

Bibliographical

Maps

Third of a page map: Showing Northern Pacific and North Coast routes through the lower Yakima valley, Donald Road may cross to parker and not use the Moxee gap...Yakima Herald, May 26, 1909.

A clean up took place in the high school a few days ago and among other treasures a "young Klondike" was discovered.

It had a red and yellow cover, the outside showing a party of young folks traveling with sleds along a winding trail between snow-covered hills, evidently bound for Dawson. Below was the following inscription: "An early start was made up the mountain to the summit of Chilkat pass. Ned and Dick pulled the sled, Edith walking beside it with the Unknown."

It was about as trashy a novel as one often sees but not quite as bad as another one that was unearthed among the pupils entitled "The Heart of Kwang-see or Phil's Raid on the Enemy's Stronghold."

The specimen had a frontispiece representing a young army officer with a drawn sword engaged in battle with eight Chinese who were armed with spears, axes, swords and pitchforks and had the following label below:

"With all the grit, pluck and force of a true American, Phil fought these desperate odds long as breath lasted."

Another volume of this paper backed assortment had a front page picture of a heavily armed hero rescuing a lady from the power of a Chinaman. It was entitled "Diamond Dick Jr.'s Worst Enemy or the Short Stop to a Ride in the Flume," and below were the lines appearing in the headlines of this article, "The Dispicable Villan."

There are still other numbers in the newly discovered library ~~show~~ among them an illustrated war story showing how easily one plucky American boy could sink a Spanish war ship and perform other astounding feats. The literature was all confiscated and the teachers should be commended for their vigilance, and are to be congratulated on nipping in the bud the a practice fraught with so much danger--Yakima Herald, April 21, 1898.

Bibliographical

Colul. and one-half story and line drawing of Maj. William M. Drannon, March 24 issue, The Yakima Republic, 1899. Termed "One of the foremost Indian scouts and the last of the great hunters and trappers common in the Rocky mountains fifty years ago...who still sees service among the Nez Perces of Idaho. He carries a knife which he has scalped thirty five Indians, having killed them in fair fight."

"It was Major Drannan who captured Captain Jack, the chief of the Modocs in 1873 and put an end to the Modoc war..."

Col. John Adair of Astoria, who is temporarily residing in Yakima on account of the health of his wife, Dr. Owen Adair, informed The Republic this week that none long ago in conversation with

A. B. Hammond, the builder of the Astoria & Columbia River railroads, he learned that it is the intention of the owners of that property to extend their line to the north side of the Columbia from Goble Ore.... The Yakima Republic, April 28, 1899

Mart Schichtl has a photo of the late Chief Moses taken twenty years ago just after he returned from Washington City. The data on the back of the photograph follows:

Sept. 10, 1879 Chief Moses, Kittitas valley. He has black broadcloth suit white buckskin coat trimmed with beaver fur and a gold chain and watch. Had him go with me to have this taken. He weighs 200 pounds.

Mart Schichtl--Yakima Herald, July 13, 1899.

Long illustrated article on agricultural colleges and instruction including some irrigation in July 20, 1899 issue, Yakima Herald.

Bibliographical

The land department of the Northern Pacific railway is arranging for publication of information regarding Washington and Northern Idaho and P. B. Groat, who has charge of the matter, states that the first edition will consist of 200,000 copies in the English and 125,000 copies in the German language.

The publication will contain letters from farmers residing in the different sections of the state and representing different interests. The main object of the publication is to place before the rural classes of Europe, with a view of encouraging their emigration to the state, reliable information regarding the advantages of Washington as a place of residence and the possibilities for the industries in the way of establishing themselves in comfortable homes at small cost.

Similar publications regarding Dakota, issued during the past two years, have stimulated immigration to that region.

Yakima Herald, May 19, 1892.

Bibliographical

The Tacoma Ledger has made a new offer of two tickets for the continuation of these stories and is still printing one every week. (old pioneer stories--tickets to Tacoma exposition)

They are intensely interesting. They are valuable as well, for they are preserving an important part not only the history of the state but of this coast, and this country which our pioneers will soon take to their graves, if it were not saved in this way.

Every settler, who came here before the railroads, is eligible in this competition (copy) and should send the Ledger his story and perhaps win the prize.

The Ledger is one of the best weekly papers in the state and the cheapest. You can secure it and The Herald for one year for $2.50 cash in advance. Send in your subscriptions at once--Yakima Herald, December 1, 1892.

bibliographical

W.D.C. Spike, formerly of this city but now of Tacoma is the publisher of a very creditable magazine under the caption of Spike's Illustrated Monthly. It has upwards of one hundred pages and has reached its second number--Yakima Herald, March 3, 1892.

Bibliographical

Yakima Herald Irrigation section, printed with pictures on glossy paper in edition of Thursday, March 31, 1892.

Contains writeups and stories of opening of first 25-mile unit of Sunnyside canal. Pictures of the canal, artesian wells, valley, sage brush, fruit, products, dam at lake Katcheez. Eight pages- March 31, 1892.

The Tacoma Ledger has started publication of "Old Settlers' Stories," which greatly increase the attractiveness of that paper. Several sketches from this section of the country have been forwarded in hopes of capturing the tickets to the world's fair which are offered as prizes, Yakima Herald, ~~March~~ April 7, 1892.

M.G. Wills has an "Old Settler's Story" in Monday's Tacoma Ledger. It is an account of the Yakima Indian campaign of 1855 in which he was one of the volunteers--Yakima Herald, Thursday, April 14, 1892.

W.D.C. Spikes magazine is a thing of the past. He published two numbers and finding it was a losing venture he wisely let go--Yakima Herald, April 14, 1892.

Bibliographical

The Northern Pacific has just issued a four page paper for circulation in the east devoted to fruit raising in Washington. Besides a number of illustrations of Yakima orchards, the following conservative account of this section is contained in the descriptive matter: --etc. Yakima Herald, May 25, 1892.

Bibliographical

An electrotpe of the seal of the state of Washington has been received for use in the Herald job office.

The Herald is now in its third year.

Yakima Herald, February 5, 1891.

Bibliographical

A very handsome and substantial piece of pamphlet work was today turned out of The Herald job rooms, being a book of 110 pages containing the charter and ordinances of the city of North Yakima.

A portion of the volumes are bound in sheep and the balance are in a heavy terra cotta cover. The work would be a credit to any office--
Yakima Herald, January 15, 1891.

Bibliographical

The Washington Magazine of Seattle has been changed to the Pacific Magazine and Lee Fairchild and Herbert Bashford succeed as owners.

Fairchild will be remembered as the humorous prohibition orator who spoke at the court house during the late campaign--
Yakima Herald, January 8, 1891.

Bibliographical

Colonel R.G. Ingersoll presented to the late J.M. Adams one of his books containig all of his best writings and lectures , which is very valuable and was greatly prized by the recipient.

Of these books, Col. Ingersoll had only three published, keeping one himself, one he gave to Mr. Adams and the third to his (Col. Ingersoll's) brother which was buried with him at his death.--Yakima Herald, January 1, 1891.

Bibliographical

Oregon's F¹rst Newspaper. It was called the Oregon Spectator and a Curious Sheet it was. North Yakima, December 18, 1890 , The Herald. Three-fourths col. article on page 1.

Bibliographical

George Bancroft, the venerable historian and statesman died at his home in Washington January 17, aged 81 years--Yakima Herald, January 22, 1891.

The Herald is just completing a handsome pamphlet of the rules, regulations and courses of study of the North Yakima public schools. No better job work is being done in the offices of large cities than is now being turned out by the Herald which is fully equipped to do all kinds of printing--Yakima Herald, January 22, 1891.

Bibliographical

A very good description of a trip over the Chilkoot pass to the Yukon covering the now famous Clondyke region was published in Scribner's magazine of November 1896 . It was written by Frederick Funston--
Yakima Herald, August 5, 1897.

Bibliographical

Benjamin P. Shillaber, better known under the nom-de-plume of Mrs. Partington, died at Chelsea , Mass., November 25, aged 76 years--
Yakima Herald, November 27, 1890.

✓

Bibliographical

Capt. Charles King, soldier who was forced to be a novelist.

Two column account of him in Yakima Herald, December 4, 1890.

Bibliographical

The Herald has issued the first 10,000 of a 50,000 order of a descriptive folder of Yakima, to be circulated at the Tacoma exposition and in the east--Yakima Herald, September 15, 1892.

Biographical

The Herald has received the seventh biennial report of the superintendent of public instruction for this state which is very complete with statistical information regarding educational matters of Washington.

There are illustrations of eighteen of the finest schoolhouses including the Columbia and Central schools of North Yakima--Yakima Herald, December 8, 1892.