Dear Click Relander:

Don Clark writes me that you are on the short story panel and I'm happy to have you, believing as I do that a moderator has it easy only when he has a good panel. And I'm ~~me~~ again lucky. I should have written you sooner, but you'll understand - working on a Christmas yarn in July.

The questions from the floor, it seems to me, is more helpful all around than a set program of the lecture type. However it is good when a member elaborates on his own experience when it fits a particular query.

What's the pheasant crop like over your way?

Sincerely,

Frank Pierce
