Below left, a stack of signs announces the opening of the new library.

Below right, librarian Kathy Garcia puts out balloons to attract visitors to the library's opening.
