Dear Mr. Relander:

The enclosed copies of extracts from the notes you sent Dr. Daugherty, represent items that I am unable to locate in the original. They are all items that are of interest to me in connection with the writing up of the Palouse cemetery material. Any help you can give me in further identifying these references would be sincerely appreciated.

Your material has been most helpful and has lead me to many new sources. So far the only thing that has been written up on the site is a limited copy description of the artifacts found. This was called a final report to satisfy the Corps of Engineers contract but is not in any sense the final report. If all goes well the final report should be completed in June at which time I will forward a copy to you.

Sincerely yours,

Roderick Sprague

Dear Click:

Many thanks for the rapid reply to my request for information. I was afraid that some of them might be microfilm items but the ones in question will cause me no real problems.

I can assure you that you will most certainly be sent a copy of the final report when it comes out. At this point I sometimes feel it should be more like if it comes out.

The dedication of the reburial site has not taken place as yet. The Corps expects Daugherty to take care of it, Daugherty expects the various tribes to do it, and the Indians expect the Corps to organize the whole thing; so nothing is being done. I will write if anything comes up on it.

I found Drummers and Dreamers very close to home in area and view point. Both of my parents were raised in White Bluffs and my mother taught school at Priest Rapids.

Thank you again for your help.

Sincerely,

Rick

Dear Click:

Many thanks for the additional data on Washington archaeology. The newspaper information is very useful and I have had many good leads from it but this is another job in itself. When all of the current projects are caught up perhaps I can go through the various newspaper files, yours included.

Eventually we even plan to have a copy of everything in the bibliography here in the lab where a person doing research can simply go to a drawer and pull out everything he needs.

Thank you again for your help.

Sincerely,

Roderick Sprague
