OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THE republican and goldbug democrat press are having a good deal to say just now anent the late state convention of the democratic party in Ohio. It is doubtless true that the so-called conservative element of the party won a notable victory in the Columbus convention, but facts in the case plainly show that such a result was due more to intrigue and accident than to any other cause and is therefore not to be considered as the deliberate judgment of the party in the Buckeye state, notwithstanding the claims of the goldbug newspapers. The Ohio platform appears to be a most cleverly written document, although probably more remarkable for what it does not mention than for what it does declare for or against. The fact that the Kansas City platform was not endorsed or mentioned is without doubt due principally to the fact that the green-eyed monster of jealousy is just now consuming the miserable soul of John R. McLean, the self-constituted political boss of the party in Ohio. The rising star of Tom L. Johnson the reform mayor of Cleveland, seems to have inspired McLean with the fear that unless something desperate was done to stem the tide the days of his own leadership were numbered. Thus it was that he allied his own large following to the small gold bug contingent in order to defeat Johnson, who promises to become a most dangerous rival. There is therefore no such significance in the result reached in the Ohio convention as the gold standard men would have the country believe. It does not represent a change of sentiment in the party ranks so much as it does the clashing ambition of the buckeye bosses.

WITH the possible exception of Spokane, North Yakima is destined to become in the comparatively near future the best and most prosperous inland town in the state of Washington. Being a purely agricultural town it cannot continue to grow healthily unless the needs of the tributary country require it, but then everybody knows that the surrounding country will require it, for as farming lands there is none that can equal them in the state. With a prosperous home located on every ten or twenty acres in all these fertile valleys who will pretend to assume that there is not a great and busy future in store for the town which in the same relation as the hub to the wheel lies at the confluence of these fruitful valleys and therefore easily accessible from all? This town is having no boom and wants none, but it is having a strong and normal growth which is much more to be desired. The man who can't see a city of ten or twelve thousand here in 1910 must have cobwebs on his brain.

THE Sampson-Schley controversy is on once more. This time the matter is brought to public attention by the suspension of Maclay's naval history from the curriculum of the Annapolis naval academy because of language abusive of Admiral Schley, practically charging him with lying in his reports of the celebrated naval battle off Santiago. Both the admirals have been approached for an interview, in which Sampson, with his usual verbosity, seeks to defend the alleged historian, while Schley maintains a dignified silence. The matter of the exclusion of the course of study from the school will probably result in a congressional investigation of all matters connected with the case.

OLD SOL is extremely prodigal in the diffusion of his heat rays these mid-summer days and seems to be particularly partial to that part of his great dominions which embrace the central and eastern states. In fact the heat has been so intense in some sections, particularly Kansas and Missouri, that the death list has reached fearful proportions. Not only has the death rate been excessively high, but the country has been seriously damaged through a total or partial loss of crops. It is always a cause for self-gratulation among the people of our own favored state that we are not thus made to suffer from climatic extremes as are the benighted residents of the east.

CHINA now comes forward with an enormous claim against the U. S. government for alleged outrages committed against her subjects in Montana way back in '88. If the Celestial empire is short of funds with which to pay the indemnity demanded by the allied powers on account of the "boxer" movement, she should resort to other methods to secure it. To come at this late day and ask payment of a claim which was outlawed years ago is the basest ingratitude toward the nation standing most strongly in the way of a partition of everything in sight, including the territory of China, among the European allies in the late Mongolian "unpleasantness."

IT is stated that at least 150,000 people have registered to be drawn in the lottery wherein 13,000 locations are available in the opening of the reservations in Indian Territory today. Large numbers of these people have been camped near the line for months past and many are in absolutely destitute circumstances. What will be the outcome when the lucky numbers in the drawing are announced, it is hard to say; but one thing is certain, such circumstances as this will hasten the time when the government will begin to develop the millions of acres in the arid belt by means of irrigation.

JIM HILL is showing his interest in the welfare of the country through which the Great Northern passes by proposing to build a system of elevators in the wheat belt and having the grain loaded in bulk, thus doing away with sacks and saving farmers an enormous outlay from which no returns whatever are realized. Aside from the expense of sacks, the result would be an inestimable saving of large quantities of grain injured every season by contact with weather, as under present conditions it is piled up at railroad sidings and in many instances entirely unprotected from rain.

THE Washington State Press Association convenes in Tacoma, August 13th and will remain in session for three days. The fact that the Elks' Carnival will be in progress in the "city of destiny" at the same time is an additional reason why the boys of the press should all turn out this year. Another incentive towards getting a crowd of pencil pushers at the Tacoma blowout is the princely offer of free beer that has been made by the generous brewery men of the Sound city.

MRS. KRUGER, wife of President Kruger of the Transvaal, died at Pretoria last Saturday. The sudden taking off of his lifelong companion was a severe blow to the patriarchal president of the South African republic, as well as a shock to the world at large. Messages of condolence from all the civilized world have flowed into the temporary home of Mr. Kruger in Holland and even the most ultra of Britain's jingo papers offer words of sympathy to the aged statesman.

THE Turkish and U. S. governments have shaken hands and made up. The shaking resulted a few days ago when Uncle Sam reached over and took $95,000 from the outstretched palm of the Turkish treasurer in liquidation of the "time-honored" debt of $100,000 due for a claim of damages of ten years standing. As $5000 was deducted from the original amount demanded, it is supposed that Uncle Sam was glad to compromise the matter and take what he could get.

A LOCAL catemporary seems to have made an individual effort to secure the donation of a block of ground for the county and thereon build a magnificent court house "by its lonesome." The commissioners deny all complicity except as to their willingness to accept all donations of "sites" that are offered.

WHERE now is the much-vaunted "full dinner pail" of 1900? More people are on a strike for "living wages" than at any time in the history of the country. As a slogan, it proved a winner; as a realization, it is sadly deficient.

COLE and James Younger, lately pardoned after serving twenty-five years of a life-sentence in the Minnesota penitentiary, have started life anew at the ages of 57 and 52, respectively, as salesmen for a St. Paul gravestone dealer.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

The Bartholet hotel office is indulging in the luxury of a new floor.

Born, Saturday, July 20, to the wife of Alex Carlson, a 10-pound girl.

A marriage license was issued last Saturday to Elbert M. Hawkins and Miss Ella E. Estes.

Clarke county is to have on exhibit this year at the state fair at North Yakima.—Vancouver Democrat.

J. T. McDonald, a former resident of Ellensburg and well known in Yakima as a prominent democrat, died at Republic, July 13, of dropsy.

S. J. Nelands will occupy the pulpit at the M. E. church next Sunday morning. Sunday school at the usual hour. All are invited to attend these services.

The first block of street improvement on Yakima avenue has been completed, excepting the almost incessant wetting and rolling necessary to solidify the material.

Mr. and Mrs. Connolly of North Yakima who have spent the most of the past year in Europe are thinking of making Ellensburg their future home.—Ellensburg Localizer.

Dr. C. Lynch, of North Yakima, was here Monday visiting H. D. Weyers and looking over the city with a view to locating. He has just returned from a trip to Louisville, Kentucky.—Everett News.

It is said that "pink-eye" has broken out among the horses in Yakima, nine or ten now in Brooker's pasture having developed the disease. A strict quarantine will have to be maintained before it can be eradicated.

The street commissioner's force this week has been augmented by several assistants furnished through the police court for violation of various city ordinances, particularly the one punishing drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Monday evening proved another "water haul" in securing a quorum for a city council meeting, Mr. Donald being the only member besides the mayor to answer roll call. No attempt will be made to hold another meeting before the next regular session, which occurs Monday, August 5.

Lines and grades were this week established for the construction of the 100x130 foot two-story brick building on Yakima avenue, near the new Miller-Ditter blocks. Mr. Clogg announces his intention of hurrying work on the building as soon as plans have been adopted. It is probable that the general front appearance will correspond with the structures now nearing completion in the same block.

On Tuesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Leach, W. M. Thompson and Miss Minnie A. Leach were united in matrimony by Rev. Mr. Hayden. About fifty friends and relatives of the happy couple were present to wish them joy in their new relationship. Wednesday the bridal pair left for a month or six weeks' tour on the Sound, from whence they will return to North Yakima to go to housekeeping. The DEMOCRAT acknowledges a handsome portion of the wedding cake, and wishes a long, prosperous and happy life to the young people.

George Leach, son of John A. Leach, was kicked by a horse at Tucker's livery stable last Tuesday, with nearly fatal results. He was standing with his back to the animal, which was a transient in the stable, when the horse kicked him squarely between the shoulders, knocking the young man senseless. George was conveyed to his father's house in the southern part of the city, where he is now slowly improving from his injury. If the horse had been rough-shod the result would no doubt have proved fatal, for as it was the young man will probably never escape a call so close as this one.

The Walla Walla baseball team arrived as per schedule last Saturday, and an interesting game was played in the afternoon with the Stars, resulting in a victory for the latter by a score of 9 to 7. On Sunday afternoon another game was played in which the Walla Walla boys took the honors, the record being 11 to 9 in their favor. The Sunday crowd was much larger than that of the day previous, and everybody got his money's worth, the only kick made being against the umpire, it being charged that he had placed his money on the visitors. When he was replaced by another umpire, everything worked smoothly to the end, two very good performances being given.

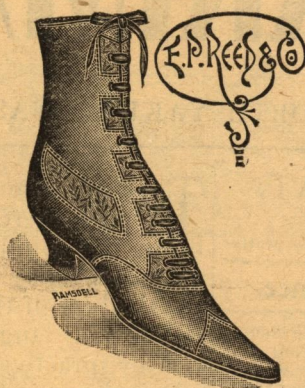

Skeekin, an Indian squaw, with two children, aged about two and seven years respectively, were found by the city officers near the stock yards last Wednesday and brought to the city jail. The woman and eldest boy were very much under the influence of alcohol, and it was necessary to take the child to the hospital for treatment, as his condition was for some time regarded as critical. The husband of the squaw came in Thursday and charged Que-Eyed John, another Indian with being responsible for the condition of his family; so a warrant was sworn out before U. S. Commissioner Howlet and an officer sent to the reservation to arrest the malefactor.

A young man named William Kruse was arrested Monday by Sheriff Tucker, under suspicion of being the prime moving cause in the disappearance of numerous bicycles in North Yakima recently. His "shack" west of the track was searched and three of the wheels recently purloined were brought to light. He is now confined in the county jail awaiting his examination, which will occur next Monday. Kruse claims that he purchased the wheels from other parties, and that he is running a "bike" repair shop. The wheels recovered were all mixed up, parts being exchanged, with apparent intent to disguise them. The entire Kruse family, consisting of the father, mother and several children have at one time and another been connected with the local Salvation army. The head of the family was recently released from the Walla Walla penitentiary, where he served a term for "slickeering" in the southern part of the county.

TRAGEDY AT OLD TOWN.

Alvin Richmond Fatally Shot by Wife of the Station Agent.

Thursday afternoon a man rode into town post-haste for a doctor, the sheriff, and coroner, demanding that they go immediately to Yakima City to act in their several capacities in a case of shooting at that point. Investigation proved the fact that Alvin Richmond, an old and well-known resident of the old town, had been shot—perhaps fatally—by Mrs. E. H. Scholes, wife of the N. P. station agent and telegraph operator at that point.

From the meagre details so far gleaned, it seems that the origin of trouble dated from the day previous, when a merchant of Yakima City named Barnett had been involved in a difficulty with John Richmond, a son of the man shot, over the delivery of some hay for shipment.

There seems to have been only one eye-witness to the tragedy, besides the principals, but it is said that Richmond was under the influence of liquor and was making threatening demonstrations toward Mrs. Scholes with a club when the fatal shot was fired. Mrs. Scholes is under legal advice and has so far refused to go into the details of the tragedy.

The shooting occurred near the depot and Richmond received the bullet from a revolver in the intestines, and the physicians in the case regard the injury as necessarily fatal.

The wounded man was brought up to the hospital late Thursday evening, where an operation was performed as a last resort to save his life. At the hour of going to press Richmond is still alive, but the physicians express no hope of his recovery.

Mrs. Scholes is in charge of the sheriff pending a judicial investigation of the causes leading to the shooting.

Walter Cherry, an 18-year-old lad residing in Selah, met with a peculiar and almost fatal accident last Monday by falling upon a hay-hook on a wagon loaded with baled hay. The hook ran between his legs and up through the bowels, penetrating the bladder. He is now in the hospital undergoing surgical treatment, and, strange to say, is said to be recovering. Young Cherry is a brother of Mathias Cherry, who was killed in the Philippines while serving in Washington's volunteer regiment.

Henry White, the Spokane capitalist spoken of in the DEMOCRAT a couple of weeks ago as having gone to Gold Hill to investigate several mining propositions, came down last Saturday with Jack Campbell and Chas. Lull and returned to his Spokane home. Mr. White was rather non-committal as to the outcome, but stated that he would likely be back in a couple of weeks to make a more thorough and complete investigation of the Gold Hill section.

A special train will leave here for Ellensburg next Sunday morning to convey the baseball saloonists and a big crowd of rooters for a days' fun with our northern neighbors. The Yakima brass band will go along to enliven the occasion, and it is expected that at least 100 excursionists will take advantage of the cheap opportunity to visit the "burg." Full fare for one way will be the price required for the round trip.

Old newspapers for sale at this office 25c per hundred.

Horse buyers have lately been purchasing all available stock in this section. It is said they will be shipped to South Africa for use by British cavalry.

John Martin's three-year-old girl was poisoned Wednesday night, supposedly by eating canned salmon. Prompt medical assistance saved the little one's life.

Telephone wires have been laid to Parker and the southern extension of the line is progressing rapidly. North Yakima will be the central station for all this section of country.

Chas. McGlothlen and Wm. Pitt, of Priest Rapids, were in town Thursday. They report a large influx of new settlers on the Columbia, and that active work will soon commence on the system of artesian wells proposed for their valley.

J. L. Patterson struck water in his artesian well on the Moxee last Friday at a depth of slightly less than 1200 feet. There is a good flow, sufficient, it is thought to irrigate a quarter section. As this well is in the recognized artesian belt, little has been said outside the immediate neighborhood.

Papers have been served in a suit for $15,000 damages in the case of G. M. Ross vs. Tom McKay, a wealthy half-breed on the reservation. Snyder & Preble represent the plaintiff, who is now in the hospital undergoing treatment for injury received last April by a knife in the hands of McKay.

Dr. E. G. Pugsley was in North Yakima last Sunday, making final arrangements to return to his old eastern home to stay the remainder of his days. The doctor went to Seattle to bid farewell to his son J. B. Pugsley and family and on Thursday had the misfortune to lose his tickets, some one having stolen them.

Trouble is brewing among the barbers on the question of Sunday closing. It is understood that all but two of the shops in the city are in favor of closing on Sunday, and a number of journey-men barbers have announced their intention of organizing a "walk-out" if proprietors insist on keeping open on Sunday.

A contract was let this week for the construction of twenty-five miles of the Portland, Vancouver and Yakima rail-ways to connect with that portion of the road already completed. Prospects are bright for the early completion of the road, which will open up a magnificent country, rich in coal, timber, agricultural and mineral resources.

The Excursion settled.

The excursion to North Yakima is no longer an uncertainty. The matter was definitely decided upon at a meeting of the several committees the early part of the week at which time they fixed the date as Saturday, August 24th. This date will bring the excursion in the midst of the fruit season and at a time when people are naturally longing for a day off. Now all that remains to be done is for everybody to get in and advertise the matter as widely as possible and the committee should secure the necessary guarantee at an early date so as to make sure of plenty of train equipment in time. This will undoubtedly be the largest excursion that has ever left this city for any point. The Roslyn citizen's band will be hired to furnish music and a base ball game will very likely be arranged between either the Roslyn First Nine or Grays and a Yakima team. This will be an event in the lives of many of our people. There are hundreds of children and young people who have scarcely ever been outside of this town and a trip of this kind will be quite an education to them, as they will observe and remember what they see. A great many people here also are anxious to see the Yakima valley with a view to purchasing a small home, and all such will enjoy a drive over the valley.

The fare will not likely exceed $1.60 for the round trip for grown people and 80 cents for children over five. It is likely the train will leave here about 6:30 a. m. and return about midnight. Boom the excursion!—Roslyn Miner.

ANTEDATES THE AZTECS.

Prehistoric City of Immense Proportions Unearthed.

A prehistoric city of immense proportions is said to have just been unearthed on the Navajo Indian reservation between Durango, Colo., and Farmington, N. M., the particulars of the find having been reported to the land department of the Santa Fe system in this city.

A mercantile company which has been exploring the territory in question for some time, a short time ago found a palace of prehistoric age, containing, it is said, about 1,000 separate apartments, some of them in an excellent state of preservation. Another stone castle contained 100 separate apartments.

In some of the rooms inspected were found the finest of woods and other relics of a valuable character, specimens of which have been gathered and sent to the Smithsonian institution in Washington.

The find is said to be exceptionally valuable from a scientific and ethnological standpoint, and is believed to antedate the time of the Aztec occupation of the country ages ago.

YAKIMA'S VISIBLE WEALTH.

Great Increase in Taxable Values Over 1900.

The assessed valuation of property in Yakima county this year, particularly personal, shows a remarkable increase over taxable values of 1900. As far as heard from, the percentage of increase is largely above that of any other county in the state.

The following figures show the full value of property assessed and the increase over 1900.

Value personal property 1901. $1,788,808
Value personal property 1900. 1,248,061

Increase in values. 540,747
Less exemptions under new law 150,225

Total increase personal property 390,522
Value real estate 1901. 3,888,500
Value real estate exempt. 88,126

Total value all kinds real estate 3,976,716
Value real estate 1900. 3,890,563

Increase real estate. 86,153

The wonderful influx of new people in the county is supposed to be the cause of the great increase in taxable values, and next year it is prophesied, there will be a much greater proportionate increase.

HORSE HEAVEN ACCIDENTS.

Two Men Meet Untimely Deaths.

The Prosser Record gives the following account of two fatal accidents in that section last week:

Everett Roberts, one of Horse Heaven's best known farmers, was killed Thursday morning by being run over by a big combined thrasher and harvester. He and his crew were hitching to the combined machine for the first time, to begin harvesting his wheat crop. Himself and Will Pearson were each holding a string of leaders, the driver had just given the word to go, they started upon the jump, and from all accounts, Mr. Roberts was thrown to the ground and was unable to gain feet again as the thirty head of horses ran over him leaving him in the track of the big drive-wheel, which with the weight of the entire machine passed over his body crushing it beyond recognition. Pearson and the driver escaped unhurt. Mr. Roberts was one of the pioneers of Horse Heaven having lived there for many years. He leaves a young wife to whom he had only been married a few months.

Another was added to the chapter of untimely deaths yesterday morning in the killing of Mr. Ordway by a runaway attached to a water-wagon. It seems that he had fallen down between the horses and was struck in the head as he fell, killing him instantly, the wagon passed over his body without touching him. Mr. Ordway had only lived in Horse Heaven a short time, having moved there from Portland, Oregon. He leaves a large family, mostly grown.

THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT

NORTH YAKIMA.....JULY 27, 1901.

The Next Coming Struggle.

Carnegie got away to Europe with two hundred million dollars, which he had amassed out of the iron and steel trade, through operations like that bloody affair at Homestead, and through unconscionable prices for iron and steel products to American consumers; and these two hundred millions he is giving away, with great ostentation, to Europeans while his successors in America, working the trust to the uttermost and making profits as fast as he did, are denying the claims of labor to moderate advance and improved conditions.

The working people of America are getting mighty tired of this "paternal" policy, in which the trusts have the support of a government bounty, while they pile up more fortunes like that of Carnegie. A great strike in the steel works of the country is now again at hand. Thus far organized labor is the only available check to plutocratic greed. There will be others; but the danger is that there will be an ultimate plunge into state socialism.

But Carnegie's gifts are not the only gifts that our monopolistic plutocrats are making to Europe. These lords of wealth are constantly making to Europe the gift of lower prices than they are making to America. Combination, and support of protective tariff, are the means or instruments that enable them to do it. They are permitted to have a tariff that enables them to keep foreign goods out of America and to charge high prices at home while they meet competitors with lower prices abroad. English journals say that "the American invaders" are pressing English manufacturers "not merely in steel products but in five hundred industries at once." "Today," says the London Mail, "it is literally true that they are selling American cottons in Manchester, pig iron in Lancaster, tinplate in Cardiff and steel in Sheffield. It only remains for them to take American coals to Newcastle."

How is this accomplished? It can be done only by underselling the British manufacturers; and this again can be done only by making lower prices to the foreign trade than to the domestic trade. The principle is to hold up prices at home, and with the money thus extorted from our own people, to fight manufacturers abroad; pretending meanwhile that the system which enables them to do this is necessary for the "protection" of the workingmen of the United States.

It is no answer to the working people of the United States to tell them that their condition is better than it was fifty years ago. It ought to be better—though it is not better for all. Great numbers have and no doubt always will have difficulty in obtaining the bare necessities of life. But under the monopolistic system which we have fostered, the larger part, vastly the larger, of the results of modern invention and progress go to the very few, who have become powerful enough to oppress the great body of the consumers of the country; and they do it. Else we should not hear of the fabulous dividends on American Steel or Standard Oil, nor of the display of wealth which in many cases so scandalously exceeds the modesty of private fortunes.

It may prove that a great democracy like our own is the only system of government under which problems of this nature can be adequately dealt with. Certainly they never have been dealt with adequately under any other system of government, ancient or modern. Even the most cheerful optimist cannot, however, but entertain some fear that the shock of a contest in which the forces are so vast may make a wreck of civilization. Yet the contest must go on, at all risks. There can be no vested right in possession and use of the instruments of wholesale injustice and oppression. They who think that rational and moderate methods are better than those of revolutionary violence are to have a hard time of it, between the greed of the great plutocrats on the one hand and the fierceness of social agitators, incendiaries and revolutions on the other. —Oregonian.

Washington State Fair.

The Homestead is in receipt of the sixth annual premium list of the Washington State Fair, which is to be held in North Yakima, September 30th to October 5th, 1901.

Last year there was a good exhibit and a good attendance. This year the management has more to do with, and it is expected that it will be the best fair in the history of the state. Dr. T. B. Gunn, the secretary, writes that they are assured of a fine exhibition this fall. He says they have closed a 2:15 pace for $1000; a 2:20 pace for like amount, and also a 2:30 trot for the same; and a two year old pace for $500, and that all have fair entries. He also says that the interest in the fair is better than in previous years, and that they anticipate a good attendance.

The people of Washington should give their State Fair the support it deserves. The grounds are in good shape and the building ample for an extensive fair, and all that is needed is the attendance. The exhibits of the products of the farm were good last year. Whether the exhibits shall be better or not depends upon the farmers and fruit growers. They should fill the pavilion, as they have the fruits, vegetables, grains, etc., to do it with.—Pacific Homestead.

NEGROES TO GIVE WAR-SHIP.

Albert S. Lowe Plans to Raise $1,500,000 Among 900,000 Colored People.

Georgia negroes want to build a $1,500,000 battleship and present it to the United States as a proof of their patriotism. Albert S. Lowe, of Marietta, is the author of the scheme, and Gov. Chandler has made public the negro's ideas.

Lowe was formerly a private in the Tenth Cavalry of the regular army, fighting in the battle of Santiago. After three years' service he was honorably discharged in 1899 with the rank of sergeant.

Lowe plans to stump the state in behalf of his scheme, appealing to the 900,000 negroes in Georgia for the funds.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, July 19, 1901.

Has New York a democratic candidate for the presidential nomination? That question is being asked in Washington since a prominent New York democrat dropped a quiet hint that Col. Dan Lamont, who was Mr. Cleveland's private secretary during his first administration and secretary of war during his second, and who has since been associated with ex-Secretary Whitney in various big business enterprises, might become democratic candidate for governor of New York, and if elected would become a candidate for the presidential nomination. Of course, there are some substantial "ifs" to be considered in connection with this matter, but the whole presidential question is one of "ifs" at this time. There are several reasons why Dan Lamont would make a strong candidate for any position he might aspire to. First and foremost is his personal popularity. A man who could spend eight years in Washington as prominently associated with administrations as he was with those of Cleveland without making an enemy, as Dan Lamont did, must necessarily be a remarkable sort of a man. The next reason in importance is that he would have the advice and active assistance of William C. Whitney, who has shown himself to be one of the shrewdest political managers the country has ever had. This thing may be no more than the idle talk of a summer day, but if Dan Lamont becomes a candidate for the democrat nomination for governor of New York, he will get it, and would probably be elected, and that would naturally make him a presidential possibility.

There is little that is new in the exposure of the distribution of the patronage of the house, made this week by the National Civil Service Reform League, but it is none the less disgraceful to the republican majority of that body which allows the stealing, for that is the proper name for receiving money and giving no pretense of return for it. Men are carried on the house pay roll who never even come to Washington, but have checks for their salaries mailed to them, and others draw salaries for work which they have others do, paying them only a small fraction of what they receive. The patronage of the house is not under the civil service law. It is controlled absolutely by the will of the majority, and that majority should be held responsible for the willful waste of the people's money, and especially those members who have held up the officers of the house and demanded that salaries be provided for their favorites should be held up to the public contempt they so richly deserve. The weak spot in the long and detailed exposure is the careful avoidance of putting in the names of looting congressmen. This avoidance is so palpable that it is clearly intentional. Names are given in plenty, but they are those of the little rascals. A proper exposure would have given the names of those who made the rascality possible, but perhaps the gentlemen who made the investigation for the C. S. R. L. were a little bit afraid to attack the congressmen by name.

Probably if Commissioner Evans had made rulings that would have involved the paying out of the $5,468,505.89, unexpended balance of the $144,000,000 appropriated by congress for pensions, which he has turned back into the treasury, the ring of pension sharks would have been less persistent in their demands for a new commissioner for pensions.

The administration has at last found a place for Col. John F. Mosby as special agent of the general land office. It isn't a very big place, but it is understood that the necessities of Col. Mosby had become so pressing that he received the appointment with thanks.

Representative Hooker, of Miss., who passed through Washington this week, does not endorse the idea of dropping silver, and he strongly deprecates the fight that is being made on Mr. Bryan. He said: "Silver has been part of the world's money since the earliest dawn of recorded history, since Abraham paid 500 pieces of silver for the land in which to bury his wife Sarah. And why should there be this uproar against Mr. Bryan? He has not been forcing himself on the American people since the last election. It was his privilege to take up newspaper work. He had to do something to support himself and family and has been going about it in a dignified manner. I served in congress with Mr. Bryan, and there I gained a high regard for his ability."

The long-talked of order of the postmaster general regulating second-class mail was issued this week. It doesn't regulate anything, unless it be the consciences of the postal officials who have winked at evasions of the law governing second-class mail. It merely provides for an enforcement of the law, which the postmaster general and every one of his subordinates have all along been under oath to support. If this order is strictly enforced it will simply prove what has been as plain as the nose on your face that there was plenty of law to shut fake publications out of second-class mail, and only needed back bone on the part of officials to enforce it.

Bright Sayings of Children.

One of the first things to attract the attention of Baby Clarence was grand-ma's hatrack, made of a pair of deer horns. One afternoon, when he was three years old, his papa took him to Capt. G.'s park. When relating the incidents of the trip to his mamma on their return he exclaimed: "And, oh, mamma! I saw a deer and he had a hatrack on his head!"

Mable's mother was showing her a brood of chickens hatched in on incubator. "They are poor little orphans," said the mother. "An' is that the orphan asylum?" asked Mable, pointing in wonder at the incubator.

"Why, Johnnie! What in the world do you want to be a newsboy for?"

"So's I can jump on and off the 'lectric cars."

A little girl went out to play one day in the fresh, new snow, and when she came in she said: "Mamma, I couldn't help praying when I was out at play." "What did you pray for, my dear?" "I prayed the snow prayer, mamma, that I heard at Sunday-school." "The snow prayer! What do you mean, little one?" "I mean the beautiful snow prayer in the Bible, mamma. You know it says: 'Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.'"

"Enjoy your party, Bobby?" "Yes, ma." "Well, what girls did you dance with?" "Oh, I didn't dance. I had three fights downstairs with Willie Richardson, and licked him every time."—Current Literature.

STATE PRESS OPINION

Carnegie has $280,000,000 left to give away. His address is Skibo Castle, Scotland. Don't all write at once.—Cascade Miner.

According to the Ohio republican platform, neither the bounty of the Lord nor the industry of the people have anything to do with matter of prosperity; it all depends on the republican party.—Ellensburg Dawn.

It is not surprising that a college professor who compares John D. Rockefeller to Shakespeare should make other equally astonishing assertions. The average Sunday school book is not much, to be sure, as a literary gem, but Prof. Trigg is the only man thus far who gives it a lower place than the dime novel as a useful civilizing influence.—Seattle P. I.

The new school-book law will undoubtedly call for a whole lot of new books next September. With the already tremendous burden of our school taxes, it does seem that we might be spared an almost equal expense through these constant changes. The taxpayers of this state are entitled to free school books.—Walla Argus.

We notice that since the monumental steals in Philadelphia came to light, the republican papers are keeping very quiet in regard to alleged larceny in Tammany hall.—Mt. Vernon Argus.

It is hinted that Senator Foster is attempting to consolidate in his own future interest both the Wilson and the Ankeny factions. It is noted that the Tacoma statesman bases his ability in effecting this fusion on a careful distribution of the federal loaves and fishes. Once on a time there was a man who thawed out thirty sticks of giant powder on a hot stove.—Vancouver Register-Democrat.

It seems that would-be Printing Expert, Houghton, is about as difficult to choke off from the official teat as he was expeditious in grabbing on to the source of lacteal supply, and notwithstanding the law-makers have declared that he has no standing at the stall, he persists in crowding himself in. His claim is that the legislature had no right to pass a bill over the executive veto, at a special session, a contention that would scarcely be made by anybody but the man who hooked his salary button to the date of his appointment, which was a month or two before he had an opportunity to gratify or perform any official service.—Olympia Standard.

The Old Lady's Frog.

There is the well known medical story of the old lady who imagined that she had a frog in her stomach. Her doctor, after vainly trying to persuade her that it was only imagination, considered a little deception justifiable to prevent this idea becoming fixed in her mind. Having administered an emetic, he managed to adroitly introduce a frog into the basin as if it had just arrived from the old lady's stomach. The patient's joy was great, as there was proof positive that she had been right all along as to the cause of her illness. Her joy was soon overclouded, as the idea struck her that, although there was the old frog, there might be little frogs left

Just The Blues.

Many a woman dresses to go out, feels irresolute, sits down, and falls into a fit of despondent musing. Ask her what's the matter, and she'll probably answer "Just the blues." And what are the blues? Only another name, in general, for a disordered liver and a diseased stomach. The effects of this condition are something similar to those produced on brain and body by a vitiated atmosphere or by the inhalation of poisonous gasses. There is dullness of mind, languor of body, a feeling of depression, and irresolution. The worst thing that any one can do when in this condition is to use so-called tonic medicines whose "tonic" properties consist in alcohol, or some such narcotics as opium or cocaine. Many a "cocaine fiend" took the first step toward that degraded condition in the use of some so-called tonic or nerve medicine.

The essential thing to be done is apparent. The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition must be cured of disease. The clogged liver must be cleansed. The poisons must be driven out of the blood. All this is done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the "weak" stomach, purifies the blood, nourishes the nerves, cleanses the clogged liver, and makes itself felt in the vigorous health of both brain and body.

"I had liver complaint for the past fifteen years, complicated with dyspepsia and gall stones," writes Mrs. N. Bernier, of 461 Elm St., Oshkosh, Wis. "I doctored with seven of our prominent doctors, and not one or all of them have done me the good, nor begun to do what your medicines have. I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, one vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and have gained about eighteen pounds since I first began to take these remedies."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are the best and safest laxative medicine for women's use.

behind. The doctor, however, was equal to this sudden emergency, for on a rapid examination of the frog he immediately assured the patient that her fears were groundless, as her late guest was a gentleman frog.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

The modesty that a man has is only bashfulness in a woman.

Kisses are like mushrooms; they all look alike, but some of them aren't.

The average girl judges a novel by whether it is nice to read in a hammock or in bed.

A "womanly" man is probably one that doesn't like a sponge as well as he does a washrag.

You can make any woman like you by being gentle with her, but you have to be a brute to make her love you much.

When a woman is very positive she is never certain.

When a man gets married there is at least one woman that he loses all his influence with.

The longer a man lives the more he has to live for and the more he has to live without.

It always seems like a miracle to a man the way a woman will manage a big hat, a long skirt, a bundle and her religion in a high wind.

There are about as many marriages caused by misery as there are miseries caused by marriages.

It is a curious thing that you can never see how fat people can possibly be happy, and yet you never see any that look miserable.—New York Press.

You can usually get a bargain in a horse, second-hand buggy or wagon at E. J. Wyman's.

Having bought the news business of C. W. Liece I am now prepared to deliver to patrons the Seattle Daily Times, Tacoma Ledger and Tacoma News. Office, First street.

FROM THE RUBAIYAT.

I sometimes think that never blows so red
The rose as where some buried Caesar bled;
That every hyacinth the garden wears,
Dropt in her lap from some once lovely head.

And this reviving herb whose tender green
Fledges the river lip on which we lean—
Ah, lean upon it lightly, for who knows
From what once lovely lip it springs unseen!

And not a drop that from our cups we throw
For earth to drink of but may steal below
To quench the fire of anguish in some eye
There hidden—far beneath, and long ago.

As then the tulip from her morning sup
Of heavenly vintage from the soil looks up,
Do you devoutly do the like till heaven
To earth invert you—like an empty cup.
—Omar Khayyam.

CHEE-WING-SU, MANDARIN

BY M. QUAD.

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY C. B. LEWIS.

Beginning at Shangtung, in the Yellow sea, the coast line of China is dotted with islands clear down to Hongkong, a distance of over 2,000 miles. If the islands could be counted, I believe they would number 10,000, great and small. While some are uninhabited, there is not an honest community on one of them. The people are wreckers and pirates to a man, and woe betide the ship which meets with disaster on any of the island shores. From Yang-tse-Kiang to the entrance of the straits of Formosa the islands are under the jurisdiction of a mandarin at the above port. In the year 1868 this mandarin was one Chee-Wing-Su, who had held office for years, and his reputation was that of a devil. There was no question but that he encouraged piracy and got his divide, and his orders all along the coast line were to kill every white person who might fall into the hands of his subjects. The fellow was subordinate to the governor of Shanghai, but whenever he was brought up on the complaint of a European consul he managed to get the best of it. He was fairly well educated, a finished liar and hypocrite, and there was no catching him.

In the year I have mentioned above certain Americans in Hongkong decided to fit out an opium clipper to supply the port of Shanghai. Opium smuggling was against the law, of course, and any person found engaged in the trade was beheaded at once, but you might as well try to keep rice as opium out of China. The profits in smuggling have always been enormous, and it has always been part of the business to bribe the custom officials. As Shanghai was to be supplied from Yang-tse-Kiang I was sent up to arrange matters with Chee-Wing-Su. There was no beating around the bush. I told him what we wanted, and he lost no time in giving me his figures. For such a per cent he would guarantee us safety. He was smooth and suave, but under the polish I saw the hypocrite and tiger. I accepted his terms for the company, but I also warned them that he would not hesitate to play any sort of game for his own benefit. He gave us a flag to protect us from piratical junks, but we did not trust to it. The clipper was fitted out with four guns and well provided with small arms, and the crew of 18 was made up entirely of Europeans. On our very first voyage, despite the old scoundrel's flag, we were twice attacked by junks which he probably sent out. We sent both of them to the bottom with their crews, and, although Chee-Wing-Su must have heard of the tragedies, he passed them by without a word.

We had run three cargoes when the old fellow prepared a surprise party for us. He sent for our captain and changed the place of landing to an island about 15 miles farther south. He claimed that the officials at Shanghai had got on to our business and had set a watch, and, though the captain did not believe the story, he agreed to make the landing on the next voyage. We made the bay at night as we returned, but the guns were double shot, the muskets and pistols loaded, and every man was at his post. The first thing we knew we were surrounded by five junks, and then a fight began which lasted 40 minutes. We sunk four of the junks and drove the fifth ashore, with the loss of but three men on our side. Next day Chee-Wing-Su appeared on board and pretended to be very excited and indignant that we had been molested against his orders. In the fight we had exterminated at least 100 of the vermin, but had captured unhurt and were holding ten others. To try to smooth things over with us the wily old scoundrel had the ten brought before us, read them a lesson on morality and then had their heads struck off by his own executioner.

Our landing was to be Yang-tse-Kiang again, and Chee-Wing-Su put up another job. To restore our confidence in him again he offered to put $2,000 into our next venture and draw out only a fair per cent. This seemed like a fair thing, and it was accepted. He handed over the money with promptness, and we sailed away, but when our captain had had time to turn the matter over in his mind he began to wonder and theorize. Old Chee-Wing-Su would never have put in his money without some stronger motive than a per cent profit. Few Chinese ever trust a European a shilling's worth, and a man of his class must have handed over his little fortune to throw dust in our eyes. A good deal of time was given to the puzzle, but just what his scheme was could not be satisfactorily solved. We could only watch and wait and be prepared for whatever might happen.

On our return we always made port at night. When we had displayed an agreed signal, sampans came off to us and unloaded and took away the cargo, and an agent was at hand to pay for it. Chee-Wing-Su's agent was also there to collect his blackmail. There would be 30 Chinamen aboard of us when discharging cargo; but, though they were a villainous lot, we felt no fear of them and did not keep the crew even under arms. We were within a day's sail of port on our return when the captain was struck by an idea. Chee-Wing-Su knew that our cargo would be a heavy one. Suppose he should have planned to cut the clipper out in harbor? All he had to do was to put men enough aboard, and when he had exterminated the crew and taken possession who was to betray him? He had men who could sail the craft, and by giving her a new coat of paint, a new name and making some changes in her rig she could not be recognized. Even if she were, what would her owners dare do about it? To have set up a claim would have been to convict themselves of smuggling. As for wiping out a score of Europeans, he would consider that as a sort of duty under any circumstances.

Before we made harbor everything was prepared and every man instructed. In response to our signal a dozen sampans appeared, and the first man on our decks was the rascally old Chee-Wing-Su. He was effusive, good natured and slick as grease. He said there was cause for haste in unloading, as the custom officials had suddenly become active, and he was permitted to order about 50 men on board to break out cargo. As soon as our anchor was down all but two or three of our crew disappeared, and the captain and agents sat down to a luncheon in the cabin. Not a box had yet gone over the rail when the Chinese on deck broke loose. In 30 seconds every man but the captain was sailing into them. They were armed with knives only, while we had cutlasses. No firearms were used. The fellows made a good stand for about five minutes, and then we began driving them. No quarter was given. When the last living yellow devil went overboard, there were 30 dead ones on our decks. Of course, the row was heard in the cabin. At the first sound Captain Walters laid his revolver on the table before him and said to Chee-Wing-Su:

"There seems to be some skylarking going on above, but we will not interfere with it."

"If my men are creating any trouble, I must go up and stop it," replied the old pirate.

"Your men are all right, and you will remain right here."

They heard the sounds of battle and knew that the Chinamen were being driven overboard, but the captain talked about the voyage and the profits and pretended ignorance of the real state of affairs. When the fight had ended, the anchor was lifted and the clipper sailed away out of the harbor. Chee-Wing-Su played the hypocrite at first. Then he blustered and threatened, and at the end he broke down and became disgustingly abject. The agent on board with him was in the plot. He refused to give it away at first, but when he knew that death was the alternative he talked fast enough. The game was to seize the clipper and cargo and murder us all, and if we had not been on our guard it would have been carried out to the letter.

We made a run for another port. Chee-Wing-Su made a big offer for his life, and as a matter of law we had no right to punish him. I must tell you, however, that law or no law, he was hung by the neck to the yardarm, while the agent was landed on an uninhabited island. It was a high handed thing to do, you will say, and yet the governor of Shanghai, who could have been bribed any time for $10 and who hadn't an honest hair in his head, came out in a proclamation and publicly thanked Providence for removing a bad man from earth. A few months later he somehow got knowledge as to who owned the clipper, and he seemed inclined to raise a fuss, but with my own hands I carried him $250, and he laughed and grinned and rubbed his hands together and let the affair drop there and then.

Traps in French.

A frequent trap in French for the unwary is the difference of meaning in similar phrases. For example, "faire feu" means to fire a gun, while "faire du feu" means to light a fire; "tomber par terre" conveys the idea of falling to the ground from one's own height, whereas "tomber a terre" means to fall from any height—in other words, to tumble down and to tumble off. In the same way "traiter de fat" means to call a man a fop and "traiter en roi" to treat him like a king. The English word "bore" may be expressed in two ways—"un raseur" gives the idea of an active bore and "une bassinoire" of a passive bore.—Academy.

Most Unwholesome.

"I think I'll have some of those crul-ers," said Jones at the lunch counter. "Don't you want some?"

"No," replied Smith. "They don't agree with me."

"That so?"

"Yes; I couldn't even eat the hot one without getting dyspepsia."—Philadelphia Record.

AMERICAN FRATERNAL LEAGUE.

North Yakima to be the Home of a New Protective Society.

The American Fraternal League will be incorporated under the laws of Washington and be ready for business in a few days. It is a home institution, composed of prominent citizens of this city. The field to be occupied is the entire United States. It will be on the lodge plan and include as members men and women between the ages of 18 and 55 years.

It is purposed to pay benefits of $100 for broken arm or limb, $250 for loss of an arm, limb or eye or for total disability; $20 a week for a period not exceeding ten weeks for sickness resulting from injuries; $100 cash funeral benefit, payable immediately on the death of a member and $500 endowment for the beneficiaries of a member dying from any cause. To do this monthly assessments will be made of from 35 cents to $1.00 each for members, the rates varying with the age of the insured.

In addition to the benefits from carrying policies in the league it proposes building and maintaining a fraternal home. This will be designed as headquarters for the offices and also for a temporary home for orphan children and disabled members of the league. There is no better or more desirable spot in the world for such a home and no reason why it should not be built by the American Fraternal League.

State Fair Notes.

The fair commission has contracted with Prof. John E. Baldwin, the celebrated ballist, for three ascensions during fair week. Prof. Baldwin is the man who volunteered to go up in a balloon on the battlefield of Santiago and see what the Spanish forces were doing. He explodes bomb shells in mid air, at an elevation of 8,000 feet, and sends down a snow storm from his balloon. The report of bombs explode has been heard in eastern states for 33 miles. The professor sends down cats, dogs, rabbits and other animals from his war balloon, one mile above the earth, and jumps with his parachutes to the ground. This attraction will be of interest to every resident of Yakima.

Among the interesting features for fair week is the exhibition of Colorado Charley in his vaudeville and Midway tent shows. He is under the management of the New York Clipper and presents one of the best shows of the kind in the world. This show is in Salt Lake City, at the Businessmen's Carnival, and arrangements are being perfected for the show to come here.

The county exhibit at the fair is attracting attention among the farmers and fruit growers of the state. Henry Benthien of Puyallup, has engaged additional space in the pavilion for the Pierce county exhibit. Wm. Lee, Jr., Henry Kampeter and W. L. Wright have engaged considerable space in the pavilion for their county and individual exhibits. Wenatchee will be represented and try to take the palm from Yakima.

John Sawbridge has engaged space in the pavilion for a mineral exhibit. This will be the first exhibit of Gold Hill ore and constitutes one of the finest mineral exhibits in the state. Few people realize that Yakima is within a few miles of some of the best gold bearing properties in the northwest. The exhibit made from the Gold Hill mines will astonish the oldest inhabitants.

Notice.

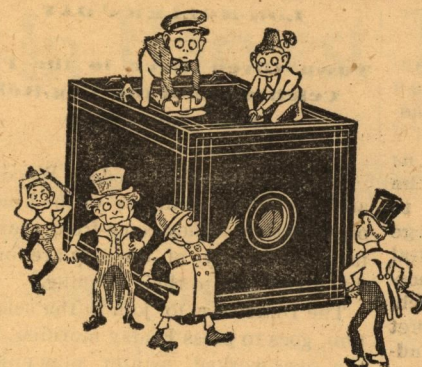

Notice is hereby given, that the county commissioners of Yakima county, will strictly enforce the rules of the State Board of Health, relating to contagious and infectious diseases, especially the following: Whenever any householder shall know or suspect that any person within his or her family, or who may be temporarily residing with him or her, is sick with smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the county health officer [at North Yakima, Wn]. Whenever any physician shall know or suspect that any person whom he is called to visit has smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall give notice immediately, together with the locality and full description of the case to the county health officer [at North Yakima.]

The State Board also requires immediate notification of cases so-called Japanese, Cuban, Egyptian, Dobe and Kangaroo Itch, and Chickenpox on adults.

The penalty for so neglecting to report is fixed by state law at from $5 to $25 for each day of such neglect.

By order of the county commissioners. North Yakima, July 18, 1901.

"Why Don't It Bust?"

We quote from The Century an anecdote related as one of "A Woman's Experiences During the Siege of Vicksburg."

Speaking of fuses, the rector told us one day a very funny thing that he had seen during one of his trips to town. Every day, as long as the siege continued, he crossed that hospital ridge and passed over the most exposed streets on his way to the church, always carrying with him his pocket communion service, apparently standing an even chance of burying the dead, comforting the dying or being himself brought home maimed or cold in death. His leaving was a daily anguish to those who watched him vanish over the brow of the hill. One evening, coming back in the dusk, he saw a burly waggoner slip off his horse and get under it in a hurry. His head appeared, bobbing out first from one side, then from the other. Above him in the air, bobbing, too, and with a quick, uneasy motion, was a luminous spark. After a full minute spent in vigorous dodging the man came out to prospect. The supposed fuse was still there, burning brilliantly. "Darn the thing," he grunted, "why don't it bust?" He had been playing hide and seek for 60 seconds with a fine specimen of our southern lightning bug, or firefly!

Going into a Safer Business.

It was Cassidy's first morning as newspaper carrier. From side to side of the avenue he hurried, dropping the moist sheets in vestibules and running them in the space between the door and sill. Finally he came to a house that was separated from the sidewalk by an urn studded yard. Cassidy opened the iron gate and walked up the stone path. He knelt in the vestibule and started running the paper under the door. An upper window was raised, and a woman's voice called:

"Is that you, Harry? You are awful late. I hear the milk carts rattling."

Cassidy thought it best to remain quiet. The voice continued:

"You don't think I'm coming down at such an hour! The idea of you, a married man, coming home at such a time! Lost your key, as usual? Well, catch this one."

A heavy piece of brass shot two stories. There was a heavy fall, and the vestibule resembled a pressroom.

Some one found Cassidy smoking his pipe in the "accident ward."

"Going back to the carrier route?" they asked.

"Niver once more," responded Cassidy. "O'm goin back to wur-ruk in th' quarry. Thor's no fallin kaes thor; only dynamited rocks."—Chicago News.

A Different Kind of Man.

A school inspector up Westchester way was making his rounds one day and visited a school not a thousand miles from Mamaroneck. Among the questions he asked the children was, "What is a pilgrim?"

One child said, "A man who comes to America to be religious."

Another said, "A person who travels from place to place."

"Well, I do that," said the inspector.

"Am I a pilgrim?"

"Oh, no," said the boy quickly. "I meant a very good man."—New York News.

LOG-ROLLERS' DAY.

Town Given Over to the First Celebration of the Log-Rollers' Association.

The town is full of Modern Woodmen and the female members of the kindred organization. They come from near and far, and the keys of the city are for the day given over to their keeping.

The DEMOCRAT, to join in the celebration, goes to press Friday morning, that the over worked printer may enjoy a holiday along with the gay throng of celebrants.

This being the case we can only refer our readers to the official program as turned out from this office several weeks ago for the various interesting features of the occasion.

Members of the order have been arriving by private conveyance, regular and special trains, and a large crowd, especially from the west, arrived this morning.

The weather starts auspiciously for the occasion; a cool breeze tempering the rays of the sun and making everybody feel thankful he is alive.

E. J. Wyman returned Thursday from Portland, where he went to lay in a big stock of harness and saddles for the new firm, Wyman and Frazer. In addition to the fifty foot Garretts building, the firm has found it necessary to rent the Sherwood building adjoining, thus securing commodious quarters in which to open their business when the buildings are completed.

Mint Julep Tragedy.

A Northern man stopped at the home of an Alabama planter of the old school and was cordially invited to "Light, sah, and be welcome."

He "lit" and was forthwith invited to take a toddy, in accord with the Alabama rules of hospitality.

"Why," he said, "I saw a nice bed of mint back there. Suppose I get some of it and make a mint julep instead of a toddy?"

"A what, sah?" said the planter.

"A mint julep. Haven't you ever tried them?"

"No, sah, never; but I'm willing sah." They did try the fascinating beverage, not once, but many times, and the Northern man went away next day with reluctance.

Two years later his business took him there again. At the gate he was met by the old colored butler, on whose hat, as he doffed it, was seen a band of crape.

"Where's your master, sir?" he inquired of the old dorky.

"He's dead, sah; died yestiddy."

"Dead! I'm shocked. What was the cause?"

"Why, sah, 'bout two years ago one o' dem Yankees cum down heah and showed ole marse how to drink weeds in his red likker, and he never stopped till he died fum it."—Courier Journal.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by Quett & Ayres, Druggists.

"Father wanted to know if you would like a piece of pork when he kills our pig," asked a small boy of his school teacher.

"Tell him I should appreciate it very much," was the reply.

A week passed, and the pork not having put in appearance, the teacher called the youth to the desk and said, "I don't believe you thought to tell your father that I would like that pork, did you?"

"Yes, sir," said the lad, "but he isn't going to kill it now, 'cause the pig has got well."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

KELLOGG & FORD

Anxious to Be His Friend.

"There are plenty of men in this world," said the head of the firm, addressing the clerk he had summoned into the private office, "who can trace their successes directly to what they at first considered failures. I knew a man who 20 years ago was a clerk in a clothing store. His employer discharged him for incompetency. He hunted through all the clothing stores in town trying to get another job, but couldn't find one, and at last, almost starved, he got a place as a brakeman on one of the railroads. Today he is practically the head of that road, draws a salary of $25,000 a year and regards the man who discharged him long ago as the best friend he ever had. Now, he is only one of hundreds of men who have had similar experiences. So you see what at first seems a misfortune may often be a real blessing in disguise."

The young man hid a yawn behind his hand and, thinking of the live broiled lobster he had the night before helped a certain soft-eyed creature to remove from the scene, languidly replied:

"Yes; I know that has frequently happened. Did you want to speak to me about anything in particular this morning, Mr. Yamsley?"

"Oh, no; nothing of special importance," the old gentleman replied, "only I'm going to give you a chance to look back some day and regard me as your best friend. Goodbye. I hope you'll have all kinds of success at whatever you decide to go at."—Chicago Herald.

Panics and Religious Books.

There is one kind of business, according to a New York man prominent in it, that does not enjoy easy financial conditions. It is that of publishing devotional and religious literature. This publisher explained this anomalous condition as follows:

"When everybody is prosperous, there is no very great demand for our publications. People are happy, and they do not go to church to any great extent. Preachers will tell you that church attendance is never so good in prosperous times as it is in periods of financial straits.

"Let a panic come on, however. At first our business feels it as keenly as any other line. People suddenly cease buying everything except what they are obliged to have. As times fail to improve, people take more to going to church. Attendance increases very perceptibly. In a few weeks we can tell it in our business. There is a greatly increased demand for devotional books of all kinds. The business increases, and at the very height of the financial troubles we do the largest business. As times get better you can see our trade in this line of publications gradually drop off until, when prosperity again comes round, we settle down to a normal business quite different from the boom we had been enjoying."—New York Times.

Life Aboard an Arctic Boat.

The days and weeks pass without our taking any account of them. We get up at 6:30 in the morning. At 7 we feed the dogs. At 8 we have breakfast, and at 12 we dine. Then we work till 6:30, when we have supper, after which we smoke and play cards or chess till bedtime. It is not at all cold. Rarely does the thermometer descend below zero. Yesterday the sun shone gloriously. The ice reflected it with a blinding glare and in brilliant colors.

The ship has withstood all the assaults of the ice. It is splendid to see how it breaks up ice that is sometimes three or four feet thick. At other times, when it is even thicker, the ship is rushed against it at full steam. The shock splits and breaks it very often for a distance of 40 or 50 yards. The Duke of Abruzzi is always on the bridge and loses no opportunity of getting ahead. Sometimes he does not even come down to his meals. Whenever we get the smallest opening, he orders us to go on, and we are glad of it, because the more we advance at the present time the less we shall have to do next year.—Leslie's Monthly.

The French Cavalry at Sedan.

Both banks of the Givonne were in German hands; so was Balan, a small village nearer to Sedan than Bazailles, and soon after 1 o'clock no fewer than 426 German guns were hailing shells into the French army, which stood in close formations within a space measuring less than two miles in breadth or depth. Out of this terrible cauldron of defeated troops about this time rode the French cavalry in a heroic endeavor to turn the fortunes of the day and retrieve the honor of France.

General Marguerite, called by some "the star of his arm," was struck in the face by a bullet while riding out to reconnoiter the ground before he charged. He now handed over the cavalry command to De Gallifet, who for the second time on that tremendous day led the flower of French cavalry against the enemy and for the space of half an hour charged the German ranks again and again on the hillsides north of Sedan.

But the courage of the gallant horsemen was all in vain. The arme blanche was unequally matched against the breechloading rifle held in steady hands, and no effort of the French cavalry could withstand the slowly tightening grasp of that fiery circle.—Chambers' Journal.

Couldn't Follow Him.

At a small country church in England a newly married couple were just receiving some advice from the elderly vicar as to how they were to conduct themselves and so always live happily.

"You must never both get cross at once; it is the husband's duty to protect his wife whenever an occasion arises, and a wife must love, honor and obey her husband and follow him wherever he goes."

"But, sir"—pleaded the young bride. "I haven't yet finished," remarked the clergyman, annoyed at the interruption.

"She must"—
"But, please, sir (in desperation), can't you alter that last part? My husband is going to be a postman."

A Question.

Jack's father and mother were having a very heated discussion at the table one day. They entirely forgot him, and as the argument waxed fiercer he looked from one to the other with real concern on his chubby face. Presently during a lull he cleared the air by asking, pointedly:

"Papa, did you marry mamma or did mamma marry you?"—Brooklyn Life.

It Is Written.

"So!" said Mr. Upjohn in his most witheringly sarcastic manner, "Johnny gets all his good qualities from you, and all his bad ones from me, does he?"

"Certainly," answered Mrs. Upjohn, triumphant but calm. "Doesn't the Bible expressly say that the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children?"—Chicago Tribune.
