Dear Marc:

Copy of letter enclosed is self explanatory. The Spokesman seems to have trouble in sending back copies--at least that's my experience so as a final resort I could loan you my copy which is part of an entire set.

I note that the author is Donald H. Clark. You probably know him. He works for the Forest Industries at the UW. In case you do not, you will find his address on Semple st., Seattle, and you will find Don most cooperative. I don't know what system of filing he has, but a fast glance at the article, concerning Cedar Valley, appearing January 24, 1954 in the Spokesman-Review, indicates he has, or has access to, pictures as no doubt much other information concerning Cedar Valley. Spokesman stories are always limited in length, so you must have more material.

I'm enclosing a few clips you may be interested in.

As you have a chance at some later date, would it be possible to give me some idea of the value of land along Priest Rapids---land that might be suitable for the Wanapums. In time, I have a hunch that my approach will be to lay down, to congressmen and senators interested in a "home acquist on project" such information.

If that dosen't work, this information will be necessary when Drummers and Dreamers is published. I have made the Old Man, Puck Hyah Toot, a one-third partner. While there won't be much money in the book, it may be a starter and will come in handy in my stories. If I'm able to present a picture of land values, etc. I might get some group interested, at the proper time.

I was in Seattle Saturday on a hurried trip to the ballet--over and back Saturday. I gave a call around 7:30, but no one answered at your number at home, Senaca something.

I'll check out my other material to see if any Cedar Valley material is included in it. Hurriedly.

kind regards
