The Wenatchee Daily World,
Wenatchee, Wash.

Dear Hu:

Thanks for the phone call. Glad you like D and D.

I'm rushing off a miscellaneous assortment, including some negs, so you have a chance to take a pick. And you can return the negs and extra prints. I should be in better shape, but the photogs, who have had weeks to get ready, kinda let me down.

The neg of the yung man looking at the rock painting is Rex Buck, a son of Puck Hyah Toot.

A small print of Puck hyah Toot is enclosed.

Puck Hyah Toot and I are shown on a rock on the island. He is pointing out historic places on island, including fishing stations.

Pix of two mat lod es was taken about seven years ago, when two long houses were located there. Village there used to have as many as 20 of these 75 years ago.

Appreciate very much your enthusiasm. The tour will be a memorial for Puck Hyah Toot, who stood for the last of the old culture in his way of knowing the culture and religion.

We will come in to Wenatchee from Seattle, reaching there probably Friday evening, Oct. 12th for appearance Saturday. Don't suppose there's any luncheon club Saturday? We could break away from Seattle by noon Friday and get in early enough in evening, if there's some night group interested. Kind regards and hurriedly
