherman anti-trust law, and they are determined to make him do it or know the reason why. They are proceeding in a business-like way; have employed two lawyers—ex-Attorney General Monett, of Ohio, and Mr. A. A. Lipscomb, of Washington,—to collect evidence of the violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and submit it to the attorney general with a demand that he begin legal proceeding in the name of the U. S. against the trust. Speaking of their intentions, Mr. H. B. Martin, chairman of the joint committee, said: "In the event of the complaint being blocked in the attorney general's office, or if he does not consider it advisable to act in the matter, we have decided to lay the papers in the case before the president of the United States. In fact, we are prepared to take steps for a mandamus proceeding if we are pushed to extremes, but it is doubtful if either of the last two named actions will be necessary, and we are proceeding with the idea that there will be no hitches of any description." They are also preparing to bring legal actions against the steel trust under the laws of the states in which it carries on its business. The action of the committee is receiving endorsements from every direction and some have been accompanied by the strongest evidence of genuineness—cash contributions to aid in paying the necessary expenses.

Strong pull is being brought to bear on Secretary Root to save Capt. J. C. Read, a son of a rich iron manufacturer of Pittsburg, who was convicted by a court-martial of complicity in the necessary frauds at Manila and sentenced to three years in the military prison, at that place, to be dishonorably discharged from the army. Read's lawyers have secured a promise from Secretary Root to review the case. One of the claims of the lawyers is that the court martial was irregular because nine of its members were officers in the regular army; that Read being a volunteer officer was entitled to trial by a court composed exclusively of volunteer officers. But the strongest claim in Read's behalf is that represented by his daddy's dollars.

If the story that Sampson might not appear before the Schley Court of Inquiry was put out as a feeler by the anti-Schley gang in the navy department to ascertain how the public would take some sort of official juggling that would enable Sampson to avoid the trial which his cross-examination by "Jerry" Wilson, Schley's chief counsel, is certain to be, as many suspect, they must be thoroughly convinced by the howl it raised that the public will not stand for any such business as that. It was Sampson who was Schley's first accuser and who was mainly instrumental in the formation of the naval clique which has so persistently sought to ruin Schley, and it is Sampson who must either clear himself or forever condemn himself. Although the clique pretends to talk as though Sampson had no more interest in the court than any other officer who happens to be a witness, every mother's son of them knows that as soon as that court gets started it will be plain to all the world that it is Sampson, and not Schley, who is on trial, and it is a great deal more likely that the report and recommendations of the court will be against Sampson than against Schley. In view of these things it is absurd for anybody to talk about Sampson not appearing before the court.

Senator Tillman, of S. C., passed through Washington this week. In reply to questions he expressed the opinion that Senator McLaurin was losing, instead of gaining strength; that if the primary election were to be held at this time he could not get more than 10,000 of the 95,000 votes of the state, and that he has absolutely no chance of being named for senator at the primary election to be held next year.

Senator Cullom, of Ill., will not figure in history as a great statesman, but when it comes to political dickering he can hold his own with the slickest of them. He has as good as landed the nice position of comptroller of currency for his son-in-law, W. B. Ridgeley, and the way he did it was as pretty a bit of political dickering as any politician could have done. When Mr. Dawes, who is after Senator "Billy" Mason's seat with the backing of the administration, resigned the comptrollership, to take effect Oct. 1, he got Mr. McKinley's promise that an Illinois man should have the place. Then Cullom got Dawes to endorse his son in law, and afterwards got Mason's endorsement, thus combining the heads of the two factions among Illinois republicans, and practically assuring the appointment.

A PART OF HIS STORY

ONE CHAPTER IN THE LIFE OF A YOUNG ADVENTURER.

A Dramatic Incident in a Career Which May Have Ended Behind Prison Bars or Which May Now Be Brimful of Happiness and Hope.

"These little detached passages in other people's stories that we are continually running into by pure chance," said an old reporter off duty, "are the most fascinating and tantalizing things in life. Sometimes we get a whole chapter sometimes we get nothing more than a scrap of dialogue, and as often as not it's only a glance of the eye or a gesture of the hand, but we realize all the same that we have accidentally intruded upon some poignant human document of which we are never to know either the beginning or the end. I have often amused myself by taking such fragmentary morsels and attempting to reconstruct around them a logical sequence of events, just as naturalists build up fossil monstrosities from small sections of their big toes, and I may add that the invariable result of my efforts has shattered my faith in comparative zoology. I am forced to believe that the naturalists are faking us. However, when—" "Oh, well," said somebody in the office, "go ahead and tell the story and have done with it!"

"The incident I had in mind," continued the old reporter, looking some what injured, "was narrated to me by a gentleman of this city who is now manager of an extensive orange grove, with offices in New Orleans. Eight or nine years ago, before he assumed his present position, he had charge of a large sugar plantation up the river, and one day during the grinding season a young Englishman came to his office and applied to him for work.

"The young fellow said his name was John Mason, and his shabby clothes and a hungry look in his eye confirmed the statement that he was badly in need of a job. The manager liked his face and manners and put him at light work with a gang at the cane carriers. Mason proved a very good hand. He was steady and sober, but he attracted no special attention, had no intimates and never let drop a word about his history. At the end of the season he drew his money and went away.

"About a month later the manager received a letter from a lady in England inquiring about her son, John Mason, whom she understood was working on that plantation. The letter went on to say that he had left home believing he had killed a young woman to whom he was engaged. He had struck her with something in a fit of insane jealousy. The woman was not dead, and the trouble had been fixed up. Meanwhile the young man had come in for a legacy of $5,000, and his mother wanted him to return at once.

"The letter was evidently written by a person of culture and refinement and seemed sincere, but, having no idea of Mason's whereabouts, all the manager could do was to reply to that effect. That closed the correspondence.

"One evening next grinding season a very ragged, trampish looking man came to the office window and asked for work. Dirt, privation and a heavy beard had changed him considerably, but the manager recognized him as Mason at a glance. 'Didn't you use to work for me?' he asked. 'No,' replied the man. 'I was never south before in my life.' 'Well,' said the manager, 'I have no work for you, but you reminded me at first of a fellow I want to see, a fellow named John Mason.'

"The applicant stood for a while in resolute. 'I used to have a partner by that name,' he said finally, 'may be it

In the year most women have to suffer for a week. At the best this suffering interferes with household activities and social enjoyments. At the worst it shuts the woman in a darkened room or confines her to bed. Most women can be completely cured of irregularity by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, stops enfeebling drains and cures female weakness. It gives vigor and vitality to the womanly organs, and tones up the exhausted system.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is no motive to offer you a substitute except to enable the dealer to make the larger profit, which can be made on less responsible wares. Insist on "Favorite Prescription" for self protection.

"All praise is due to you for your wonderful 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. John W. Coffman, Ellisburg, Casey Co., Ky. "My wife suffered with female irregularity; was confined to bed every three weeks. After using two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was cured, and has not suffered any derangement since. was him. What was it about?"

"The manager looked him in the eye. 'I wanted to tell him that that woman was not dead,' he replied.

"Mason grabbed hold of the window sill and turned white as a sheet under his dirt. His jaw trembled for a minute, and then he began to blubber like a child. The manager came out, led him in kindly, and as soon as the Englishman saw the letter he admitted the story of his flight was true. The reaction was so great that he became half hysterical, but at last he was persuaded to go to his old quarters for the night, and the manager assured him that he would make arrangements next day for his immediate return to England."

"Well?" asked several listeners.

"That's all there is to the story," said the old reporter. "Next morning John Mason wasn't there. His bed had not been slept in; nobody had seen him; nobody has ever seen him since. Where he came from, what became of him, who he really was, nobody knows. The manager wrote to the mother and got no reply, and the question arises, Was it his mother after all? Might not the letter have been a decoy? How did the writer learn his address? Was the girl actually alive or dead? True, the manager might have settled some of these problems by further inquiries at the English end, but he is a wise man and has learned that it is not well to meddle with detached chapters. It is an excellent rule."

Not Anxious.

"You have quite a number of the poets," said Goodby, who was inspecting Woodby's library. "Ah, there's Browning. Do you understand him?"

"No; I don't," said Woodby.

"Ah," said Goodby, continuing his examination, "have you Præd?"

"Certainly not. What's the use of praying? I ain't anxious to understand him."—Philadelphia Record

The Last Will of Abel Mitchell.

He Changed His Mind as to the Disposition of His Property.

BY W. R. ROSE.

Abel Mitchell called to his type writer.

"You may go, Miss Morris," he said. He did not look up from the papers before him.

The young woman turned to the clock with a little start of surprise. It was only 4:30. But she quietly put on her hat and with a murmured good night left the room.

Abel listened to the departing rustle of her skirts with a thoughtful expression. There was a sensible girl, a girl who never grated on his feelings, a girl who asked no useless questions. She had reached an age of discretion. If Jim was determined to marry a poor girl, why couldn't he have taken one like Emma Morris?

Abel opened a heavy envelope and drew forth a folded paper.

"Jim never was confidential with me," he grumbled. "Perhaps I didn't invite his confidence. I don't know. Now he has disobeyed my direct command. That can't be overlooked. When he told me about this girl, I said wait. 'How long?' he asked. 'Until you reach years of discretion!' I cried and turned away. Jim is 24. Twenty-four. And I married at 21. Yes, and ran away too. But it was different with me. My father had nothing to give me. I was quite independent. He was glad to have me shift for myself. Jim's father is a rich man. Jim's father has given him dollars where my father begrudged me pennies. Jim owes me filial obedience. He has disobeyed me to his bitter cost."

He unfolded the paper that he had taken from the envelope and ran his keen gray eye down the closely written lines.

"He has given up his father for a pretty face," he murmured. "Let him stand by the consequences. Who is she? What is she? It matters not. No doubt they trapped him into this marriage. 'A rich man's son,' they chuckled. But they'll find they're fooled. 'Father,' he said, 'I am to be married tomorrow night. Will you come with me to the wedding?' I turned on my heel. Then I looked back. 'You know the price you may pay?' I cried. 'Yes, father,' he said, with his head high up. 'I know. Goodbye, and God bless you.' He asked a blessing on me! Ha, ha, ha; that's too rich! But he'll get evil for good this time. I'll cut him off with a dollar. Let him sup on herbs for awhile. That'll take the veneer from love's young dream. I'll draw up a new will at home tonight and have it witnessed before I sleep. And to let him know what his foolish fancy has cost him I'll write him a letter—a letter he can show to his new relatives. That's the thing—the letter."

He bent down with his head upon his hand and his eyes upon the paper. A rustle of skirts in the doorway drew his attention. He did not look up. It was a way he had.

"Ah, Miss Morris," he said, "back again?" He had quite forgotten that he had sent her home.

The young girl in the doorway did not answer. Her bright eyes were fixed upon the old man. She expected him to look up. If he had done so, he would have seen a charming vision. She was a very pretty girl—dainty and neat from the tip of her new hat to the tips of her new shoes. But he did not look up.

"Just in time," he added. "I want to dictate a letter before you go."

He paused, and the young girl, as if seized with a sudden fancy, quietly stepped into the room and seated herself at the typewriter.

"You have been with us so long, Miss Morris," the old man continued, "that we view you as a confidential agent. Besides, this will be public property very soon. I am going to write to my son. Last night he married an unknown girl against my wishes. I am going to tell him that I wash my hands of him and his; that tonight I change my will, cutting him off with a solitary dollar. Are you ready?"

The girl at the typewriter gave the instrument a preliminary click or two.

"James Mitchell," began the old man, "as you have seen fit to disobey me, to cast my fatherly wishes in my teeth, I desire you to know that I have no wish to hold further communication with you. While I cherish the impression that you were lured into this unhappy marriage—"

The typewriter stopped.

"Unhappy marriage," the old man repeated, and the clicking recommenced, "yet I cannot accept this as any excuse for your undutiful conduct. Tonight I change my will, and you may rest assured that your name will be passed over with the smallest possible financial consideration. I prefer to have you understand this here and now. It will prevent you and your new friends from cherishing any false hopes. This is all I have to say, and no reply will be expected. Abel Mitchell."

The young girl drew the sheet from the machine and, bringing it forward, laid it on the old man's desk. Abel glanced it through.

"A beautiful copy," he said and carefully folded it. Then he placed it in an envelope and dipped a pen in ink.

"I do not know his address," he said, and knitted his brows.

The girl at the end of the desk extended her hand.

"If you have no objection," she quietly said, "I will deliver it to him in person."

The old man looked up at the fair face bending over him.

"Why, who are you?" he cried.

"I am Alice Mitchell," said the young girl.

"Mitchell!" repeated Abel dully. "M-my son's wife! And what?" But the ugly words would not come. He could not utter them in the light of those gentle eyes. "Will you be seated?" he lamely added.

"Thank you, no," said the girl. "I have but a few words to say; they will not detain you long." Abel's gaze dropped to the letter and the will, and a sarcastic smile twisted his mouth. "No, no," the girl quickly added. "I have not come to plead with you. You are quite wrong to imagine such a thing. And you were quite wrong, too, to insult me as you did in that letter." He looked up again quickly. There were tears in the gentle eyes. And there was a glint of fire in them too. "You insulted me and you insulted my dear father. I have no mother." She paused a moment. "When you insinuated that my father was mercenary in this matter, you did him a cruel wrong. He was bitterly opposed to our marrying without your consent. I disobeyed my father too. But it was not for your money. This letter will bring us no surprise."

The old man dropped his eyes beneath her reproachful gaze.

"Perhaps I was hasty," he slowly said, "but the provocation was great." Then he quickly added, "But knowing as you did that I opposed the wedding, and your father opposed it, too, why did you permit yourself to marry my boy?"

"I could make it clear to you, I think," said the girl gently, "if you loved your boy."

The old man trembled. If he loved his boy! All that was near and dear to him—all that was left to him of kith and kin. The babe that a dying wife had solemnly placed in his paternal arms. If he loved his boy! He drew a long breath and stared hard at the blank envelope on the desk before him.

"And now," said the young girl, "I only want to add that I think Jim was quite wrong in crossing your wishes. He might have waited. I wanted him to wait. But he is so proud, so self-willed. I am very sorry that I should be the means of separating you, and I—I am quite sure I am not worth the great sacrifice my dear—my husband—has made."

Abel was quite sure there were tears in her eyes again, but he did not look up.

"Where is Jim now?" he asked. Then he smiled grimly. "And why are you not enjoying your—your wedding tour?"

"There was a vacancy in the bank where my father is employed," said the girl, "and father secured it for Jim. His duties began today. Perhaps we will take our wedding journey later. We have to look out carefully for the main chance now, you know."

"And you didn't expect to fall back on my dollars?" said the old man.

"Not a penny of them," quickly replied the girl.

The old man fidgeted in his chair.

"And why not?" he asked.

"I think you understand," said the girl, and her gaze dropped to the letter on the desk.

"Does Jim know you are here?"

"No. At least he didn't know I was coming. Father will tell him to meet me at the corner at 5 o'clock. I must go."

"Wait," said the old man quickly. He looked at her searchingly. She met his gaze with a smile. Her mind was on Jim.

Abel deliberately put the will back in its envelope and the envelope in its pigeonhole. Then he picked up the letter in its unaddressed envelope, tore it into minute particles and tossed them into the waste basket.

"I've changed my mind," he softly muttered.

He pulled down his desk cover with a bang and reached for his hat.

"There," he said, "I'm ready." Then he added, "Will you give me your arm, my dear?" As they passed through the doorway he paused.

"I think, Alice," he said, "that you and I are going to be very good friends. And now we must hunt up Jim and take him home with us."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Three Good Stories.

(Lippincott's Magazine.)

In the early Indiana days, when both judges and attorneys literally "rode the circuit," a newly elected judge, noted for his lack of personal beauty, was plodding along on horseback between two country seats one fine summer day. Passing through a piece of woods he was suddenly confronted by a hunter, who unslung his squirrel rifle from his shoulder and ordered the horseman to dismount.

Somewhat startled by this peremptory command, and the fact that the hunter was, if possible, even more deficient in facial symmetry than himself, the jurist began to remonstrate. He was quickly cut short, however, by the remark:

"It's no use talking. I long ago swore that if I ever met a homelier man than I am, I'd shoot him on sight!"

The judge was quick-witted, and sizing up the situation, he promptly got off his horse. Folding his arms, he faced his assailant and said:

"If I am any homelier than you are, for heaven's sake, do shoot, and be quick about it!"

Then came a hearty mutual laugh, and a black bottle, produced from the judge's saddle-bags, was duly investigated. After this came self-introductions, and the rising jurist gained an enthusiastic supporter for his future campaigns.

The late Fr. Pettit was one of the best-known priests in the Milwaukee diocese. It may well be said that he was a fine representative of the pioneer priest.

On one occasion he was preaching in St. Raphael's church, Madison, of which he was pastor. It was a fine summer day and the windows were open. In an adjoining vacant lot a number of boys were playing a game of baseball.

Fr. Pettit's sermon was on heaven and the means of reaching there. He had just come to the end of a passage. "How, then, shall we reach heaven?" he asked, and paused in a solemn manner. Just then came floating through the church window in a high-keyed voice: "Slide like the devil, slide!" It was one of the boy baseball players coaching a base-runner.

Jim Webster was being tried for bribing a colored witness, Sam Johnsing, to testify falsely.

"You say the defendant offered you $50 to testify in his behalf?" asked the lawyer of Sam.

"Yes, sah."

"Now, repeat what he said, using his exact words."

"He said he would give me $50 if I—"

"He didn't speak in the third person, did he?"

"No, sah, he tuck good care dat dar were no third pusson 'round; dar was only two—us two."

"I know that, but he spoke to you in the first person, didn't he?"

"I was de first pusson myself, sah."

"You don't understand me. When he was talking to you did he say: 'I will pay you $50.'?"

"No, sah; he didn't say nothin' 'bout you payin' me $50. Your name was n't mentioned, 'ceptin' he told me ef eber I got into a scrape you was the best lawyer in San Antone to fool de judge and de jury—in fac', you was be best in town to cover up reskelity."

For a brief, breathless moment the trial was suspended.

Crispi and Italian Unity.

More than anything in his comparatively brief career at the helm of the Italian ship of state in stormy waters, the good old age of eighty-one years at which France-co Crispi died will cause him to be compared with Bismarck and Gladstone, with the giant Gortschakoff and that wonderful man of ninety-one in the Vatican. Excepting his years there was little to justify the comparison.

Crispi was but eleven years younger than Mazzini, nine years younger than Cavour, and with them fought and planned for Italian unity; yet theirs, not his, will be the great names associated with that struggle, while he will be counted with the later generation. He did not indeed become Premier in Italy until 1887, when he was already nearly seventy and when Gladstone and Bismarck, not much his seniors, had long been commanding figures in European history.

It was his misfortune to have come prominently upon the scene so late, in a time of bombastic failure following heroic achievement. Charges of personal dishonesty clouded Crispi's later career. Whether these were true or false, not all his remarkable ability will prevent him from being associated to his disrepute with that disastrous decade when Rome was the scene of the greatest collapsed "building boom" of the century, when Italy was brought by foolish war expenditures to the verge of national bankruptcy and when the new colonial policy of benevolent assimilation in Abyssinia went to pieces in the humiliating disaster to Italian arms at Adowa.—N. What Did He Expect.

A gentleman took a house in a London suburb which proved to be of the usual modern jerry-built order of architecture, so much so that one day the rain came through the roof and regularly swamped the place.

The gentleman was naturally angry, and when the landlord called for his rent the tenant exclaimed indignantly:

"I say, it is too bad; the other night the rain came through my roof and gave me a regular shower bath. You really ought to do something."

"Ought to do something," growled the landlord, who was a very surly individual. "What are you complaining of? Do you expect me to provide you with soap and towels, too?"—[London Spare Moments.

"Almost Escaped."

It is reported that a well known druggist almost escaped being bound over to answer before the superior court. He was arrested for selling bottled beer without a license. At the trial it was proven he had sold only twenty-three bottles. The justice took the case under advisement until the next day. In the meantime he went to the druggist to buy a bottle of beer, who desiring to be discharged, accommodated the justice. The following day the druggist was much surprised to hear the justice remark: "The defendant will be pegged under $200 bonds to answer before the superior court. Up to last evening the state had no case as there was evidence that only twenty-three bottles had been sold. The court has now positive proof of the sale of another bottle. It taking 24 bottles to make a case, this court must, of necessity, bind over the defendant."—Goldendale Sentinel.

STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting at Tacoma a Most Pleasant and Successful Affair.

The annual meeting of the State Press Association at Tacoma August 13, 14 and 15th was one of the most largely attended and enjoyable sessions of the newspaper fraternity that has ever been held in this state.

This year's meeting of the Association was to have been held at Gray's Harbor, but the place of meeting was afterwards changed to Tacoma by the executive committee for the reason that it was feared that suitable accommodations could not be secured in the Harbor town and from the fact that many members signified their preference for Tacoma as the meeting place in order that they might at the same time be able to take in the Elks' Carnival which was to be held in the "City of Destiny" beginning August 14th.

About 75 members were present when the session was opened in the Tacoma city hall, President Hull, of Whatcom presiding and Editor Angle, of Shelton, at the secretary's desk.

The first meeting was devoted entirely to routine and business matters, the secretary reporting a large batch of applications for membership. At the evening meeting a splendid program had been arranged which consisted in part of the recital of an original poem pertaining to journalism by Editor Heck of Fairhaven, an oration by Mrs. Minnie Sargent, editor of the Pullman Tribune, and addresses by Messrs. Sammons and Pratt, of Tacoma. The remainder of the time was filled in by the rendition of choice selections of music on the part of some of the ladies of the Association.

A larger attendance was noted at Wednesday morning's session, a number of knights of the pencil having arrived during the preceding night. After the delivering of the annual address by President Hull, the convention was warmly welcomed by Mayor Campbell on behalf of the Elks to which a suitable response was made by President Hull. After this the venerable historian of the Association, Col. Prosch, of Seattle, read his annual report. In addition the historian reviewed briefly the history of journalism in Washington territory and state and told of the struggles and hardships experienced by the pioneers of the profession.

After the adjournment for the noon hour almost the entire party repaired to a popular resort on Jefferson avenue where an elegant Bohemian luncheon was in waiting, which had been prepared for the hungry editors by the hospitable proprietors of the well known and popular Pacific Brewery.

By common consent Frank B. Cole, editor of the Pacific Lumberman, was selected as toast master for the occasion. To say that he was a success in that trying position is putting it mildly, the sparkling wit and pertinent remarks of the chairman keeping everybody in good humor. After the banquet the news mongers took a tour of inspection over the entire plant of the Pacific Brewing Co. in order to learn something about the manufacture of the delicious amber colored fluid.

At 2:30 p. m. the editorial party repaired to the Elks' Carnival grounds on A street and witnessed the coronation of Queen Edith, after which a number accepted the courtesy of the manager of the Midway and viewed the wonderful sights to be seen there. It is needless to add that most of the "press gang" deemed it necessary to make this tour of inspection in order to determine definitely whether the show was really an immoral one or not. The consensus of opinion among the pencil pushers after seeing the entire show was that it was not immoral. On Wednesday evening through the courtesy of the Tacoma Street Ry. Co. a delightful trip was made to Spanaway Lake, a beautiful resort 12 miles south of the city. On Thursday afternoon a trip to the beautiful Point Defiance park was also taken. On both occasions a member of the Chamber of Commerce accompanied the party and pointed out places of interest along the route.

At Thursday morning's session of the Association officers were elected for the ensuing year as well as ten delegates from the state to the National Editorial Association, which convenes next December at Hot Springs, Ark.

In the matter of selecting a city for the holding of the next annual session Walla Walla was unanimously agreed upon.

Before adjournment was taken a vote of thanks to the Tacoma Press club, and the citizens of that city for their splendid hospitality, was passed unanimously.

What Is a Man To Do.

Mr. Albert F. Foss, of Taswell, Ind., has deemed it necessary to cause the arrest of six girls for kissing him on the street. For this he is sure to be censured, especially as the assault is said to have been provoked by his claim that he had never been kissed. This naturally increases the desire of the girls to give him an idea of what he had been missing. They did not imagine, of course, that he would seek the protection of the law against these advances.

Still, it is pertinent to inquire what a young man is to do when his attractions are such that the fair sex insist on kissing him without waiting for his consent. Let him take what course he may he is pretty sure to come in for more or less blame. There was Richard Pearson Hobson, of the United States navy, whom the ladies made the object of a similar assault. Hobson was no hypocrite. He did not pretend that he did not like it. He was far from asserting at the beginning that he had never been kissed, and of course it was impossible for him to do so afterwards. He did not ask for protection from courts or the police, yet the osculatory advances increased in frequency and warmth. Then public opinion asserted itself, and he began to be denounced from every quarter. Much of the reputation which he had gained by gallantry in war was lost by his gallantry in peace. Soon afterwards he was sent out of the country, whether for his own protection or as a punishment does not appear.

Thus the man whom the ladies wish to kiss, noliens volens, is confronted with a double peril. He will be condemned if he submits and blamed if he appeals to the law for protection. In such cases, what is a man to do?—Courier Journal.

Death of B. F. Ward.

As the DEMOCRAT went to press last Friday afternoon, word was brought of the sudden death of B. F. Ward at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. James Wiley, on North Fourth street in this city. Mr. Ward had been in town several days with his wife undergoing medical treatment, and was apparently so far improved that he expected to return to his home, about 12 miles up the Ahtanum, the next morning. While sitting on the porch, in company with his wife and daughter, quietly reading a newspaper, death came so suddenly that all was over before his condition was realized.

Mr. Ward was an old resident of Yakima county, having lived here about 20 years. He was a prosperous farmer, owning one of the best and pleasantest homes in the Ahtanum valley. Besides the wife surviving him, he has several children residing in this county.

The body was interred in Tahoma cemetery Saturday afternoon, after services conducted at his daughter's residence by Rev. Dr. Hayden.

Yakima Charlie sought the aid of the police department this week to investigate the supposed killing of Charlie Honewassie at Union Gap, August 14, by one Smut. Honewassie has been missing over a week, and bloody clothing belonging to him was found secreted near the place where the supposed killing occurred. Smut has hied himself to the mountains, and Honewassie's tillicums are hot after him. All the parties are Yakima Indians.

Alex Sloan visited Roslyn Sunday, and a result of the trip was that his brother, Dr. George Sloan, has purchased the lot of T. G. Redfield on Yakima avenue, the price paid being $2500. The doctor has plans for the building next spring of a three-story brick or stone structure on his lots adjoining, and deemed it advisable to make this addition to his holdings. Mr. Redfield will continue to occupy the building with his business.

Yakima Lodge No. 911 of the Brotherhood of America was instituted in Odd Fellows' hall last Saturday evening. The officers elected are A. Newborg, president; C. W. McCormick, vice president; Joel Shomaker, secretary; A. S. Dam, treasurer; Dr. P. Frank, surgeon; Annie Smith, chaplain; Henry I. Durall, watchman; G. G. McCormick, sentry; Z. Y. Coleman, A. H. Jones and R. Strobach, trustees. The lodge starts with sixty members.

The Modern Woodmen of Zillah have challenged the North Yakima Lodge to a game of ball, and the gauntlet has been picked up. While the date has not yet been fixed, a big time is anticipated, as the affair will terminate with another kind of ball after the game has been played.

The great steel strike is still going on, and the strikers claim new accession to their ranks every day. The operators say they will never give in; ditto, the strikers. All Next Week.

Wiedemann's Big Show presenting a repertoire of the latest comedies at the popular prices of 20, 30 and 50 cents is the attraction at Larson's theater for a week's engagement opening on Monday, August 26th. The opening bill is the four act comedy, "Down in Egypt," a story of southern Illinois written by Tom Wiedemann. This attraction carries 25 people and their own band and orchestra and a strong acting company. A feature is Vaudeville between acts making a continuous performance and avoiding the long waits so annoying to the average theater goer. The following is clipped from the Portland, Ore., Evening Telegram of July 9th:

HAS SCORED A SUCCESS.

Business is good with the Weidemann Stock Company now playing an engagement at the Metropolitan. The house last evening was comfortably filled, the attendance being larger even than that of the opening night.

The play was "My California Home." It tells a story of life in the Golden state, and is a drama of thrilling situations, which seemed to please the audience down to the ground, to judge by the applause which each climax evoked. Frank G. Long, as Frank Clifton, the man who is almost made to suffer death for another's misdeeds, and Miss Nellie Weidemann, as Gay Howard, the heroine who saves and afterward marries him, have the bulk of the work to do, and fill their parts most acceptably, as do also the people who assume the minor characters.

But the most pleasing feature of the Weidemann Company's performances, at least to the minds of many, is the Vaudeville programme given between the acts. Vaudeville is a popular class of summer entertainment everywhere, and Portland is no exception.

Miss Clare Canfield has a voice which is truly remarkable. Last evening she sang "My Old Kentucky Home" in a voice which was nearer a pleasing bass than anything else, and then followed it immediately with a coon lullaby in soprano. Charles Harrington's imitations are always good and last evening was no exception. Pinkie and Ora Mulaly gave a clever singing and dancing specialty. Nellie Weidemann's electric dance was, as always, a hit, and the other specialties were well received.

Astounded the Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Chicago's Queer Indian.

An Englishman of rank and money visited Chicago recently and with him came his private secretary, a young, fresh faced, jolly fellow just out of Oxford university. The secretary brought letters of introduction to a Chicago man from a well known London actor and an equally prominent man of letters. The Englishman came direct to Chicago, making no stop in New York. The secretary called upon the Chicago man to whom he had letters and who did a little entertaining, inviting three city friends to meet the private secretary at luncheon at a noted restaurant.

It was after the cigars were lighted that the conversation turned upon things American. The Chicagoans knew that the Britons were credited with believing that they could shoot buffaloes under the shade of the Auditorium and shoot grizzlies along the Shokie, but they were not quite prepared for what was to come. The little luncheon party had been waited upon by a coal black negro with crisp hair curled tight to his head. The secretary throughout the repast had eyed the attendant with interest. When the waiter finally had left the room, the English guest turned to his host and said:

"Mr. Nelson, it seems to me that I read somewhere that the American Indians had straight hair. The hair of the one who waited on us curls like astrakhan."—Chicago Tribune.

Married With a Bump.

The marriage customs of the Negulors are peculiar. The young man who seeks a bride first obtains the favor of her parents and then pursues her, catching her in his arms. She breaks loose and runs and does not yield until he has caught her several times. Finally he leads her in triumph to her home. Here her father drags the youth up a ladder to her floor of their hut. The mother drags up the maiden. They are then made to kneel, and the father pours over them a cocoanut shellful of water. He then bumps their heads together, and the ceremony is completed. They spend their honeymoon in the depths of the mountains and for five days and nights are lost to sight, after which they come back to everyday life.

There is another marriage custom which is worth describing. Instead of the youth and maiden being dragged up the hut ladder they are made to climb two saplings that grow near each other. Then an elder of the group grasps the saplings and draws them together until the heads of the young couple touch, with a kiss or a bump, according to the force used. This makes them man and wife.—Forum.

Taking Umbrage.

A few idlers (no very unusual thing) were lounging in front of the shop of the baillie of the burgh, among whom the laird espied the village Aesculapius, who was his political oracle, and thus addressed him:

"How's a' wi' ye the day, doctor? Ony political news?"

"Nothing very particular," replied the doctor; "only it is said that the Dutch have taken umbrage at"—Here the doctor got a touch on his shoulder from his shop boy, who acquainted him that a valuable patient was waiting for him, and he broke off abruptly from his political laird.

"Ta'en Umbrage!" exclaimed the laird. "Mercy upon us! Hae they ta'en Umbrage? Baillie, ken ye if it's a wa'ed town or no?"

"A wa'ed town!" said the baillie; "nae sic thing. It's a sugar island and ane o' the sweetest o' them. The article's up already, but ye shall hae a stane weight hame wi' ye at the auld price."—Cornhill.

What amounts to almost a resolution in public sentiment has taken place since the new crushed rock pavement has been laid on Yakima avenue. Practically all of such citizens as were inclined to be pessimistic a few weeks ago as to the staying qualities and desirability of the new paving seem now to be convinced that it is the proper thing and that more of it is wanted. It was therefore with but little trouble that sufficient signatures were secured in the petition to the council asking for the paving of Front, First and Second streets which was favorable acted upon by the city dads at their meeting Monday night.
