Dear Sir:

I am sending you a circular of my forthcoming book, Drummers and Dreamers (due for spring publication) in hopes you will see fit to advance order a copy or so.

I feel that among your clients are several who would be interested in a footnoted, indexed book concerning these unusual Indians of the Northwest, who had so many characteristics of Florida Indians, the Seminoles. Moreover the book is a story of the future of all Indians.

Dr. F.W. Hodge has written the introduction and it has a four-color cover.

I am asking that any advance order be sent me, because it enables me to evaluate the advance reaction. You would be entitled to a 40 per cent dealer discount. The publishing company operates on the customary returnable basis and as you no doubt know, are a very reputable firm. The book, however, is not a vanity publication. A small house like Caxtons publishes in small numbers and with considerable hand work. So I am moving in to help promote the book in the proper channels. It occurred to me that you would be interested in a few copies.

Most Sincerely
